Mayor, DA In Wrangle On Action

Rift Arises Over Assistant, Cops

As Mayor Edwin F. Radel today prepared a statement charging District Attorney Raymond J. Mino with lack of action in dealing with requested removal of Assistant District Attorney John E. Gotelli from city court coverage, Mino released another denying he had been inactive in the case.

Mino's statement was specifically in reply to one yesterday by Police Commissioner Henry P. Eighmey, who yesterday charged lack of action against Gotelli, who, it was reported, was stopped by patrolmen after allegedly driving 70 miles an hour Jan. 8 at approximately 2:10 a. m. on Albany Avenue.

Untrue, Says Mino

Mino said Eighmey's statement that there had been "no action is untrue and he knows it. He cannot and does not know what action I took." He advised that "no one person can be accuser, judge and jury."

Mayor Radel in his statement today held what he considered Mino's lack of action as "an inexcusable attitude. He noted that letters had been sent to Mino Jan. 19 and 26 and Feb. 2, and claimed no reply was received.

Eighmey knows, said Judge Mino, that "on Jan. 25, I spoke with the mayor, and requested a meeting with the police board to reply to their request."

No Answer, He Declares

Mino said he had also telephoned the mayor twice, but the mayor was unavailable, and although Mino left requests for return calls, none came.

Eighmey, said Mino also knew that "no one was apprehended. He also knows that I have been willing at all times to meet with the police board at any time or place fixed.

Questions Motives

Failure of Eighmey to make note of these facts, he held, indicates that he was "motivated by something other than the truth. Unlike Eighmey and other misguided and misinformed individuals, I feel that no one person can be accuser, judge and jury." He continued:

"To feel otherwise is un-American and violates the basic concepts of all law. Apparently Eighmey and his sponsor or sponsors feel to the contrary. This is indeed regretable.

Up to Superiors

"No person, whether it be the Mayor or Eighmey or other public official, is entitled to any special treatment. Every police officer in the proper exercise of his duties is required to use his sound discretion. Whether or not his failure to make an arrest is an abuse of his discretion is a question for his superiors to determine.

"Their decision, however, does not carry with it any implication of guilt upon the person who was not arrested. That guilt can only be found by a judge or court after arrest. It cannot be found by any private person whether it be Eighmey or any

Ice Jams, Rains Pose New Threats To Indiana Areas

$74 Million Tax Boost In '60 Seen for State

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller's income tax plan, billed as a 150-million-dollar increase, would boost taxes another 50 to 74 million next year, an administration report showed today.

The report was issued by the governor's top fiscal aides primarily to explain—for the first time—how they arrived at the much - attacked 150-million estimate.

Under questioning, they conceded Thursday the report showed that, while Rockefeller might collect only 150 million extra this year, he would reap at least 200 million in 1960.

May Yield $232 Million

Further examination of the report showed today that, when the full impact of the Rockefeller plan was felt, the total yield would be about 232 million. This could happen next year.

Rockefeller's budget director, T. Norman Hurd, pointed out that the Republican governor had said he would use any extra money to help put state finances on a pay-as-you-go basis—not for tax cuts.

Democrats had attacked the 150 - million - estimate, claiming Rockefeller was trying to build up a tax "cushion" for 1960 to enhance his reputation in the presidential election year.

The party's state chairman, Michael H. Prendergast, said he was not a bit convinced by the report. He called it "merely a transparent attempt to maximize tax losses and minimize gains."

Prendergast Still Opposed

Prendergast repeated his demand that Rockefeller withdraw his request for a 23 per cent average increase in taxes, which the governor would achieve by cutting personal exemptions.

West Maps Plans For Uniting Two Zones of Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western leaders expect to draft within the next month a new formula for German reunification. They hope it may promote serious negotiations with the Soviet Union for uniting East and West Germany.

The shape of the formula is still to be determined, but it is expected to push the Western request for free all-German elections somewhat into the background.

Two Main Considerations

Many experts now believe that the unifying process could go on for as much as two years before nationwide elections were held. In the meantime practical steps in the economic and political field could be taken to bring the two Germanies closer together.

Diplomatic informants said today that the United States, Britain, France and West Germany are guided by two main tactical considerations in the wholesale

Traveling Hazardous In Area

Schools Close, Bus Runs Are Delayed

Ice-covered highways and sidewalks today caused hazardous traveling in the area, forced schools to close, and disrupted city bus service temporarily, but police authorities reported no serious mishaps.

A local woman was injured in an accident early today reported by city police, and the Ulster County sheriff's department said two persons were injured late Thursday afternoon in a Route 28 mishap, blamed on slippery driving conditions.

Anesta Fido, 68, of 20 West Union Street, was treated for a knee injury at Kingston Hospital following an accident in front of that building early today, police said.

Two Hurt on 28

She was a passenger in a car owned and operated by Harrison M. Dart, 33, of 69 West Union Street which, police reported was in collision with a car owned and operated by Henry Buchanan, 26, of Woodstock.

Deputy Sheriffs Delbert Sapp and Joseph McNierney reported two persons were injured in a two-car collision Thursday at 4:35 p. m. on Route 28, town of Kingston.

The deputies said a car operated by Elaine Francello, 21, of West Hurley, and owned by Mortimer McMahen, also of West Hurley, was in collision with another operated by Peter Kranenburg, 41, of West Shokan.

Deputies Sapp and McNierney said Sylvia Garrison, 28, of West Hurley, suffered a cut over the right eye and was treated at Benedictine Hospital, and Peter Kranenburg Jr., 14, suffered a cut on the left side of his face and was to see a physician.

To Rate Officers By New System for Dept. Promotions

A new system of rating members of the police department for general conduct and promotions is now in effect, it was revealed today.

Mayor Edwin F. Radel recently notified Acting Police Chief Robert F. Murphy of a new "rating scale" to be effective in the department.

About once a year, the mayor reported, superior officers will rate subordinates and the results will be forwarded and studied by the police board.

Considered will be the officer's attitude toward work, accuracy, dependability, initiative, practical judgment, emotional control, ability to learn, ability to follow directions, attitude toward others, social science and personal appearance.

Raps Long Caucuses, Late Start

Martin Asks Law Rule On Continuing Meeting

Irked that his motion for adjournment of Wednesday evening's Board of Supervisors meeting was overruled, Supervisor James E. Martin (R) 12th Ward returned to the court house last night for the "adjourned" meeting, found an empty room, as a result, has sought legal opinion.

Martin declared today:

"It is an axiomatic principle of parliamentary law that a motion to adjourn is never debatable."

Referred to Attorney

The 12th Ward supervisor said he has referred the matter to County Attorney Arthur A. Davis Jr., and requested a written opinion "upon the contentions supposedly justifying the board's action Wednesday night."

Martin's "chafing" stems from a sequence of events which led to his exodus from the Wednesday evening meeting after he made a motion to adjourn at the outset of the session.

The meeting was moved one day in deference to Lincoln's Birthday, but the session, scheduled to begin at 8 p. m., did not convene until 11:23 p. m., with party caucuses held until that time.

Attacked by Gaffney

His motion for adjournment came under sharp attack from Supervisor John J. Gaffney, town of Lloyd, minority leader of the board, who roared:

"If that's the kind of county government you want, you're welcome to have it."

Gaffney said that if the board was to conduct county affairs, "we shouldn't have to work against a deadline—if we have to stay here all night."

Martin said today he offered his motion to adjourn, it was seconded, put to a vote and passed without dissent. "I left the adjourned meeting promptly."

Last night he returned to the Board of Supervisors room at 8 o'clock "for the adjourned meet-

Senator's Assistant Says Cash Put in Safe

Not Running for Anything, Nor Away From Anything, Former Mayor Says

Former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, one of three witnesses testifying Thursday afternoon in the Edwin W. Ashby perjury trial before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg, gave some startling testimony under examination by defense counsel N. Le-Van Haver.

Heiselman flatly contradicted the testimony of former Senator Arthur H. Wicks that political contributions made by Harry Barieka had been given to Wicks in sealed envelopes and that he (Wicks) did not know how much those contributions were.

Ieiselman said Barieka made numerous visits to see Wicks and after those visits Wicks had called him (Heiselman) in his office and had given him cash, usually ten $100 bills which Heiselman entered on the record book of political contributions and then put the money in the safe.

Shocked, He Says

This differed from the testimony of Wicks who had testified for the prosecution that he received sealed envelopes from Barieka and turned them over to Heiselman in the front office unopened. Wicks said he did not know the amounts of the contributions.

Heiselman also testified he had been "shocked" at what Wicks had "said about me."

After reviewing his long public career, Heiselman said from 1942 to 1957, when he retired, he had held numerous public offices at the pleasure of Senator Wicks, including appointment as "confidential assistant" when Wicks was serving as lieutenant governor for a short time.

"I owe all these things to Arthur Wicks," Heiselman said.

Once after Barieka had paid a visit to Wicks at 41 Pearl Street, Republican headquarters, Heiselman said:

"The boss called me in his office and said 'put this in the safe, it's from Barieka.'" He was handed ten $100 bills.

Visits Around Election

Barieka came into the office at 41 Pearl Street "three or four times a year" usually "around election."

Heiselman said he "presumed" the money was for political contributions but that statement was stricken from the record on motion of prosecution.

Once when Barieka came in Senator Wicks was busy and had to wait in the outer office. Heiselman said in a "joking way" he asked Barieka if he wanted to give him a political contribution. Barieka said "no".

Recorded in Book

Contributions turned over to him by Wicks were entered in the contribution book and the witness said never had he been told by Wicks not to report the contributions in his report to the Secretary of State as required by law.

Asked where the record book was, Heiselman said it had been in a filing cabinet at 41 Pearl when he left. "It should be around there now," the witness said.

Heiselman testified to a meeting in Florida on January 24, 1959, when Senator Wicks and Senator Harry Gittelson (D), Brooklyn attorney, came to his home in Fort Lauderdale.

Gittelson was introduced by Wicks as his "new attorney."

At that time Heiselman said Senator Wicks said:

Testimony Ends In Ashby Case, Recess to Monday

Testimony was closed at 11:25 this morning in the Edward W. Ashby perjury case and Justice Greenberg recessed the case until Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock when counsel will sum up and the charge by Court will be delivered.

Prior to adjournment until Monday morning Justice Henry Clay Greenberg announced that the summations and charge would take at least 3½ to four hours and he polled the jury to ascertain whether it desired to continue today, come in on Saturday or recess until Monday. The jurors expressed a desire to adjourn to Monday.

McMullen Withdraws

John Hugh McCullen, 151 Spring Street, Kingston, juror eight requested that he be excused from jury duty. No reason was given for his withdrawal and Justice Greenberg informed the remaining jurors that no inference must be taken by his withdrawal.

Alternate Juror Lester C. Williams, Grand Street, Highland, was seated as juror eight.

During the morning session Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins was on the stand under cross examination and there were numerous clashes between counsel. The only other witness called was Francis H. Kolts of the National Ulster County Bank of Kingston, called to produce records on a safe deposit box held under the name of 41 Pearl Street Corporation of which Mr. Haver is president. The only people who has access to the box was Conrad J. Heiselman and Mr. Haver until March 1958 when Jesse McHugh (R) from Wallkill, majority leader of the board of supervisors was given power of attorney to enter the box. The record showed that Mr. Haver had never opened the box, the record showing that Former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, formerly associated with Senator Arthur H. Wicks, had been given access.

Special Prosecutor Tompkins was examined by Mr. Haver, counsel for defense.

Tompkins was asked about granting immunity to Clinton Furman, former salesman for Frank Buckley and later a salesman for Harry Barieka. The witness said Furman had been granted immunity and appeared before the grand jury. John E. Egan, associated with defense counsel in the Ashby case, was Furman's attorney, Tompkins said.

Downs Street Woman Says Taxpayers Weak About Water

Lack of public attendance at Wednesday night's hearing on the water board's rate boost and meter program is censured in a letter today from Mrs. Thelma Van Aken, of 94 Downs Street, "a housewife and landowner" who attended the session.

The meeting, as first called, was for a discussion between aldermen and water board members, of the board's recent action. The board proposed an open hearing, and Common Council President Harold L. Kaye, in reply, suggested that the aldermen and board members meet first as scheduled, and if the water board wished to hold a public hearing at close of the session, it was agreeable to the aldermen.

The meeting, "Mrs. Van Aken held, was "meant for all taxpayers," and then she asked: "Who was there; the Common Council, and the water board and five taxpayers. Where is your backbone, and your assistance to back up your aldermen and supervisors of your individual wards? Do you want your city to be run by overbearing and tax-crazy politicians, or do you, as a public, want to see honest and fair government of the City of Kingston."

Won't Stop, She Says

"On the immediate question of these water meters," she wrote, "the water board so graciously walked in our back door, and said we are going to put these in your home. Were we asked if it was okay? No! Why should we have to pay for the water that the Good Lord gives. I fully agree we must pay in some way for maintenance in a proper portion to bring water to

Mayor Refutes Schwenk's Words on Water Politics

Mayor Edwin F. Radel, in a reply to a letter from former Alderman-at-Large John J. Schwenk, published in The Freeman Monday in defense of the water board, said he "finds it difficult to label the controversy political," as Schwenk had charged.

"Joining the Democratic aldermen, who realize the seriousness of the situation," he said, "are several Republican aldermen, who are as eager to get the proper answers and solutions, as I or any other member of the council."

Schwenk had charged unjust criticism of the board with "selfish political motives,"

Points to Approval

"The request to the corporation counsel," said the mayor, "to determine what legal steps are necessary to make the water department responsible to the elected city government, was unanimously approved by the Common Council, composed of eight Democratic and five Republican aldermen.

"That the water board, at this late date, should even suggest a public hearing, is indeed a farce," he said.

It is customary, he said, "to conduct such a poll of public opinion before you dictate policy, and while revisions may still be made to conform with public sentiment."

Says Both Republicans

Since Schwenk mentioned previous mayors and their activities in transferring water department funds, he said, "I feel it is only fair to the public to point out, that both of these mayors are members of the Republican party, and any anticipated budget expenses making necessary transferring of large sums of money from one department to another, only points out the inadequacy of the budgets they had prepared."

"Actually," he said, "if political motives are to be charged, they more logically suit a situation where a board has been aware of deficit conditions for approximately five years, and then institute a complete new policy reflecting upon Democratic administration."

DeDea Says Body Opposes Frills, Adult Education

Opposition to increasing costs of state government—including the State Education Department—was voiced at a public hearing on Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's record $2.041 billion budget held in Albany this week by a member of the Kingston Civic Association.

Eugene DeDea said his organization believed in a good education for every New York State child, but not at the expense of non-essential items.

"We do not believe that the people should be made to stand the expense of many other things, which go under the heading of education, such as tap dancing, swimming pools, skaking rinks, fencing rooms, etc.," DeDea declared and added:

"Nor do we believe that the taxpayer should be made to pay and maintain what is called adult education. The names of some of these courses under this program are called charm courses, sliminastics, social dancing, color photography and many others."

He noted that the Education Department is not answerable to the governor, the Legislature or to the courts. "Once they have this money, they can spend it as they see fit."

DeDea claimed the Kingston city taxpayers had "a classic example of how this works this past year."

In a prepared statement, DeDea said:

"Kingston has a population of about 30,000 people. The Kingston Board of Education on Oct. 4, 1956 passed a resolution that pledged them to abide by the results of a referendum by the people on a school consolidation. They reaffirmed this resolution on Feb. 6, 1958.

"The referendum was held on April 2, 1958—4,943 people voted. A majority of 278 voted against consolidation, and within a matter of hours, the board voted to overthrow the referendum that was held by the people.

Cites Action Taken

"If that's the kind of county government you want, you're welcome to have it."

Gaffney said that if the board was to conduct county affairs, "we shouldn't have to work against a deadline—if we have to stay here all night."

Martin said today he offered his motion to adjourn, it was seconded, put to a vote and passed without dissent. "I left the adjourned meeting promptly."

Last night he returned to the Board of Supervisors room at 8 o'clock "for the adjourned meet-

Senator's Assistant Says Cash Put in Safe

Not Running for Anything, Nor Away From Anything, Former Mayor Says

Former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, one of three witnesses testifying Thursday afternoon in the Edwin W. Ashby perjury trial before Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg, gave some startling testimony under examination by defense counsel N. Le-Van Haver.

Heiselman flatly contradicted the testimony of former Senator Arthur H. Wicks that political contributions made by Harry Barieka had been given to Wicks in sealed envelopes and that he (Wicks) did not know how much those contributions were.

Heiselman said Barieka made numerous visits to see Wicks and after those visits Wicks had called him (Heiselman) in his office and had given him cash, usually ten $100 bills which Heiselman entered on the record book of political contributions and then put the money in the safe.

Shocked, He Says

This differed from the testimony of Wicks who had testified for the prosecution that he received sealed envelopes from Barieka and turned them over to Heiselman in the front office unopened. Wicks said he did not know the amounts of the contributions.

Heiselman also testified he had been "shocked" at what Wicks had "said about me."

After reviewing his long public career, Heiselman said from 1942 to 1957, when he retired, he had held numerous public offices at the pleasure of Senator Wicks, including appointment as "confidential assistant" when Wicks was serving as lieutenant governor for a short time.

"I owe all these things to Arthur Wicks," Heiselman said.

Once after Barieka had paid a visit to Wicks at 41 Pearl Street, Republican headquarters, Heiselman said:

"The boss called me in his office and said 'put this in the safe, it's from Barieka.'" He was handed ten $100 bills.

Visits Around Election

Barieka came into the office at 41 Pearl Street "three or four times a year" usually "around election."

Heiselman said he "presumed" the money was for political contributions but that statement was stricken from the record on motion of prosecution.

Once when Barieka came in Senator Wicks was busy and had to wait in the outer office. Heiselman said in a "joking way" he asked Barieka if he wanted to give him a political contribution. Barieka said "no".

Recorded in Book

Contributions turned over to him by Wicks were entered in the contribution book and the witness said never had he been told by Wicks not to report the contributions in his report to the Secretary of State as required by law.

Asked where the record book was, Heiselman said it had been in a filing cabinet at 41 Pearl when he left. "It should be around there now," the witness said.

Heiselman testified to a meeting in Florida on January 24, 1959, when Senator Wicks and Senator Harry Gittelson (D), Brooklyn attorney, came to his home in Fort Lauderdale.

Gittelson was introduced by Wicks as his "new attorney."

At that time Heiselman said Senator Wicks said:

Testimony Ends In Ashby Case, Recess to Monday

Testimony was closed at 11:25 this morning in the Edward W. Ashby perjury case and Justice Greenberg recessed the case until Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock when counsel will sum up and the charge by Court will be delivered.

Prior to adjournment until Monday morning Justice Henry Clay Greenberg announced that the summations and charge would take at least 3½ to four hours and he polled the jury to ascertain whether it desired to continue today, come in on Saturday or recess until Monday. The jurors expressed a desire to adjourn to Monday.

McMullen Withdraws

John Hugh McCullen, 151 Spring Street, Kingston, juror eight requested that he be excused from jury duty. No reason was given for his withdrawal and Justice Greenberg informed the remaining jurors that no inference must be taken by his withdrawal.

Alternate Juror Lester C. Williams, Grand Street, Highland, was seated as juror eight.

During the morning session Special Prosecutor Bernard Tompkins was on the stand under cross examination and there were numerous clashes between counsel. The only other witness called was Francis H. Kolts of the National Ulster County Bank of Kingston, called to produce records on a safe deposit box held under the name of 41 Pearl Street Corporation of which Mr. Haver is president. The only people who has access to the box was Conrad J. Heiselman and Mr. Haver until March 1958 when Jesse McHugh (R) from Wallkill, majority leader of the board of supervisors was given power of attorney to enter the box. The record showed that Mr. Haver had never opened the box, the record showing that Former Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, formerly associated with Senator Arthur H. Wicks, had been given access.

Special Prosecutor Tompkins was examined by Mr. Haver, counsel for defense.

Tompkins was asked about granting immunity to Clinton Furman, former salesman for Frank Buckley and later a salesman for Harry Barieka. The witness said Furman had been granted immunity and appeared before the grand jury. John E. Egan, associated with defense counsel in the Ashby case, was Furman's attorney, Tompkins said.

Didn't Check Accounts

Tompkins said former Senator

DeDea Says Body Opposes Frills, Adult Education

Opposition to increasing costs of state government—including the State Education Department—was voiced at a public hearing on Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller's record $2.041 billion budget held in Albany this week by a member of the Kingston Civic Association.

Eugene DeDea said his organization believed in a good education for every New York State child, but not at the expense of non-essential items.

"We do not believe that the people should be made to stand the expense of many other things, which go under the heading of education, such as tap dancing, swimming pools, skaking rinks, fencing rooms, etc.," DeDea declared and added:

"Nor do we believe that the taxpayer should be made to pay and maintain what is called adult education. The names of some of these courses under this program are called charm courses, sliminastics, social dancing, color photography and many others."

He noted that the Education Department is not answerable to the governor, the Legislature or to the courts. "Once they have this money, they can spend it as they see fit."

DeDea claimed the Kingston city taxpayers had "a classic example of how this works this past year."

In a prepared statement, DeDea said:

"Kingston has a population of about 30,000 people. The Kingston Board of Education on Oct. 4, 1956 passed a resolution that pledged them to abide by the results of a referendum by the people on a school consolidation. They reaffirmed this resolution on Feb. 6, 1958.

"The referendum was held on April 2, 1958—4,943 people voted. A majority of 278 voted against consolidation, and within a matter of hours, the board voted to overthrow the referendum that was held by the people.

Downs Street Woman Says Taxpayers Weak About Water

Lack of public attendance at Wednesday night's hearing on the water board's rate boost and meter program is censured in a letter today from Mrs. Thelma Van Aken, of 94 Downs Street, "a housewife and landowner" who attended the session.

The meeting, as first called, was for a discussion between aldermen and water board members, of the board's recent action. The board proposed an open hearing, and Common Council President Harold L. Kaye, in reply, suggested that the aldermen and board members meet first as scheduled, and if the water board wished to hold a public hearing at close of the session, it was agreeable to the aldermen.

The meeting, "Mrs. Van Aken held, was "meant for all taxpayers," and then she asked: "Who was there; the Common Council, and the water board and five taxpayers. Where is your backbone, and your assistance to back up your aldermen and supervisors of your individual wards? Do you want your city to be run by overbearing and tax-crazy politicians, or do you, as a public, want to see honest and fair government of the City of Kingston."

Won't Stop, She Says

"On the immediate question of these water meters," she wrote, "the water board so graciously walked in our back door, and said we are going to put these in your home. Were we asked if it was okay? No! Why should we have to pay for the water that the Good Lord gives. I fully agree we must pay in some way for maintenance in a proper portion to bring water to

Mayor Refutes Schwenk's Words on Water Politics

Mayor Edwin F. Radel, in a reply to a letter from former Alderman-at-Large John J. Schwenk, published in The Freeman Monday in defense of the water board, said he "finds it difficult to label the controversy political," as Schwenk had charged.

"Joining the Democratic aldermen, who realize the seriousness of the situation," he said, "are several Republican aldermen, who are as eager to get the proper answers and solutions, as I or any other member of the council."

Schwenk had charged unjust criticism of the board with "selfish political motives."

Points to Approval

"The request to the corporation counsel," said the mayor, "to determine what legal steps are necessary to make the water department responsible to the elected city government, was unanimously approved by the Common Council, composed of eight Democratic and five Republican aldermen.

"That the water board, at this late date, should even suggest a public hearing, is indeed a farce," he said.

It is customary, he said, "to conduct such a poll of public opinion before you dictate policy, and while revisions may still be made to conform with public sentiment."

Says Both Republicans

Since Schwenk mentioned previous mayors and their activities in transferring water department funds, he said, "I feel it is only fair to the public to point out, that both of these mayors are members of the Republican party, and any anticipated budget expenses making necessary transferring of large sums of money from one department to another, only points out the inadequacy of the budgets they had prepared."

"Actually," he said, "if political motives are to be charged, they more logically suit a situation where a board has been aware of deficit conditions for approximately five years, and then institute a complete new policy reflecting upon Democratic administration."

MYF to Sponsor Foreign Exchange Student in 1960

The Methodist Youth Fellowship of Saugerties Methodist Church voted to assist the Kingston Sub District Youth Fellowship in sponsoring a foreign exchange student next year.

President Stuart Crank of Windemere, announced that the local group has embarked upon two projects for the purpose of raising $50 towards the Saugerties share of $400 to bring a student to this community from a western European country.

The group of 37 members is "baby sitting" and turning the proceeds over to the fund. Anyone in the Saugerties area requiring a baby sitter, and wishing to aid in this project, may call Stuart Crank or Jeannie Rivenberg.

The second project adopted by the MYF is to have a bake sale at Amrod's Main Street store Saturday, Feb. 21. Those who wish to donate to this may call one of the above officers.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. George Werner, pointed out that Kingston High School has a foreign exchange student this year, and the young lady from Holland is adding a great deal of interest to the school and community.

Methodist Group Adopts 2 Projects

The social concern commission of Saugerties Methodist Church at a recent meeting in the home of its chairman, James Delmege of Garden Circle, Barclay Heights, viewed a film strip on the work of the commission, and adopted two projects.

The commission voted to assist the Saugerties Area Council of Churches, and the Kingston Sub District of the Methodist Church in sponsoring a young adult fellowship, for young people who have graduated from high school. It was felt that much is being done through the school and other organizations for teenagers, but older youth find little to do in the community.

Most of the young people leave town upon graduation from high school, either to continue their education or to work.

The second project adopted by the commission, was to sponsor a brief social "get acquainted" period, immediately after the worship service Sunday morning. It was felt that so many new people are coming into the church, something must be done to facilitate the process of getting acquainted and forming friendships.

The host couples now give a cross to newcomers and visitors who wear this on the lapel as an identifying means for those who wish to greet them. The crosses and display board have been purchased by the Methodist Men's Club.

These visitors would be given an opportunity to meet some of the church members during the refreshments following the service. This custom has been growing rapidly especially in the larger cities and churches of all denominations. The members of the commission would take turns serving the light refreshments in the chapel.

Youth Group Sets Valentine Dance; Has Skating Plan

Saugerties Youth Council activities including the teenage Valentine Day dance Saturday night and a proposed ice skating program for Saugerties young people were the chief topics of discussion at a special meeting of the group Thursday night at R. A. Snyder Fire Company rooms in the municipal building.

Final arrangements for the teenage dance to be held at 8 p. m. in Saugerties Municipal Auditorium were outlined.

The high school swing band under the direction of Winthrop Emmons, Saugerties Schools music teacher will play from 8 to 11:30 p. m. There is no charge.

Ben Fein, who some years ago headed a similar project was named chairman of the ice skating program to be held on the council sponsored ice skating pond at Cantine Memorial Park.

Vernon Joe Benjamin, council chairman appointed Ben Fein chairman of the ice skating program proposed for the council's skating rink at Cantine Memorial Park opposite the Main Street School.

Fein presented a schedule of skating hours and suggested that the rink be supervised and a shelter placed at the scene for removing skates.

A committee including Chairman Benjamin, Fein and Albert J. Cawein will study the proposals.

Mrs. Rita Gavigan, chairman of the teenage Valentine dance reported that the Saugerties Girls Club will decorate the auditorium Saturday morning. She said all necessary arrangements had been made for the dance.

A program for the future was discussed including a square and round dance in March.

MYF to Sponsor Foreign Exchange Student in 1960

The Methodist Youth Fellowship of Saugerties Methodist Church voted to assist the Kingston Sub District Youth Fellowship in sponsoring a foreign exchange student next year.

President Stuart Crank of Windemere, announced that the local group has embarked upon two projects for the purpose of raising $50 towards the Saugerties share of $400 to bring a student to this community from a western European country.

The group of 37 members is "baby sitting" and turning the proceeds over to the fund. Anyone in the Saugerties area requiring a baby sitter, and wishing to aid in this project, may call Stuart Crank or Jeannie Rivenberg.

The second project adopted by the MYF is to have a bake sale at Amrod's Main Street store Saturday, Feb. 21. Those who wish to donate to this may call one of the above officers.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. George Werner, pointed out that Kingston High School has a foreign exchange student this year, and the young lady from Holland is adding a great deal of interest to the school and community.

Methodist Group Adopts 2 Projects

The social concern commission of Saugerties Methodist Church at a recent meeting in the home of its chairman, James Delmege of Garden Circle, Barclay Heights, viewed a film strip on the work of the commission, and adopted two projects.

The commission voted to assist the Saugerties Area Council of Churches, and the Kingston Sub District of the Methodist Church in sponsoring a young adult fellowship, for young people who have graduated from high school. It was felt that much is being done through the school and other organizations for teenagers, but older youth find little to do in the community.

Most of the young people leave town upon graduation from high school, either to continue their education or to work.

The second project adopted by the commission, was to sponsor a brief social "get acquainted" period, immediately after the worship service Sunday morning. It was felt that so many new people are coming into the church, something must be done to facilitate the process of getting acquainted and forming friendships.

The host couples now give a cross to newcomers and visitors who wear this on the lapel as an identifying means for those who wish to greet them. The crosses and display board have been purchased by the Methodist Men's Club.

These visitors would be given an opportunity to meet some of the church members during the refreshments following the service. This custom has been growing rapidly especially in the larger cities and churches of all denominations. The members of the commission would take turns serving the light refreshments in the chapel.

Youth Group Sets Valentine Dance; Has Skating Plan

Saugerties Youth Council activities including the teenage Valentine Day dance Saturday night and a proposed ice skating program for Saugerties young people were the chief topics of discussion at a special meeting of the group Thursday night at R. A. Snyder Fire Company rooms in the municipal building.

Final arrangements for the teenage dance to be held at 8 p. m. in Saugerties Municipal Auditorium were outlined.

The high school swing band under the direction of Winthrop Emmons, Saugerties Schools music teacher will play from 8 to 11:30 p. m. There is no charge.

Ben Fein, who some years ago headed a similar project was named chairman of the ice skating program to be held on the council sponsored ice skating pond at Cantine Memorial Park.

Vernon Joe Benjamin, council chairman appointed Ben Fein chairman of the ice skating program proposed for the council's skating rink at Cantine Memorial Park opposite the Main Street School.

Fein presented a schedule of skating hours and suggested that the rink be supervised and a shelter placed at the scene for removing skates.

A committee including Chairman Benjamin, Fein and Albert J. Cawein will study the proposals.

Mrs. Rita Gavigan, chairman of the teenage Valentine dance reported that the Saugerties Girls Club will decorate the auditorium Saturday morning. She said all necessary arrangements had been made for the dance.

A program for the future was discussed including a square and round dance in March.

Stratton Hopeful Of Better Word On Carpet Tariff

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Tariff Commission has refused to reconsider its decision not to raise tariffs on imported carpets.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton (D - NY), who asked for the reconsideration, said Thursday he still would seek a more favorable decision from the commission.

Stratton said Edgar B. Brossard, commission chairman, indicated that, if conditions produce new evidence that imports are detrimental to domestic production, the law provides for a new investigation.

The carpet industry had asked the commission to grant relief to American firms on the ground they were being hurt by imports. The commission declined to raise tariff barriers.

Stratton said there was sufficient evidence of unemployment in Amsterdam, N. Y., "to make it clear that conditions have changed for the worse in the months since this action was originally presented to the commission." He added:

"I am hopeful that the carpet industry will take advantage of this provision on the law. . ."

First notice the cartoon. The man on the right makes a remark about the PAGE of the newspaper which is held by the dog. The man on the left uses the word PAT and on his sweater appears the letter T. These clues suggest PATTI PAGE—which is listed among the six names below the cartoon.
Next we place a quarter on the diagram and draw a line around it. Inside this circle are the letters AEGP. Rearranged, they provide the last name of PAGE.
Thus, there are three ways that prove you have the right answer—the clues in the cartoon, the name in the title list, and the letters within the circle.
Finally, you complete the puzzle by placing an "X" in the box before PATTI PAGE in the list of names.

Governor, Dutch Envoy Talk Over H-C Participation

ALBANY, N. Y (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller and a Dutch ambassador have discussed the possibility of participation by the Netherlands government in New York's celebration of the discovery of the Hudson River 350 years ago.

Rockefeller and Dr. J. H. Van Roijen, Netherlands ambassador to the United States, reached no formal conclusions at their luncheon meeting Thursday in the Executive Mansion.

The state is celebrating this year the discovery of the river by Henry Hudson, who sailed under the Dutch flag, and the 350th anniversary of the discovery of of Lake Champlain.

Sen. Ernest I. Hatfield (R - Poughkeepsie), chairman of the state's Temporary Commission of Historic Observances, attended the meeting.

Stresses Need for U. S. To Court Asia, Africa

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The executive director of the state Liberal Party says America is facing a civil war just as in Abraham Lincoln's time.

But this time, says Ben Davidson of New York City, the civil war is international, a fight for the sympathy and alliance of the people in Asia and Africa.

Davidson, speaking at an Erie County Liberal Party dinner Thursday called for an ideological and diplomatic offensive to show Asians and Africans that the United States wants to teach them self-determination and prosperity.

"We must show them that our values are best, that we are the ones who stand for peace," he said.

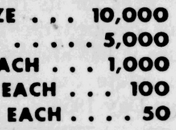
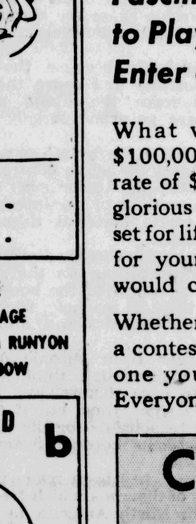
YOU CAN WIN the fabulous, new NEW YORK Journal American MAGIC CIRCLE GAME!





$250,000 IN 10,000 CASH PRIZES

Here is What You Do to Win!

The puzzle consists of a cartoon, a list of names and a diagram filled with letters. The object is to find the correct name. Here is how to find it.

First notice the cartoon. The man on the right makes a remark about the PAGE of the newspaper which is held by the dog. The man on the left uses the word PAT and on his sweater appears the letter T. These clues suggest PATTI PAGE—which is listed among the six names below the cartoon.

Next we place a quarter on the diagram and draw a line around it. Inside this circle are the letters AEGP. Rearranged, they provide the last name of PAGE.

Thus, there are three ways that prove you have the right answer—the clues in the cartoon, the name in the title list, and the letters within the circle.

Finally, you complete the puzzle by placing an "X" in the box before PATTI PAGE in the list of names.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 13, 1959

NATIONAL GUARD RECORD

Each year on Washington's Birthday it is the custom of the National Guardsmen throughout the nation to observe Muster Day in honor of our first president. It is always a proud occasion for those 470,000 citizen-soldiers, because theirs is a great heritage.

The 156th Field Artillery Battalion will observe Muster Day at the New York State Armory here on Monday evening, February 23 in conjunction with the observance. Brig. General John J. Fitzgerald, commanding general, II Corps Artillery, New York Army National Guard will review the entire battalion from Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

Congressman J. Ernest Wharton will be the guest of honor for the ceremonies, which will include an historic pageant, "Muskets to Missiles," tracing the history of the famed unit.

This year the National Guard has added reason for being proud. The Guard now has reached the pinnacle of its training and readiness and it is better equipped, trained and organized than ever before. This is not just a matter of opinion, it is an established fact, recognized by the Department of Defense. Here are some of the Guard's recent accomplishments to support such a statement.

The Army National Guard is now conducting all of its training on the unit level. This is possible because more than 80 per cent of the Guard's enlisted men are basically trained and qualified in their military specialties.

The Air National Guard's combat squadrons are now 100 per cent jet equipped. Some of its units are even flying the supersonic F-100 aircraft.

The National Guard—Army and Air—is the first reserve component in United States history to be equipped with guided missiles.

Twenty-two squadrons of the Air National Guard are today participating in the air defense of the nation, keeping planes and pilots in readiness 24 hours a day in case of an attack.

The Army National Guard is now converting all of its 21 infantry and six armored divisions to the Army's new pentomic divisional organization in preparation for the atomic battlefield.

Forty-two States are now operating their own National Guard Officer Candidate Schools under the guidance of the Active Army. Direct commissioning has become a thing of the past in the Guard.

This is an impressive record of accomplishment, one which justifies the Guard's claim of being a modern fighting force. The National Guard honors its past, to be sure, but it lives for its future. At no time has it ever claimed the right to exist simply because it has always existed.

We salute the National Guard on this Muster Day 1959.

The woman next door says it is inconsistent to give hurricanes feminine names when everybody knows males do all the chasing.

SPEED TRAP WARNING

The American Automobile Association reports that speed traps are operating briskly between Chicago and Southern resorts, with some new tricks added to fool unwary motorists. The report reflects complaints of drivers who have been stung.

Our feelings about speed traps are somewhat mixed. We don't think the onerous term should be stretched to cover vigorous enforcement of traffic laws. Such enforcement is highly desirable. Some drivers press their luck as well as their accelerators, and then yell "speed trap" when they are caught heavy-footed.

We have little patience, though, with a town that sets a tricky net for the out-of-state driver and socks him with a heavy fine that he can't take time to fight in the courts. Running that sort of speed trap is a base and degrading racket.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

NIXON VS. LYNDON JOHNSON

As the 1960 Presidential election begins to emerge, many persons are trying to focus attention upon themselves. The managers of Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York have put an organization into the field to blitz the nomination for him. The Democrats have a plethora of candidates. From the standpoint of the best interests of the United States, it would seem at this moment that if the Republicans nominated Vice President Richard Nixon and if the Democrats nominated Senator Lyndon Johnson, we might again have a two-party debate and an opportunity for the people to make a selection without disadvantage no matter which one was elected.

Vice President Nixon has matured during the past six years from a provincial member of Congress, eager to become a Senator, to one of the leading and most useful statesmen our country has at this time. Lyndon Johnson has emerged in the United States Senate not only as a competent political leader but as a statesman who puts country above party.

Naturally, these men see life from different standpoints. I shall not attribute their differences to the fact that one is a Republican and the other a Democrat, which has become meaningless in American politics. There are other important distinctions in personality; Nixon hails from California; Johnson from Texas. Johnson became administrative clerk to Congressman Richard Kleberg and had an intimate view of legislative procedures before he became a member of the House of Representatives and a Senator; Nixon moved in as a member of the House of Representatives, became a Senator and Vice President. Johnson has never served in any Administrative capacity; neither has Nixon, but in the Eisenhower Administration, he sits in the Cabinet and serves in many capacities for the President. Johnson and Nixon are both extraordinarily wise in the ways of American politics. Nixon's ideal of a political leader is Theodore Roosevelt, a pragmatist who having set himself a goal, found a method for getting there; Johnson was trained in the New Deal era, the period of transition from idealistic capitalism to the uncertainties of socialized capitalism.

In American affairs, the Texans are playing a most unusual role. Whereas they are Southerners, they nevertheless are nationalistically American. They do not sacrifice the Union in the contest over Negro rights. The result is that the Texans have become the leaders in both houses. Due to the varieties of Eisenhower emotionalism, Richard Nixon has been forced to assume an unusual leadership in the Republican Party—a leadership generally held by the President. His principal political opponent was Sherman Adams and his particular clique. Due to the collapse of the Adlai Stevenson influence in the Democratic Party and the attempt of the Americans for Democratic Action to gain control of the machinery of the Democratic Party, Lyndon Johnson has had to assume a leadership which extends beyond the floor of the Senate.

Lyndon Johnson's nomination is most likely to be bitterly opposed by the A.D.A. element who are now advocating the candidacy of Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota; Richard Nixon's candidacy will be most opposed by the Rockefeller element in the Republican Party. It is a curiosity of American politics that the same elements which support Humphrey against Johnson are supporting Rockefeller against Nixon.

However, Humphrey attempted a political tour de force by an interview with Khrushchev, a huge magazine article on the subject which really said nothing and a Khrushchev ridicule of the article which was inevitable. Precisely what Humphrey expected to accomplish by this, it is difficult to see. Rockefeller proceeded to antagonize everybody in New York State by a tax program which does not make either economic or political sense. Even if the program were sound, which it is not, Rockefeller's handling of it and of the press has been amateurish and arbitrary and would indicate a lack of political savvy, not only on his part, but on the part of his galaxy of advisers. Before a man can establish himself as strong in politics, he needs to be wise.

It would seem therefore that the candidates will still be Nixon and Johnson, although in both parties a sharp struggle continues between the conservatives and liberals, each side crossing over into both parties. The liberals are, for instance, through the A.D.A., really attempting to produce a one party system here.

Numerous Factors Can Be Cause of Chronic Diarrhea

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Any diarrhea which lasts more than a few hours or days can be called chronic. Someone with this difficulty suffers great inconvenience and always feels run down and uncomfortable.

Chronic infection with germs or with amebae (which are small animal parasites) are often responsible for this kind of difficulty. In such cases, examination of the intestinal waste for these microscopic enemies should reveal the cause. Proper treatment can then be begun.

One variety of chronic diarrhea is produced by an ulceration of the lower intestines. The cause of this condition is not known, but many small ulcers form in the intestine and these are associated with diarrhea, bleeding, irritation and other distressing symptoms.

Probably the most common variety of chronic diarrhea, however, is of nervous origin. Many people who do not have an infection in the intestine or any other obvious cause for chronic diarrhea develop this condition whenever under emotional strain.

The reason is probably because the nerves which go to the intestines and cause the wavelike motions which force the waste material through the bowel are governed largely by the emotions.

When a person with a "nervous" constitution becomes excited or upset the nerve control of the intestines is also disturbed. Under such circumstances the wavelike motions of the intestines increase, forcing the waste material through too fast and diarrhea results.

There are rare causes for chronic diarrhea also. Diarrhea may follow operations on the stomach and is often present in cancer of the bowel. Certain diseases of the body as a whole, such as allergy;, toxic goiter or diabetes can also cause diarrhea.

The greatest danger from chronic diarrhea lies in the fact that many people think it is not important and try to cure themselves. Several drugs may help for a short time, but if there is any serious condition responsible for the diarrhea, it is dangerous to postpone thorough examination and accurate diagnosis.

An interesting report has been made recently on a more acute form of diarrhea which frequently affects travelers from North America in foreign lands. In Mexico it is sometimes called the Aztec curse, Montezuma's revenge, the tourist disease, and there and elsewhere it has many other colorful names. It can be either a mild or explosive illness.

In this study, the common germs, or animal parasites, found in other forms of diarrhea could not be identified. Suspicion was cast on foods containing toxins such as those produced by the staphylococcus germ.

However, the exact cause still remains uncertain. Attempts to prevent these attacks among students from North America in Mexico City with various preparations were only partially successful. It certainly would be nice if this common travelers' disease could be prevented.

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is no accident that Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri turns up in first place in the recent Congressional Quarterly poll of Democratic presidential possibilities. For more than a year it has been apparent to political observers that "Stu" is a candidate on whom most factions of the party can agree.

He comes from a border state. He has never carried a torch for civil rights. But he has a good record on it, furthering integration in his own business and as former secretary of the Air Force.

Coming from the eighth-ranking agricultural state, and that in the Midwest, he is acceptable to the farm belt. He is an active member of Senate Agriculture Committee.

Because of his work for flood control, navigation and public works in the Missouri valley, he can claim common interest with reclamation states of the west.

HAVING BEEN BORN in Massachusetts, educated in Baltimore schools and at Yale, he can pass as an easterner.

He was a successful businessman — president of Emerson Electric—which makes him acceptable to other executive types who fear Democratic left-wing radicalism.

In fact, Stuart Symington is probably a millionaire. When he first came to Washington in 1945 as chairman of Surplus Property Board, he sold all his stock in Emerson. The money was put in trust. He has lived off his income since then, in addition to his government salaries. The only business connection he has retained is as a board member of Merchants Trust in St. Louis.

Yet he is acceptable to labor. As Emerson's president he installed a profit-sharing plan, put in dues checkoff and built up the union — International Electrical Workers—who in 1949 made him an honorary member.

He is, moreover, tall and handsome, which doesn't hurt with the women's vote. He is now only 57, in good health.

He has a fine family. His wife is daughter of the late Sen. Jim Wadsworth of New York. The Symingtons have two fine sons, Stuart Jr., and Jim, both lawyers, married to good-looking wives. There are five grandchildren.

THE FAMILY PORTRAIT, printed all over Missouri in 1958, probably won him as many votes as anything he said.

He is a nice guy. He has no particular enemies. There isn't anything the matter with him politically except that—somehow—he has never aroused anyone to high-pitch enthusiasm as a top-rank statesman and world leader.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle he has to overcome is to quit being thought of as a compromise candidate — the second choice on other candidate's lists.

He used to read his ghost-written speeches in an uninspiring way, his eyes glued to his text. This was true all through the seven years he was a bureaucrat in Washington.

When he first jumped into politics, running for the U. S. Senate in 1952, his eastern accent did not sound right to Missouri ears. He was regarded as something of a carpetbagger for he had lived in Missouri only since 1938.

But he learned his politics from the grass roots up. He started by calling on all the country chairman. He still makes it a rule to get to every Missouri district every year.

In his 1958 campaign for re-election, the senator spoke off the cuff more and got his messages across better. It was a shirtsleeve campaign in which the usually Ivy League-looking senator leveled with dirt farmers in Harry Truman style. He won by 150,000 in 1952. In 1958 it was 350,000.

SENATOR SYMINGTON is best known in Washington as foremost critic of Eisenhower administration defense policies. He speaks with experience here for he was Air Force secretary and National Security Resources Board chairman under President Truman.

This could be the basis of a Symington bid for national attention as a presidential candidate. But the Republican reply to it is that Symington was a "failure" as Air Force secretary for not starting the missile program.

Up to now, Senator Symington his disavowed that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination. He has no organization. He has said frankly, however, that the nomination is an honor which no man could refuse.

His position will shake down in the next year.

But instead of Shakespeare, the subject matter will be the writings of Tennessee Williams. Casting has not yet been set for the project, but two performers probably will be used.

Ancient Controversy Over Ambassador Is On Again

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The age-old controversy over the kind of individuals who should be appointed as ambassadors abroad—those with political influence or "career" men—has bobbed up once more.

Strange vaporings of piety are issuing from the holy precincts of the Democratic party on Capitol Hill, especially from the supposedly unpolitical and unpartisan membership of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Theoretically, anyone who has a hand in influencing our foreign relations should be non-political. But, to help accomplish such a utopian state, it would be necessary to ordain that members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should themselves take some kind of Socratic oath to bar politics from their comments on world policy, particularly in moments of international tension like the present.

Those who have attended the secret conferences between the President and some of the Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee say they have heard no more captious or vitriolic criticisms of the government's policies than are voiced by Democrats in those meetings.

Fear of a Wedge

If the advice of some of them were followed, America would gradually appease the Communists by a series of "disengagement" moves that spell "peace at any price." But it is not harmful for such opinions to be expressed in private, obviously partisan as they are. What is more damaging is when public speeches give aid and comfort to the Communists and encourage them to believe they can drive a wedge between the American government and the people.

Unity and patriotism seem to be obsolete words among the politicians today. Politics, it has often been said, should end at the water's edge, but this is not an era when much attention is being paid to that estimable maxim.

As for political ambassadors, the Democrats had better be careful what they do lest they discourage the flow of campaign contributions in 1960. Many a successful business man who is close to the age of retirement likes to think of an appointment to an embassy abroad where he and his wife can see something of the diplomatic whirl. The record will show that tens of thousands of dollars were contributed in past campaigns by Democrats who became ambassadors later on. Many of them were really successful at their jobs and some stayed on as "career" men.

As a matter of fact, a man of wide business experience, accostumed to dealing with people in large transactions, has a more acute knowledge of human nature sometimes than a diplomat trained for foreign service work as a lifetime occupation. It is true that some of the politically appointed ambassadors are duds, but the percentage is small. It might be added that some of the "career" men are not always as effective as they should be, despite their years of training.

In the early days of the reunblic, men like Benjamin Franklin or John Jay, who later became Chief Justice, were not the usual type found in the diplomatic service, but they did creditable work for the United States in their posts abroad.

There are many able men who have come up from the ranks as "career" men in the diplomatic service. Some of them have reached top posts and have distinguished themselves in tough situations. Many of them are unsung heroes whose accomplishments are rarely the subject of publicity.

'Risks' Exaggerated

But it is also true that some of the Ambassadors appointed from the business or academic world have throughout American history rendered valuable service and won the admiration of foreign governments.

The so-called "politically appointed" ambassador always has at his side a number of trained diplomats in his embassy and no ambassador worth his salt would take important steps without consulting his counsellor and other high officers of the mission. The so-called "risks" in political ambassadorships have often been exaggerated.

Theoretically, politics shouldn't have anything to do with the operation of government. But if that precept be taken literally, the first people who ought to practice self-denial are the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The millennium might be reached also if the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic National Committees were to proclaim solemnly some day that to the victor the spoils do not belong and that only "career" men in the diplomatic service can do no wrong.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

More blood will flow before Fidel Castro takes off his whiskers and permits the world, and particularly the Cuban people, to look him in the face. This hysterical, womanish Fuehrer-Duce has had a season of gory exultation at the expense of Cuban patriots who, in time to come, will be heroes in the hearts of men. The films of those terrible lynchings will never be expunged and future generations of Cuban men and boys may salute exemplars of patriotic bravery and uncompromising manhood whom other nations may respect as great Cubans. Far from degrading the Chief of Police of Santa Clara who walked to the wall and stood with his hat on, glaring with contempt at tremulous musketeers, Castro enshrined a man whose eyes looked past the firing squad straight into the eyes of Castro.

It is written that the men who were lynched by Castro's rabble had been guilty of "war crimes". Not to delve into the terrible precedents of Nurenberg, be it observed that such brutality in Cuba was not confined to Batista's side. It never is. We saw tumult and terror in our own country in the years under Roosevelt's goons and it goes without saying that guilt was as bad on the rebel's side as on Batista's. Such armies always attract riff-raff motivated by lust and the personal hatred of the low-lived for superior people. We eagerly believed this of Mussolini's Black Shirts and Hitler's Brown Shirts.

In Cuba, Batista's army unlike the Duce's and Hitler's, was basically the Army of the Republic. Of course, the soldiers shot rebels and dug them out at night. They shot even women. Didn't flippant, wanton females show up in the news-pictures amid the whiskered marauders when at last the poltroon Batista ran away, leaving not his personal army but the loyal Cuban Army to the mercy of the mob? If women shoot loyal government soldiers from concealment, are women to be spared when they are caught?

Castro's unsteadiness was shown at its worst when he turned his back on his responsibilities and his opportunity to be a great, merciful leader of his afflicted people and ran off to Venezuela to kick up cheap publicity. A good man would have remained in Cuba to keep order among a following known to him for its content of looters and licentious bums.

Lincoln said "With charity for all and malice toward none" and General Grant took Lee's surrender in the genteel tradition of the professional soldier toward a defeated enemy, saying "Let us have peace." Had Castro possessed the faintest sentiment of decent leadership he was bound to keep his rabble under control as he easily could have, knowing how responsive such rabble always are to authority enforced by the firing squad. Even Batista, cheap and greedy as he is, could have been spared to a long future of ignomity and contempt slinking through the streets of Havana in some clownish uniform. But now the precedent of bloody lynching may be honored by the next wave of the incessant revolution in Cuba with Castro in flight.

A great opportunity was rudely kicked away which might have aroused in millions of Latin Americans and North Americans, too, a feeling, long lost to this world, of compassion toward foes who fought bravely for their altars.

It is one thing to let whiskers grow in the field when a hunted man must use all his time and energy for the war. But whiskers are not Cuban and razors, soap and water are as common there as they are in the United States. Soon the bearded ones will be picked out for derision and Castro's dark wispy thicket will be remembered as the trademark of a fellow who lacked confidence in the masculinity of his true features.

We see specimens of similar visage on Second and Third Avenues and in Greenwich Village after dark nowadays, identified also by tight pants and see-more jackets. The cops have a word for them. So have normal, masculine men and most of the women of this candid time.

We had only one capital "war crime" in the United States to expiate the valor and fidelity to homeland which tainted all the soldiers of the Confederacy. Jeff Davis was released untried and even uncharged after months of detention in Fortress Monroe.

But Captain Wirz, the commandant of the Confederate prison camp at Andersonville, the only enemy put to death for a "war crime," was hanged because Grant had decided in the last year of the war to stop exchanging prisoners with the South. So the South retaliated and Andersonville became a horror. Wirz was sacrified in reflex consequence of Grant's military decision—and We Went Marching On.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 13, 1959

NATIONAL GUARD RECORD

Each year on Washington's Birthday it is the custom of the National Guardsmen throughout the nation to observe Muster Day in honor of our first president. It is always a proud occasion for those 470,000 citizen-soldiers, because theirs is a great heritage.

The 156th Field Artillery Battalion will observe Muster Day at the New York State Armory here on Monday evening, February 23 in conjunction with the observance. Brig. General John J. Fitzgerald, commanding general, II Corps Artillery, New York Army National Guard will review the entire battalion from Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

Congressman J. Ernest Wharton will be the guest of honor for the ceremonies, which will include an historic pageant, "Muskets to Missiles," tracing the history of the famed unit.

This year the National Guard has added reason for being proud. The Guard now has reached the pinnacle of its training and readiness and it is better equipped, trained and organized than ever before. This is not just a matter of opinion, it is an established fact, recognized by the Department of Defense. Here are some of the Guard's recent accomplishments to support such a statement.

The Army National Guard is now conducting all of its training on the unit level. This is possible because more than 80 per cent of the Guard's enlisted men are basically trained and qualified in their military specialties.

The Air National Guard's combat squadrons are now 100 per cent jet equipped. Some of its units are even flying the supersonic F-100 aircraft.

The National Guard—Army and Air—is the first reserve component in United States history to be equipped with guided missiles.

Twenty-two squadrons of the Air National Guard are today participating in the air defense of the nation, keeping planes and pilots in readiness 24 hours a day in case of an attack.

The Army National Guard is now converting all of its 21 infantry and six armored divisions to the Army's new pentomic divisional organization in preparation for the atomic battlefield.

Forty-two States are now operating their own National Guard Officer Candidate Schools under the guidance of the Active Army. Direct commissioning has become a thing of the past in the Guard.

This is an impressive record of accomplishment, one which justifies the Guard's claim of being a modern fighting force. The National Guard honors its past, to be sure, but it lives for its future. At no time has it ever claimed the right to exist simply because it has always existed.

We salute the National Guard on this Muster Day 1959.

The woman next door says it is inconsistent to give hurricanes feminine names when everybody knows males do all the chasing.

SPEED TRAP WARNING

The American Automobile Association reports that speed traps are operating briskly between Chicago and Southern resorts, with some new tricks added to fool unwary motorists. The report reflects complaints of drivers who have been stung.

Our feelings about speed traps are somewhat mixed. We don't think the onerous term should be stretched to cover vigorous enforcement of traffic laws. Such enforcement is highly desirable. Some drivers press their luck as well as their accelerators, and then yell "speed trap" when they are caught heavy-footed.

We have little patience, though, with a town that sets a tricky net for the out-of-state driver and socks him with a heavy fine that he can't take time to fight in the courts. Running that sort of speed trap is a base and degrading racket.

'These Days'

NIXON VS. LYNDON JOHNSON

As the 1960 Presidential election begins to emerge, many persons are trying to focus attention upon themselves. The managers of Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York have put an organization into the field to blitz the nomination for him. The Democrats have a plethora of candidates. From the standpoint of the best interests of the United States, it would seem at this moment that if the Republicans nominated Vice President Richard Nixon and if the Democrats nominated Senator Lyndon Johnson, we might again have a two-party debate and an opportunity for the people to make a selection without disadvantage no matter which one was elected.

Vice President Nixon has matured during the past six years from a provincial member of Congress, eager to become a Senator, to one of the leading and most useful statesmen our country has at this time. Lyndon Johnson has emerged in the United States Senate not only as a competent political leader but as a statesman who puts country above party.

Naturally, these men see life from different standpoints. I shall not attribute their differences to the fact that one is a Republican and the other a Democrat, which has become meaningless in American politics. There are other important distinctions in personality; Nixon hails from California; Johnson from Texas. Johnson became administrative clerk to Congressman Richard Kleberg and had an intimate view of legislative procedures before he became a member of the House of Representatives and a Senator; Nixon moved in as a member of the House of Representatives, became a Senator and Vice President. Johnson has never served in any Administrative capacity; neither has Nixon, but in the Eisenhower Administration, he sits in the Cabinet and serves in many capacities for the President. Johnson and Nixon are both extraordinarily wise in the ways of American politics. Nixon's ideal of a political leader is Theodore Roosevelt, a pragmatist who having set himself a goal, found a method for getting there; Johnson was trained in the New Deal era, the period of transition from idealistic capitalism to the uncertainties of socialized capitalism.

In American affairs, the Texans are playing a most unusual role. Whereas they are Southerners, they nevertheless are nationalistically American. They do not sacrifice the Union in the contest over Negro rights. The result is that the Texans have become the leaders in both houses. Due to the varieties of Eisenhower emotionalism, Richard Nixon has been forced to assume an unusual leadership in the Republican Party—a leadership generally held by the President. His principal political opponent was Sherman Adams and his particular clique. Due to the collapse of the Adlai Stevenson influence in the Democratic Party and the attempt of the Americans for Democratic Action to gain control of the machinery of the Democratic Party, Lyndon Johnson has had to assume a leadership which extends beyond the floor of the Senate.

Lyndon Johnson's nomination is most likely to be bitterly opposed by the A.D.A. element who are now advocating the candidacy of Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota; Richard Nixon's candidacy will be most opposed by the Rockefeller element in the Republican Party. It is a curiosity of American politics that the same elements which support Humphrey against Johnson are supporting Rockefeller against Nixon.

However, Humphrey attempted a political tour de force by an interview with Khrushchev, a huge magazine article on the subject which really said nothing and a Khrushchev ridicule of the article which was inevitable. Precisely what Humphrey expected to accomplish by this, it is difficult to see. Rockefeller proceeded to antagonize everybody in New York State by a tax program which does not make either economic or political sense. Even if the program were sound, which it is not, Rockefeller's handling of it and of the press has been amateurish and arbitrary and would indicate a lack of political savvy, not only on his part, but on the part of his galaxy of advisers. Before a man can establish himself as strong in politics, he needs to be wise.

It would seem therefore that the candidates will still be Nixon and Johnson, although in both parties a sharp struggle continues between the conservatives and liberals, each side crossing over into both parties. The liberals are, for instance, through the A.D.A., really attempting to produce a one party system here.

Numerous Factors Can Be Cause of Chronic Diarrhea

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Any diarrhea which lasts more than a few hours or days can be called chronic. Someone with this difficulty suffers great inconvenience and always feels run down and uncomfortable.

Chronic infection with germs or with amebae (which are small animal parasites) are often responsible for this kind of difficulty. In such cases, examination of the intestinal waste for these microscopic enemies should reveal the cause. Proper treatment can then be begun.

One variety of chronic diarrhea is produced by an ulceration of the lower intestines. The cause of this condition is not known, but many small ulcers form in the intestine and these are associated with diarrhea, bleeding, irritation and other distressing symptoms.

Probably the most common variety of chronic diarrhea, however, is of nervous origin. Many people who do not have an infection in the intestine or any other obvious cause for chronic diarrhea develop this condition whenever under emotional strain.

The reason is probably because the nerves which go to the intestines and cause the wave-like motions which force the waste material through the bowel are governed largely by the emotions.

When a person with a "nervous" constitution becomes excited or upset the nerve control of the intestines is also disturbed. Under such circumstances the wavelike motions of the intestines increase, forcing the waste material through too fast and diarrhea results.

There are rare causes for chronic diarrhea also. Diarrhea may follow operations on the stomach and is often present in cancer of the bowel. Certain diseases of the body as a whole, such as allergy, toxic goiter or diabetes can also cause diarrhea.

The greatest danger from chronic diarrhea lies in the fact that many people think it is not important and try to cure themselves. Several drugs may help for a short time, but if there is any serious condition responsible for the diarrhea, it is dangerous to postpone thorough examination and accurate diagnosis.

An interesting report has been made recently on a more acute form of diarrhea which frequently affects travelers from North America in foreign lands. In Mexico it is sometimes called the Aztec curse, Montezuma's revenge, the tourist disease, and there and elsewhere it has many other colorful names. It can be either a mild or explosive illness.

In this study, the common germs, or animal parasites, found in other forms of diarrhea could not be identified. Suspicion was cast on foods containing toxins such as those produced by the staphylococcus germ.

However, the exact cause still remains uncertain. Attempts to prevent these attacks among students from North America in Mexico City with various preparations were only partially successful. It certainly would be nice if this common travelers' disease could be prevented.

Washington News

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is no accident that Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri turns up in first place in the recent Congressional Quarterly poll of Democratic presidential possibilities. For more than a year it has been apparent to political observers that "Stu" is a candidate on whom most factions of the party can agree.

He comes from a border state. He has never carried a torch for civil rights. But he has a good record on it, furthering integration in his own business and as former secretary of the Air Force.

Coming from the eighth-ranking agricultural state, and that in the Midwest, he is acceptable to the farm belt. He is an active member of Senate Agriculture Committee.

Because of his work for flood control, navigation and public works in the Missouri valley, he can claim common interest with reclamation states of the west.

HAVING BEEN BORN in Massachusetts, educated in Baltimore schools and at Yale, he can pass as an easterner.

He was a successful businessman — president of Emerson Electric—which makes him acceptable to other executive types who fear Democratic left-wing radicalism.

In fact, Stuart Symington is probably a millionaire. When he first came to Washington in 1945 as chairman of Surplus Property Board, he sold all his stock in Emerson. The money was put in trust. He has lived off his income since then, in addition to his government salaries. The only business connection he has retained is as a board member of Merchants Trust in St. Louis.

Yet he is acceptable to labor. As Emerson's president he installed a profit-sharing plan, put in dues checkoff and built up the union — International Electrical Workers—who in 1949 made him an honorary member.

He is, moreover, tall and handsome, which doesn't hurt with the women's vote. He is now only 57, in good health.

He has a fine family. His wife is daughter of the late Sen. Jim Wadsworth of New York. The Symingtons have two fine sons, Stuart Jr., and Jim, both lawyers, married to good-looking wives. There are five grandchildren.

THE FAMILY PORTRAIT, printed all over Missouri in 1958, probably won him as many votes as anything he said.

He is a nice guy. He has no particular enemies. There isn't anything the matter with him politically except that—somehow—he has never aroused anyone to high-pitch enthusiasm as a top-rank statesman and world leader.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle he has to overcome is to quit being thought of as a compromise candidate — the second choice on other candidate's lists.

He used to read his ghost-written speeches in an uninspiring way, his eyes glued to his text. This was true all through the seven years he was a bureaucrat in Washington.

When he first jumped into politics, running for the U. S. Senate in 1952, his eastern accent did not sound right to Missouri ears. He was regarded as something of a carpetbagger for he had lived in Missouri only since 1938.

But he learned his politics from the grass roots up. He started by calling on all the country chairman. He still makes it a rule to get to every Missouri district every year.

In his 1958 campaign for re-election, the senator spoke off the cuff more and got his messages across better. It was a shirtsleeve campaign in which the usually Ivy League-looking senator leveled with dirt farmers in Harry Truman style. He won by 150,000 in 1952. In 1958 it was 350,000.

SENATOR SYMINGTON is best known in Washington as foremost critic of Eisenhower administration defense policies. He speaks with experience here for he was Air Force secretary and National Security Resources Board chairman under President Truman.

This could be the basis of a Symington bid for national attention as a presidential candidate. But the Republican reply to it is that Symington was a "failure" as Air Force secretary for not starting the missile program.

Up to now, Senator Symington his disavowed that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination. He has no organization. He has said frankly, however, that the nomination is an honor which no man could refuse.

His position will shake down in the next year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Leider, youthful producer who successfully steered Sir John Gielgud's recent one-man cross-country tour, is lining up a similar reading venture for next season. But instead of Shakespeare, the subject matter will be the writings of Tennessee Williams. Casting has not yet been set for the project, but two performers probably will be used.

Ancient Controversy Over Ambassador Is On Again

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The age-old controversy over the kind of individuals who should be appointed as ambassadors abroad—those with political influence or "career" men—has bobbed up once more.

Strange vaporings of piety are issuing from the holy precincts of the Democratic party on Capitol Hill, especially from the supposedly unpolitical and unpartisan membership of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Theoretically, anyone who has a hand in influencing our foreign relations should be non-political. But, to help accomplish such a utopian state, it would be necessary to ordain that members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee should themselves take some kind of Socratic oath to bar politics from their comments on world policy, particularly in moments of international tension like the present.

Those who have attended the secret conferences between the President and some of the Democratic members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee say they have heard no more captious or vitriolic criticisms of the government's policies than are voiced by Democrats in those meetings.

Fear of a Wedge

If the advice of some of them were followed, America would gradually appease the Communists by a series of "disengagement" moves that spell "peace at any price." But it is not harmful for such opinions to be expressed in private, obviously partisan as they are. What is more damaging is when public speeches give aid and comfort to the Communists and encourage them to believe they can drive a wedge between the American government and the people.

Unity and patriotism seem to be obsolete words among the politicians today. Politics, it has often been said, should end at the water's edge, but this is not an era when much attention is being paid to that estimable maxim.

As for political ambassadors, the Democrats had better be careful what they do lest they discourage the flow of campaign contributions in 1960. Many a successful business man who is close to the age of retirement likes to think of an appointment to an embassy abroad where he and his wife can see something of the diplomatic whirl. The record will show that tens of thousands of dollars were contributed in past campaigns by Democrats who became ambassadors later on. Many of them were really successful at their jobs and some stayed on as "career" men.

As a matter of fact, a man of wide business experience, accostumed to dealing with people in large transactions, has a more acute knowledge of human nature sometimes than a diplomat trained for foreign service work as a lifetime occupation. It is true that some of the politically appointed ambassadors are duds, but the percentage is small. It might be added that some of the "career" men are not always as effective as they should be, despite their years of training.

In the early days of the republic, men like Benjamin Franklin or John Jay, who later became Chief Justice, were not the usual type found in the diplomatic service, but they did creditable work for the United States in their posts abroad.

There are many able men who have come up from the ranks as "career" men in the diplomatic service. Some of them have reached top posts and have distinguished themselves in tough situations. Many of them are unsung heroes whose accomplishments are rarely the subject of publicity.

'Risks' Exaggerated

But it is also true that some of the Ambassadors appointed from the business or academic world have throughout American history rendered valuable service and won the admiration of foreign governments.

The so-called "politically appointed" ambassador always has at his side a number of trained diplomats in his embassy and no ambassador worth his salt would take important steps without consulting his counsellor and other high officers of the mission. The so-called "risks" in political ambassadorships have often been exaggerated.

Theoretically, politics shouldn't have anything to do with the operation of government. But if that precept be taken literally, the first people who ought to practice self-denial are the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The millennium might be reached also if the chairmen of the Republican and Democratic National Committees were to proclaim solemnly some day that to the victor the spoils do not belong and that only "career" men in the diplomatic service can do no wrong.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

More blood will flow before Fidel Castro takes off his whiskers and permits the world, and particularly the Cuban people, to look him in the face. This hysterical, womanish Fuehrer-Duce has had a season of gory exultation at the expense of Cuban patriots who, in time to come, will be heroes in the hearts of men. The films of those terrible lynchings will never be expunged and future generations of Cuban men and boys may salute exemplars of patriotic bravery and uncompromising manhood whom other nations may respect as great Cubans. Far from degrading the Chief of Police of Santa Clara who walked to the wall and stood with his hat on, glaring with contempt at tremulous musketeers, Castro enshrined a man whose eyes looked past the firing squad straight into the eyes of Castro.

It is written that the men who were lynched by Castro's rabble had been guilty of "war crimes". Not to delve into the terrible precedents of Nurenberg, be it observed that such brutality in Cuba was not confined to Batista's side. It never is. We saw tumult and terror in our own country in the years under Roosevelt's goons and it goes without saying that guilt was as bad on the rebel's side as on Batista's. Such armies always attract riff-raff motivated by lust and the personal hatred of the low-lived for superior people. We eagerly believed this of Mussolini's Black Shirts and Hitler's Brown Shirts.

In Cuba, Batista's army unlike the Duce's and Hitler's, was basically the Army of the Republic. Of course, the soldiers shot rebels and dug them out at night. They shot even women. Didn't flippant, wanton females show up in the news-pictures amid the whiskered marauders when at last the poltroon Batista ran away, leaving not his personal army but the loyal Cuban Army to the mercy of the mob? If women shoot loyal government soldiers from concealment, are women to be spared when they are caught?

Castro's unsteadiness was shown at its worst when he turned his back on his responsibilities and his opportunity to be a great, merciful leader of his afflicted people and ran off to Venezuela to kick up cheap publicity. A good man would have remained in Cuba to keep order among a following known to him for its content of looters and licentious bums.

Lincoln said "With charity for all and malice toward none" and General Grant took Lee's surrender in the genteel tradition of the professional soldier toward a defeated enemy, saying "Let us have peace." Had Castro possessed the faintest sentiment of decent leadership he was bound to keep his rabble under control as he easily could have, knowing how responsive such rabble always are to authority enforced by the firing squad. Even Batista, cheap and greedy as he is, could have been spared to a long future of ignominy and contempt slinking through the streets of Havana in some clownish uniform. But now the precedent of bloody lynching may be honored by the next wave of the incessant revolution in Cuba with Castro in flight.

A great opportunity was rudely kicked away which might have aroused in millions of Latin Americans and North Americans, too, a feeling, long lost to this world, of compassion toward foes who fought bravely for their altars.

It is one thing to let whiskers grow in the field when a hunted man must use all his time and energy for the war. But whiskers are not Cuban and razors, soap and water are as common there as they are in the United States. Soon the bearded ones will be picked out for derision and Castro's dark wispy thicket will be remembered as the trademark of a fellow who lacked confidence in the masculinity of his true features.

We see specimens of similar visage on Second and Third Avenues and in Greenwich Village after dark nowadays, identified also by tight pants and see-more jackets. The cops have a word for them. So have normal, masculine men and most of the women of this candid time.

We had only one capital "war crime" in the United States to expiate the valor and fidelity to homeland which tainted all the soldiers of the Confederacy. Jeff Davis was released untried and even uncharged after months of detention in Fortress Monroe.

But Captain Wirz, the commandant of the Confederate prison camp at Andersonville, the only enemy put to death for a "war crime," was hanged because Grant had decided in the last year of the war to stop exchanging prisoners with the South. So the South retaliated and Andersonville became a horror. Wirz was sacrified in reflex consequence of Grant's military decision—and We Went Marching On.

Speaker Gives Reasons For Big Welfare Costs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Tensions and conflicts in a community are reflected in periodic attacks on welfare administration, an official of a private charity organization says.

Lowell Iberg, deputy executive director of the State Charities Aid Assn., said Thursday night that public welfare's major problems were much like those of a community itself.

He told a meeting of the New York Public Welfare Assn. the problems included increasing numbers of elderly persons, chronic illness, rising illegitimacy rates at all social levels and changing community patterns arising from the growing mobility of the population.

The installation took place at a meeting of editors of 20 corporations with Treasury officials. They discussed methods to promote the savings bond program.

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

I have heard it said, that years ago, children did not go to school when they were very young. I have an old Columbian spelling book, which "contains the elements of the English Language, a classification of the alphabet; an easy system of spelling and pronunciation; interspersed with easy ready lessons, to which are added a variety of new and useful tables, with a list of proper names, extracted from geography and the Sacred Scriptures, and pronounced and agreeably to the best authorities." It is by Daniel Crandall, stereotyped and sold by H. & E. Phinney at Cooperstown, dated 1839, just 120 years ago.

Section XI rreads "The Good Boy and Gil, a story. Mr. Goodman has two children, a son and a daughter; the boy's name is Orlando, and the girl's is Clarinda. At the age of four years, they began to go to school. Orlando, at the age of six years, could spell all the words in his book, and could read very prettily; and at the age of eight years, he could read all the stories in his father's library, and had learned the rudiments of English grammar."

The 120 year old speller goes on with the story: "Clarinda is two years younger. She, at the age of six, could spell and read, and could work very prettily with her needle. . . . Mr. Goodman promised Orlando, when he commenced going to school, that if he would be a good boy and learn well, he should at the age of eight have a better present than any other boy in the village."

"Accordingly, Mr. Goodman consulted the mind of Orlando, to know what occupation he would wish to follow when he should become a man. Orlando chose that of farming; so Mr. Goodman ordered his gardener to prepare him a garden."

The story goes on: "The gardener was to plant in this garden every kind of esculent roots, flowering shrubs and plants, that are cultivated in America; also to plant a nursery, which should contain all kinds of fruit trees that he could procure . . . Mrs. Goodman also had promised to Clarinda a fine present, on condition of excellence in behavior and learning. She received from her mama a nice doll, with a variety of other wax figures, and a complete set of small china dishes. Orlando and Clarinda are now placed at a grammar school, where they make greater proficiency than any of their classmates."

"Orlando spends his mornings and evenings, except when reading, in his garden and nursery; and his papa's gardener has taught him the best method of dressing his beds, cultivating his plants, and improving the fruit of his nursery. Clarinda, while out of school, is employed in learing the different kinds of needlework and painting."

"Orlando is now twelve, and Clarinda ten years of age. Orlando already has a fruit orchard in which he has transplanted from his nursery, apple trees, peach trees, pear trees, plum trees, and cherry trees, with many others, which begin to bear. When any boy in the village is good, and his parents wish to bestow on him a favor, they cannot gratify him more highly, than in letting him visit Orlando, and see his garden. Nor does Orlando let him return, without tasting of all the various kinds of his fruit, unless he sees in him the appearance of a bad boy." Will quote the surprise ending to this 120 year old spelling book story on how a bad boy gives himself away when he enters Orlando's garden.

California Taxes Reported Highest

WASHINGTON (AP) — California's state and local taxes on its residents are the highest of any state, the Census Bureau says.

Based on levies in fiscal 1957, the California taxes for every man, woman and child totaled $238 each a year. New York State and Nevada per capita taxes were the second highest, at $229, the bureau reported Thursday.

Arkansas had the lowest per capita tax load—$100 a year.

New York had the largest long-term debt outstanding. It figured out to $569 a person. The District of Columbia was the lowest at $46.

Next Week Proclaimed Period for Brotherhood

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today proclaimed next week as Brotherhood Week in New York State.

He said that the spirit of the occasion could be found in joint gatherings of religious congregations of different faiths.

Rockefeller noted that some communities hold these every year. "The wide following of that example would be for the good of us all," he added.

Speaker Gives Reasons For Big Welfare Costs

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Tensions and conflicts in a community are reflected in periodic attacks on welfare administration, an official of a private charity organization says.

Lowell Iberg, deputy executive director of the State Charities Aid Assn., said Thursday night that public welfare's major problems were much like those of a community itself.

He told a meeting of the New York Public Welfare Assn. the problems included increasing numbers of elderly persons, chronic illness, rising illegitimacy rates at all social levels and changing community patterns arising from the growing mobility of the population.

"Now he looks more like a husky!"

By SOPHIE MILLER

I have heard it said, that years ago, children did not go to school when they were very young. I have an old Columbian spelling book, which "contains the elements of the English Language, a classification of the alphabet; an easy system of spelling and pronunciation; interspersed with easy ready lessons, to which are added a variety of new and useful tables, with a list of proper names, extracted from geography and the Sacred Scriptures, and pronounced and agreeably to the best authorities." It is by Daniel Crandall, stereotyped and sold by H. & E. Phinney at Cooperstown, dated 1839, just 120 years ago.

Section XI rreads "The Good Boy and Gil, a story. Mr. Goodman has two children, a son and a daughter; the boy's name is Orlando, and the girl's is Clarinda. At the age of four years, they began to go to school. Orlando, at the age of six years, could spell all the words in his book, and could read very prettily; and at the age of eight years, he could read all the stories in his father's library, and had learned the rudiments of English grammar."

The 120 year old speller goes on with the story: "Clarinda is two years younger. She, at the age of six, could spell and read, and could work very prettily with her needle. . . . Mr. Goodman promised Orlando, when he commenced going to school, that if he would be a good boy and learn well, he should at the age of eight have a better present than any other boy in the village."

"Accordingly, Mr. Goodman consulted the mind of Orlando, to know what occupation he would wish to follow when he should become a man. Orlando chose that of farming; so Mr. Goodman ordered his gardener to prepare him a garden."

The story goes on: "The gardener was to plant in this garden every kind of esculent roots, flowering shrubs and plants, that are cultivated in America; also to plant a nursery, which should contain all kinds of fruit trees that he could procure . . . Mrs. Goodman also had promised to Clarinda a fine present, on condition of excellence in behavior and learning. She received from her mama a nice doll, with a variety of other wax figures, and a complete set of small china dishes. Orlando and Clarinda are now placed at a grammar school, where they make greater proficiency than any of their classmates."

"Orlando spends his mornings and evenings, except when reading, in his garden and nursery; and his papa's gardener has taught him the best method of dressing his beds, cultivating his plants, and improving the fruit of his nursery. Clarinda, while out of school, is employed in learing the different kinds of needlework and painting."

"Orlando is now twelve, and Clarinda ten years of age. Orlando already has a fruit orchard in which he has transplanted from his nursery, apple trees, peach trees, pear trees, plum trees, and cherry trees, with many others, which begin to bear. When any boy in the village is good, and his parents wish to bestow on him a favor, they cannot gratify him more highly, than in letting him visit Orlando, and see his garden. Nor does Orlando let him return, without tasting of all the various kinds of his fruit, unless he sees in him the appearance of a bad boy." Will quote the surprise ending to this 120 year old spelling book story on how a bad boy gives himself away when he enters Orlando's garden.

California Taxes Reported Highest

WASHINGTON (AP) — California's state and local taxes on its residents are the highest of any state, the Census Bureau says.

Based on levies in fiscal 1957, the California taxes for every man, woman and child totaled $238 each a year. New York State and Nevada per capita taxes were the second highest, at $229, the bureau reported Thursday.

Arkansas had the lowest per capita tax load—$100 a year.

New York had the largest long-term debt outstanding. It figured out to $569 a person. The District of Columbia was the lowest at $46.

Next Week Proclaimed Period for Brotherhood

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller today proclaimed next week as Brotherhood Week in New York State.

He said that the spirit of the occasion could be found in joint gatherings of religious congregations of different faiths.

Rockefeller noted that some communities hold these every year. "The wide following of that example would be for the good of us all," he added.

Dulles Operation Is Successful

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today underwent a successful operation for hernia.

State Department press chief Lincoln White announced the surgery was successful and Dulles' immediate postoperative condition was quite satisfactory.

White said tissue and fluid were removed during the operation "for microscopical examination."

Such an examination would be to determine whether there was a cancerous condition.

White said Dulles was on the operating table less than an hour.

White's announcement to newsmen was made at the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center. The operation was performed there by the hospital commandant, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton.

White indicated no word had come from the doctors on the results of the examination of tissues and fluids.

Word that surgery had begun was relayed to newsmen around 8:10 a. m.

The announcement of results came about 2½ hours later.

Traveling . . .

morning and his car struck a pedestrian on Albany Avenue Extension after his car was involved with another in a collision.

Bruno said his car struck Josephine Krusher, of Albany Avenue Extension as she was walking on the shoulder of the road. Bruno's report said the woman claimed no injuries.

Bruno said he was driving south when his car was involved in a collision with another operated by William P. O'Dea, of 84 West O'Reilly Street.

The report said Bruno turned to the right to avoid the O'Dea car and struck the woman. Bruno said it was icy and he was unable to stop.

Second School Closing

Public and parochial schools were closed for the day because of hazardous traveling.

Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of the Kingston Consolidated School District, early this morning reported that it was hoped schools could be opened by 10 o'clock. He announced at 8:15 a. m., however, that decision had been reached to close for the day.

It marked the second day this week that icy conditions forced the closing of schools for the day.

Pedestrians found the going no easier than motorists when they headed for work this morning, and despite cautious steps many skittered along city sidewalks.

Buses Delayed Two Hours

The Kingston City Transportation Corp. called a halt to service early this morning with a disruption of service reported on most lines for approximately two hours.

A spokesman for the company said the Broadway run was back in service at 8:30 a. m., the Washington-Foxhall, and Hasbrouck Avenue lines were back in service at 9:30 a. m., and the Wilbur Avenue line was to resume early this afternoon.

Area state police reported traveling throughout the sector as hazardous and warned against unnecessary travel. By mid-morning, however, a check with troopers at sub-stations in the county disclosed that it was "breaking up," sanding crews were out, but some "side roads" were described as still "bad."

The icy click was formed by a freezing rain, and sanding operations were made difficult by the rainfall which washed away the sand as it fell.

Convict Changes Plea

BONIFAY, Fla. (AP) — A Negro ex-convict returned from New York to face two charges of murder and one of rape changed his plea from innocent to guilty in a surprise move Thursday.

Caracas Watches Reds

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Troops and police stood guard today against the threats of Communists and rightists to disrupt the austerity inauguration of President Romulo Betancourt.

Betancourt, 50, a moderate leftist and political veteran, is Venezuela's first freely elected president in 10 years. The leader of the Democratic Action party, he is opposed by supporters of ousted dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, Caracans who voted heavily for the leader of the junta which replaced Perez Jimenez, and the Reds.

Testimony Ends

Wicks had not been before the special grand jury and he had not investigated Wicks's bank accounts.

The question of immunity was never discussed in the case of Edwin W. Ashby, Tompkins said.

At one point in the examination Senator Tompkins said he had told defense counsel Paul Rosen that he had told Rosen he believed Ashby was the "bagman" for either Harry Barieka or Senator Wicks. He said that if it were shown that Senator Wicks trusted Ashby sufficiently to send him to Troy to cash large checks "there was no reason in the world he (Ashby) would not bring back the money to Wicks."

Has No Witness

Tompkins said he told Rosen he had no witness to tell where the money went because Ashby had told him he gave it "back to a dead man" (Buckley).

Asked if Senator Wicks was within the scope of the investigation, the witness said "very definitely."

He said Barieka's bank accounts had been investigated at length before October 2 when Ashby appeared before the grand jury.

"Did you make similar investigation of Wick's financial accounts?" Haver asked.

"No," replied Tompkins. He said he had expected to bring him before the grand jury and question him about his finances. Wicks had offered to appear until Haver directed him as counsel not to appear.

Tompkins said Wicks could be brought before the grand jury but he need not testify unless he were granted immunity.

"That we would not do," Tompkins said.

Haver had represented Wicks as counsel Tompkins said. He was told so by both Haver and Wicks in October. That was the first time he knew it.

Senator Tompkins said it was brought to his attention late in December or early in January that Haver was no longer attorney for Senator Wicks.

The witness was asked if Ashby had not been told to appear before the grand jury on Oct. 23, had waited all day and was not called. Tompkins said it was true. There were other witnesses before the grand jury that day, including Morgan D. Ryan.

The first the prosecution knew Ashby wanted to appear to purge himself was on Oct. 27 when he gave the grand jury a letter which contained that statement.

Didn't Check on Wicks

"When you found these large checks had not found their way into Ashby's account, did you attempt to see if they ever got into Senator Wicks' account?" Haver asked.

"No," replied the witness.

At various times during the examination of Senator Tompkins there were objections by Haver in regard to "explanations" and "statements" by the witness.

Senator Tompkins in reply to a question by Assistant Attorney General Leonard Reisman said Clinton Furman had refused to testify before the grand jury, had taken advantage of his constitutional rights, but had been granted immunity in open court and had later appeared.

"Why did you not investigate financial accounts of Wicks," asked Haver.

"The first time I learned of Wicks' connection in regard to the Buckley checks was on Oct. 7 when I was told by his attorney, Rosen," Tompkins replied.

Senator Tompkins referred to a visit to his office by Haver. Haver at that time said Wicks had come to see him about appearing before the grand jury and he had advised him not to appear.

Became Emotional

"Haver became very emotional, and there were tears in his eyes" the witness said.

He told Tompkins of his long association with Senator Wicks, said that Wicks had "carried him in his arms when he was a baby" and he would not permit him to go before the grand jury.

There was conversation about Buckley, Tompkins said. Haver asked if he had told Tompkins on that visit that Wicks knew Buckley and that Wicks was "going to have a talk with him." This was denied by the witness.

"Did I say that if Wicks appeared and he said he did not know Buckley they could be proven false," asked Haver.

"You did not say anything about that" the witness replied.

"Did you do any thing since Wicks did not go before the grand jury to investigate Wicks' financial records," Haver asked.

"No," the witness replied.

At the point the People rested and after Francis H. Kolts was called and identified the safe deposit records. The prosecution also rested its case.

Fire Area Hydrant Not Solidly Frozen

A hydrant on Smith Avenue at Cornell Street, which delayed firemen in getting water on the Thursday night fire which damaged the shipping room of E. H. Kirkpatrick & Son, 124 Smith Avenue, was not solidly frozen, it was learned today.

Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, today noted that regular inspections are made of hydrants, especially to determine if they are frozen, and he learned from Fire Chief James M. Brett, that the operating nut, and not the hydrant itself, was frozen Thursday night. The hydrant was used in fighting the blaze, which because of chemicals, hampered the work of firemen.

A satisfactory report was given after inspection of the hydrant Monday, Cloonan said, but after the reported difficulty experienced by firemen, it was found that a small accumulation of ice had formed. The city's hydrants are self-drained, and no water forms in the barrel unless a valve is operated.

Mayor, DA . . .

other misguided or misinformed crusader.

"My reply to the Police Board will be made personally to that board when and if they acknowledge my long standing request to do so. Until I have had this opportunity I do not intend to make any further comment upon the request of the Police Board."

Says Copies Sent

The mayor said he had first become aware of the situation Jan. 10, and he "immediately on Monday informed the officer that he wanted the complete story. This led to the filing of statements by the officers, copies of which I have supplied to the district attorney."

The officers said to be involved were John Houghtaling and John Turck.

Eighmey's statement yesterday followed comments by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, minister of the Old Dutch Church, on his telephone Dial-A-Prayer series.

"On January 13," the mayor said, "he and Acting Chief Robert F. Murphy fully acquainted Mr. Mino with all of the facts of this case as we knew them. The district attorney claimed no knowledge of it at that time, but indicated an investigation would be made."

Told Board: Radel

When no action came, said the mayor, "I brought the matter to the attention of the entire police board. I feel that this type of treatment of our patrolmen by a public official has a tremendous adverse affect on the attitude of the men of our department. I instructed the officer that even though his job was threatened, he should be assured that I would back him up in making legitimate and necessary arrests, and I would defend his action."

"We have spent many months building up the department as it now stands. I do not want activities of this nature to jeopardize the results of that work," he said.

The mayor said that he and Eighmey at a board meeting agreed that the case should be released immediately to the public, but opposition by one commissioner thwarted that action. In the interest of unanimity, a direct approach to the district attorney's office was then decided upon.

Cites Penalty

The mayor noted that "Lack of action by the officer has subjected him to penalty. The inactivity of the district attorney's office in this case, and the lack of at least supplying an answer to the charges is an inexcusable attitude. The mayor said he felt his request to replace Gotelli in city court where he deals with the police, was a logical one, but he felt it is unanswered.

"The opportunity I gave the District Attorney in a cooperative spirit has not been reciprocated with any visible action whatsoever." he said.

Japs Defy Rhee On Koreans' Move To Commie Zone

TOKYO (AP)—Japan agreed today to let poverty-stricken Koreans here go to Communist North Korea in defiance of a South Korean government warning that it would resist the transfer "with every power at its disposal."

The deepening crisis threatened to create new divisions between two of the firmest friends the United States has in the Far East. Both governments held hurried consultations with American representatives in Tokyo and Seoul.

Relations Threatened

There seemed little or no likelihood that the quarrel, so far confined to verbal blasts and implied threats from South Korea, would blow up into a shooting conflict. But there was a danger of a break in economic relations and in diplomatic negotiations going on between the two countries.

The Japanese government was moving cautiously in an obvious effort to placate—or at least not further arouse — President Syngman Rhee's government.

Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and his Cabinet after a long meeting approved Foreign Minister Aiichiro Fujiyama's recommendation for the repatriation but in effect tossed the whole scheme into the laps of the International Red Cross.

See Ultimate Slavery

Presumably North Korea will charter ships to transport those cleared for repatriation. It is understood Japan will not furnish ships, and all Japanese companies whose ships operate between Japan and South Korea have canceled sailings because of the crisis.

Rhee's government has charged that the 600,000 or more Koreans living in Japan — most of them poverty stricken and 95 per cent of them originally from South Korea—are being cajoled, threatened and bribed by North Korean sympathizers to go to the North. The South Koreans charge they will be sent into Red slavery.

DeDea Says Body

of education of the State of New York had this to say about it:

"'On the basis of this clear cut pledge on the part of the board that the will of the voters would be respected, I feel that it would be improper for me as the state chief school official to ignore the action of the voters together with the board's pledge to do so, would, in my opinion, jeopardize the good faith which may be expected of the commissioner of education and, indeed, of all government officials.

"'The issue is a moral one which neither the board nor I can escape without undermining the faith of the people in the word of all government officials.'"

DeDea said that "after all this, the commisisoner still put the city of Kingston into consolidation on January 1, 1959."

The Education Department, he said, is asking for about $64½ million more this fiscal year, $30 million of that figure to continue the eight per cent increase granted in 1958 and to continue aid to "high tax" districts.

Both programs were enacted for one school year by the 1958 legislature, he said, and the 1959 legislature is not required by law to extend the 1958 school aid increase for another school year.

By not extending it, a substantial saving of an estimated $25 million could result, DeDea said.

Don't Need Palaces

"We will need some new school buildings, there is no doubt about that due to population increases, but we do not need school buildings that resemble palaces, and buildings that are laid out so that only about 50 per cent of the space is given to the basic 'three r's,' reading, writing and arithmetic —and the rest of the space for band rooms, gymnasiums and other non-essential items."

DeDea noted what he called a trend among education groups to stress the fact that most communities can no longer absorb the education costs on a local level, but must have, so-called, state aid to continue these terrific costs.

Nothing But Refund

"These groups do not wish to tax any further on a local level because of its immediate notice —and, therefore, use the term state aid which in reality is nothing but a tax refund which all taxpayers must pay. The state has no money of its own."

Many of the members of the Kingston Civic Association are opposed "to this terrific increase" in costs of government, DeDea said.

"Not only the cost of the Department of Education, but the cost of government in general. We do hope that this board may be instrumental in reducing this terrible high $2 billion budget."

Martin Asks

ing," and refused to wait until 11:23 p. m. for the board to convene, "as had been the case on the evening before.

Leaves It to Chairman

The supervisor said that, "after a reasonable wait," he left, and "it was evidently the responsibility of the chairman of the board to call another meeting to consider items that were on Wednesday night's agenda.

Martin said that, "chafing under a continuing inability of the board to caucus and get down to the business of government," he had offered the adjournment motion Wednesday evening.

"I have felt for many months that the board has not shown a proper courtesy to the citizens and citizens groups who often wait for hours for an opportunity to appear before the board on the people's business.

Should Consider Travel

"I have also felt that the board should show consideration for those supervisors who drive for long distances, sometimes over 50 miles, over mountainous wintry roads.

"Some of them are not young men and feel a normal apprehension over possible accidents in the early morning hours on deserted roads in sub-zero temperatures.

"I also am concerned at the lot of press and radio reporters who must work through the night to meet an early morning deadline—all because the board is either not efficient enough or concerned enough to transact our business within reasonable hours."

These, in essence, were the statements Martin made Wednesday evening to the board before offering his motion for adjournment.

Says It Was Passed

"The motion was seconded, put to a vote and pased without dissent," Martin said today, "and I left the adjourned meeting promptly."

Martin declared he was "astounded to read in the press that the meeting, through some weird process, certainly not recognized in parliamentry law, presumed to go through the motions of legislation thereafter."

He noted news accounts mentioned a protest had been made to his motion and said:

"It is an axiomatic principle of parliamentary law that a motion to adjourn is never debatable. It can only be put to vote and either be accepted or rejected.

Maker Must Withdraw

"The press also spoke of a withdrawal of a second to my motion. It is my belief that such a withdrawal must be followed by a withdrawal on the part of the maker of the motion, and then only for the purpose of amendment within the broad general scope of the original motion. At any rate, it is highly unorthodox to even consider such action after the vote has been recorded.

"It is my belief," Martin said, "that any action taken by the board after my motion to adjourn was plainly illegal and unethical, and that the subjects discussed and acted upon must be again submitted for ratification before they have the substance of law.

"It is not my purpose to be insistent upon this point as a matter of obstructionism, but purely to point up the fact that the citizens of Ulster County are entitled to efficiency and orderliness in the operation of their county government.

"The time has passed, if there ever was a time, when we can afford to be casual and slipshod in running the affairs of a growing and progressive county."

Awaits Relyea Move

Martin said he would await word from the chairman of the board (Supervisor Charles Relyea, town of Hurley) as he considered that "the next move was definitely up to him."

An undercurrent of protest over the continual delayed start of the board meetings has been voiced by other members of the board from time to time, and Martin indicated Wednesday evening he was angered when he described the tardy start of meetings as a "deplorable condition . . . with both sides sitting around playing partisan politics until this late hour.

All regular meetings are called for 8 p. m., but it has been a usual practice, in deference to party caucuses, not to get underway until a considerably later hour.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled Thursday, March 12—at 8 p. m.

Sawkill Home Is Destroyed by Fire

Fire, apparently caused by a space heater explosion, destroyed the residence of Byron Gerlach, Wood Road, Sawkill, late Thursday afternoon.

The two-story frame and concrete block dwelling is located about a half-mile off the Sawkill Road, it was reported.

Mrs. Francis, Joy, wife of the chief of the Sawkill Fire Department, told The Freeman Gerlach had notified a repair service that the space heater was defective, but repairs had not been made.

Two fire companies, Sawkill and the West Hurley Fire Department battled the blaze.

Mrs. Joy said icy roads approaching the Gerlach residence and confusion in reporting the alarm impeded firemen who discovered the building "badly involved" in flames upon their arrival.

Gerlach, following the explosion, had to hurry his call to the fire department to escape the flames, Mrs. Joy said, and the location of the fire apparently was misunderstood.

Mrs. Joy quoted her husband as saying the residence was destroyed by the fire.

Dulles Operation Is Successful

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles today underwent a successful operation for hernia.

State Department press chief Lincoln White announced the surgery was successful and Dulles' immediate postoperative condition was quite satisfactory.

White said tissue and fluid were removed during the operation "for microscopical examination."

Such an examination would be to determine whether there was a cancerous condition.

White said Dulles was on the operating table less than an hour.

White's announcement to newsmen was made at the Army's Walter Reed Medical Center. The operation was performed there by the hospital commandant, Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton.

White indicated no word had come from the doctors on the results of the examination of tissues and fluids.

Word that surgery had begun was relayed to newsmen around 8:10 a. m.

The announcement of results came about 2½ hours later.

morning and his car struck a pedestrian on Albany Avenue Extension after his car was involved with another in a collision.

Bruno said his car struck Josephine Krusher, of Albany Avenue Extension as she was walking on the shoulder of the road. Bruno's report said the woman claimed no injuries.

Bruno said he was driving south when his car was involved in a collision with another operated by William P. O'Dea, of 84 West O'Reilly Street.

The report said Bruno turned to the right to avoid the O'Dea car and struck the woman. Bruno said it was icy and he was unable to stop.

Second School Closing

Public and parochial schools were closed for the day because of hazardous traveling.

Dr. Earl F. Soper, superintendent of the Kingston Consolidated School District, early this morning reported that it was hoped schools could be opened by 10 o'clock. He announced at 8:15 a. m., however, that decision had been reached to close for the day.

It marked the second day this week that icy conditions forced the closing of schools for the day.

Pedestrians found the going no easier than motorists when they headed for work this morning, and despite cautious steps many skittered along city sidewalks.

Buses Delayed Two Hours

The Kingston City Transportation Corp. called a halt to service early this morning with a disruption of service reported on most lines for approximately two hours.

A spokesman for the company said the Broadway run was back in service at 8:30 a. m., the Washington-Foxhall, and Hasbrouck Avenue lines were back in service at 9:30 a. m., and the Wilbur Avenue line was to resume early this afternoon.

Area state police reported traveling throughout the sector as hazardous and warned against unnecessary travel. By mid-morning, however, a check with troopers at sub-stations in the county disclosed that it was "breaking up," sanding crews were out, but some "side roads" were described as still "bad."

The icy click was formed by a freezing rain, and sanding operations were made difficult by the rainfall which washed away the sand as it fell.

BONIFAY, Fla. (AP) — A Negro ex-convict returned from New York to face two charges of murder and one of rape changed his plea from innocent to guilty in a surprise move Thursday.

Peterson, 27, was scheduled to face trial Monday on the three capital cases. He is charged with murdering a white farmer, Ira Gene Carnley, 27, and Carnley's daughter Ernestine, 2, last June and with raping Carnley's 21-year-old wife.

The leader of the Democratic Action party, he is opposed by supporters of ousted dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez, Caracans who voted heavily for the leader of the junta which replaced Perez Jimenez, and the Reds.

Testimony Ends

Wicks had not been before the special grand jury and he had not investigated Wicks's bank accounts.

The question of immunity was never discussed in the case of Edwin W. Ashby, Tompkins said.

At one point in the examination Senator Tompkins said he had told defense counsel Paul Rosen that he had told Rosen he believed Ashby was the "bagman" for either Harry Barieka or Senator Wicks. He said that if it were shown that Senator Wicks trusted Ashby sufficiently to send him to Troy to cash large checks "there was no reason in the world he (Ashby) would not bring back the money to Wicks."

Has No Witness

Tompkins said he told Rosen he had no witness to tell where the money went because Ashby had told him he gave it "back to a dead man" (Buckley).

Asked if Senator Wicks was within the scope of the investigation, the witness said "very definitely."

He said Barieka's bank accounts had been investigated at length before October 2 when Ashby appeared before the grand jury.

"Did you make similar investigation of Wick's financial accounts?" Haver asked.

"No," replied Tompkins. He said he had expected to bring him before the grand jury and question him about his finances. Wicks had offered to appear until Haver directed him as counsel not to appear.

Tompkins said Wicks could be brought before the grand jury but he need not testify unless he were granted immunity.

"That we would not do," Tompkins said.

Haver had represented Wicks as counsel Tompkins said. He was told so by both Haver and Wicks in October. That was the first time he knew it.

Senator Tompkins said it was brought to his attention late in December or early in January that Haver was no longer attorney for Senator Wicks.

The witness was asked if Ashby had not been told to appear before the grand jury on Oct. 23, had waited all day and was not called. Tompkins said it was true. There were other witnesses before the grand jury that day, including Morgan D. Ryan.

The first the prosecution knew Ashby wanted to appear to purge himself was on Oct. 27 when he gave the grand jury a letter which contained that statement.

Didn't Check on Wicks

"When you found these large checks had not found their way into Ashby's account, did you attempt to see if they ever got into Senator Wicks' account?" Haver asked.

"No," replied the witness.

At various times during the examination of Senator Tompkins there were objections by Haver in regard to "explanations" and "statements" by the witness.

Senator Tompkins in reply to a question by Assistant Attorney General Leonard Reisman said Clinton Furman had refused to testify before the grand jury, had taken advantage of his constitutional rights, but had been granted immunity in open court and had later appeared.

"Why did you not investigate financial accounts of Wicks," asked Haver.

"The first time I learned of Wicks' connection in regard to the Buckley checks was on Oct. 7 when I was told by his attorney, Rosen," Tompkins replied.

Senator Tompkins referred to a visit to his office by Haver. Haver at that time said Wicks had come to see him about appearing before the grand jury and he had advised him not to appear.

Became Emotional

"Haver became very emotional, and there were tears in his eyes" the witness said.

He told Tompkins of his long association with Senator Wicks, said that Wicks had "carried him in his arms when he was a baby" and he would not permit him to go before the grand jury.

There was conversation about Buckley, Tompkins said. Haver asked if he had told Tompkins on that visit that Wicks knew Buckley and that Wicks was "going to have a talk with him." This was denied by the witness.

"Did I say that if Wicks appeared and he said he did not know Buckley they could be proven false," asked Haver.

"You did not say anything about that" the witness replied.

"Did you do any thing since Wicks did not go before the grand jury to investigate Wicks' financial records," Haver asked.

"No," the witness replied.

At the point the People rested and after Francis H. Kolts was called and identified the safe deposit records. The prosecution also rested its case.

Area Accountants Schedule Speaker At Monday Session

Jerome Barnum, director of Jerome Barnum Associates and Energia Dirigida, SA, its Latin American affiliate, management consultants, will address the members and guests of the Mid-Hudson Chapter of National Association of Accountants, Monday at a dinner meeting 6:30 p. m. at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie.

Barnum's topic will be "Relationship Between Cost Accounting and Directed Energy," which includes the fields of human relations and work simplification.

Barnum is a professor at New York University, lecturer at the Engineering Academy in Wuppertal, Germany and the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania. Through conferences and seminars Barnum has brought directed energy to executives in 14 countries.

Fire Area Hydrant Not Solidly Frozen

A hydrant on Smith Avenue at Cornell Street, which delayed firemen in getting water on the Thursday night fire which damaged the shipping room of E. H. Kirkpatrick & Son, 124 Smith Avenue, was not solidly frozen, it was learned today.

Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, today noted that regular inspections are made of hydrants, especially to determine if they are frozen, and he learned from Fire Chief James M. Brett, that the operating nut, and not the hydrant itself, was frozen Thursday night. The hydrant was used in fighting the blaze, which because of chemicals, hampered the work of firemen.

A satisfactory report was given after inspection of the hydrant Monday, Cloonan said, but after the reported difficulty experienced by firemen, it was found that a small accumulation of ice had formed. The city's hydrants are self-drained, and no water forms in the barrel unless a valve is operated.

Mayor, DA . . .

other misguided or misinformed crusader.

"My reply to the Police Board will be made personally to that board when and if they acknowledge my long standing request to do so. Until I have had this opportunity I do not intend to make any further comment upon the request of the Police Board."

Says Copies Sent

The mayor said he had first become aware of the situation Jan. 10, and he "immediately on Monday informed the officer that he wanted the complete story. This led to the filing of statements by the officers, copies of which I have supplied to the district attorney."

The officers said to be involved were John Houghtaling and John Turck.

Eighmey's statement yesterday followed comments by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool, minister of the Old Dutch Church, on his telephone Dial-A-Prayer series.

"On January 13," the mayor said, "he and Acting Chief Robert F. Murphy fully acquainted Mr. Mino with all of the facts of this case as we knew them. The district attorney claimed no knowledge of it at that time, but indicated an investigation would be made."

Told Board: Radel

When no action came, said the mayor, "I brought the matter to the attention of the entire police board. I feel that this type of treatment of our patrolmen by a public official has a tremendous adverse affect on the attitude of the men of our department. I instructed the officer that even though his job was threatened, he should be assured that I would back him up in making legitimate and necessary arrests, and I would defend his action."

"We have spent many months building up the department as it now stands. I do not want activities of this nature to jeopardize the results of that work," he said.

The mayor said that he and Eighmey at a board meeting agreed that the case should be released immediately to the public, but opposition by one commissioner thwarted that action. In the interest of unanimity, a direct approach to the district attorney's office was then decided upon.

Cites Penalty

The mayor noted that "Lack of action by the officer has subjected him to penalty. The inactivity of the district attorney's office in this case, and the lack of at least supplying an answer to the charges is an inexcusable attitude. The mayor said he felt his request to replace Gotelli in city court where he deals with the police, was a logical one, but he felt it is unanswered.

"The opportunity I gave the District Attorney in a cooperative spirit has not been reciprocated with any visible action whatsoever." he said.

Adventists Set Sabbath Service

Sabbath school of the Kingston Seventh-day Adventist Church will open at 10 a. m. Saturday with a song service. Opening exercises under the direction of Gene Hunter, Sabbath School Superintendent, will be followed by class study of the lesson for the week entitled, "God Vindicated in Dealing With Jew and Gentile." The children will meet in their Sabbath school rooms with Mrs. Andrew Seaman and her assistants.

The church service will begin at 11:30 p. m. with the Rev. Eric R. Norman, pastor, preaching. A special offering will be received during the service to be used to help further the telivision ministry. The "Faith For Today" television program will be recipient of funds from all Adventist churches Saturday.

Saturday there will be an important church board meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

Monday the Dorcas will meet at the church from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.

Wednesday the fellowship hour will be held at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

Japs Defy Rhee On Koreans' Move To Commie Zone

TOKYO (AP)—Japan agreed today to let poverty-stricken Koreans here go to Communist North Korea in defiance of a South Korean government warning that it would resist the transfer "with every power at its disposal."

The deepening crisis threatened to create new divisions between two of the firmest friends the United States has in the Far East. Both governments held hurried consultations with American representatives in Tokyo and Seoul.

Relations Threatened

There seemed little or no likelihood that the quarrel, so far confined to verbal blasts and implied threats from South Korea, would blow up into a shooting conflict. But there was a danger of a break in economic relations and in diplomatic negotiations going on between the two countries.

The Japanese government was moving cautiously in an obvious effort to placate—or at least not further arouse — President Syngman Rhee's government.

Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and his Cabinet after a long meeting approved Foreign Minister Aiichiro Fujiyama's recommendation for the repatriation but in effect tossed the whole scheme into the laps of the International Red Cross.

See Ultimate Slavery

Presumably North Korea will charter ships to transport those cleared for repatriation. It is understood Japan will not furnish ships, and all Japanese companies whose ships operate between Japan and South Korea have canceled sailings because of the crisis.

Rhee's government has charged that the 600,000 or more Koreans living in Japan — most of them poverty stricken and 95 per cent of them originally from South Korea—are being cajoled, threatened and bribed by North Korean sympathizers to go to the North. The South Koreans charge they will be sent into Red slavery.

DeDea Says Body

of education of the State of New York had this to say about it:

"'On the basis of this clear cut pledge on the part of the board that the will of the voters would be respected, I feel that it would be improper for me as the state chief school official to ignore the action of the voters together with the board's pledge to do so, would, in my opinion, jeopardize the good faith which may be expected of the commissioner of education and, indeed, of all government officials.

"'The issue is a moral one which neither the board nor I can escape without undermining the faith of the people in the word of all government officials.'"

DeDea said that "after all this, the commisisoner still put the city of Kingston into consolidation on January 1, 1959."

The Education Department, he said, is asking for about $64½ million more this fiscal year, $30 million of that figure to continue the eight per cent increase granted in 1958 and to continue aid to "high tax" districts.

Both programs were enacted for one school year by the 1958 legislature, he said, and the 1959 legislature is not required by law to extend the 1958 school aid increase for another school year.

By not extending it, a substantial saving of an estimated $25 million could result, DeDea said.

Don't Need Palaces

"We will need some new school buildings, there is no doubt about that due to population increases, but we do not need school buildings that resemble palaces, and buildings that are laid out so that only about 50 per cent of the space is given to the basic 'three r's,' reading, writing and arithmetic —and the rest of the space for band rooms, gymnasiums and other non-essential items."

DeDea noted what he called a trend among education groups to stress the fact that most communities can no longer absorb the education costs on a local level, but must have, so-called, state aid to continue these terrific costs.

Nothing But Refund

"These groups do not wish to tax any further on a local level because of its immediate notice —and, therefore, use the term state aid which in reality is nothing but a tax refund which all taxpayers must pay. The state has no money of its own."

Many of the members of the Kingston Civic Association are opposed "to this terrific increase" in costs of government, DeDea said.

"Not only the cost of the Department of Education, but the cost of government in general. We do hope that this board may be instrumental in reducing this terrible high $2 billion budget."

Mummified remains of Apache Indians have been found in caves along the Apache Trail near Phoenix, Ariz. They were victims of marauding tribes centuries ago.

Martin Asks

ing," and refused to wait until 11:23 p. m. for the board to convene, "as had been the case on the evening before.

Leaves It to Chairman

The supervisor said that, "after a reasonable wait," he left, and "it was evidently the responsibility of the chairman of the board to call another meeting to consider items that were on Wednesday night's agenda.

Martin said that, "chafing under a continuing inability of the board to caucus and get down to the business of government," he had offered the adjournment motion Wednesday evening.

"I have felt for many months that the board has not shown a proper courtesy to the citizens and citizens groups who often wait for hours for an opportunity to appear before the board on the people's business.

Should Consider Travel

"I have also felt that the board should show consideration for those supervisors who drive for long distances, sometimes over 50 miles, over mountainous wintry roads.

"Some of them are not young men and feel a normal apprehension over possible accidents in the early morning hours on deserted roads in sub-zero temperatures.

"I also am concerned at the lot of press and radio reporters who must work through the night to meet an early morning deadline—all because the board is either not efficient enough or concerned enough to transact our business within reasonable hours."

These, in essence, were the statements Martin made Wednesday evening to the board before offering his motion for adjournment.

Says It Was Passed

"The motion was seconded, put to a vote and pased without dissent," Martin said today, "and I left the adjourned meeting promptly."

Martin declared he was "astounded to read in the press that the meeting, through some weird process, certainly not recognized in parliamentry law, presumed to go through the motions of legislation thereafter."

He noted news accounts mentioned a protest had been made to his motion and said:

"It is an axiomatic principle of parliamentary law that a motion to adjourn is never debatable. It can only be put to vote and either be accepted or rejected.

Maker Must Withdraw

"The press also spoke of a withdrawal of a second to my motion. It is my belief that such a withdrawal must be followed by a withdrawal on the part of the maker of the motion, and then only for the purpose of amendment within the broad general scope of the original motion. At any rate, it is highly unorthodox to even consider such action after the vote has been recorded.

"It is my belief," Martin said, "that any action taken by the board after my motion to adjourn was plainly illegal and unethical, and that the subjects discussed and acted upon must be again submitted for ratification before they have the substance of law.

"It is not my purpose to be insistent upon this point as a matter of obstructionism, but purely to point up the fact that the citizens of Ulster County are entitled to efficiency and orderliness in the operation of their county government.

"The time has passed, if there ever was a time, when we can afford to be casual and slipshod in running the affairs of a growing and progressive county."

Awaits Relyea Move

Martin said he would await word from the chairman of the board (Supervisor Charles Relyea, town of Hurley) as he considered that "the next move was definitely up to him."

An undercurrent of protest over the continual delayed start of the board meetings has been voiced by other members of the board from time to time, and Martin indicated Wednesday evening he was angered when he described the tardy start of meetings as a "deplorable condition . . . with both sides sitting around playing partisan politics until this late hour.

All regular meetings are called for 8 p. m., but it has been a usual practice, in deference to party caucuses, not to get underway until a considerably later hour.

The next meeting of the board is scheduled Thursday, March 12—at 8 p. m.

Sawkill Home Is Destroyed by Fire

Fire, apparently caused by a space heater explosion, destroyed the residence of Byron Gerlach, Wood Road, Sawkill, late Thursday afternoon.

The two-story frame and concrete block dwelling is located about a half-mile off the Sawkill Road, it was reported.

Mrs. Francis, Joy, wife of the chief of the Sawkill Fire Department, told The Freeman Gerlach had notified a repair service that the space heater was defective, but repairs had not been made.

Two fire companies, Sawkill and the West Hurley Fire Department battled the blaze.

Mrs. Joy said icy roads approaching the Gerlach residence and confusion in reporting the alarm impeded firemen who discovered the building "badly involved" in flames upon their arrival.

Gerlach, following the explosion, had to hurry his call to the fire department to escape the flames, Mrs. Joy said, and the location of the fire apparently was misunderstood.

Mrs. Joy quoted her husband as saying the residence was destroyed by the fire.

Museum Delighted Boa Found Among Banann

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Frank May found a boa among the bananas and the Museum of Science is delighted.

May, who unloads bananas from freight cars, Thursday came face to face with two little beady eyes peering over a stalk. Behind the eyes was three feet of snake.

After May fled a man from the museum, which had no boa constrictor, took the snake off to its new home.

May said he was used to seeing spiders and small snakes among the stalks but nothing like this.

Boas are not poisonous but they can give a nasty squeeze.

NEW YORK (AP) — Whether it's in a tiny efficiency apartment or a giant corporation's home office skyscraper the making and storing of records is a steadily growing problem.

More than nine million clerical employes, or about one out of every seven workers in the land, are tackling the job today.

The National Records Management Council says that 50 years ago there was one clerical worker for every 20 employes.

Common Problem

Much of the mounting volume of records has to be retained—to meet government requirements and corporate needs. How long various kinds of records must go on taking up storage space is the problem faced by families and companies alike.

A number of trade associations and accounting groups have issued schedules.

The Controllership Foundation, the research arm of the Controllers Institute of America, has a new guide to saving records against a possible look-see command from Uncle Sam. It covers data for income and excise taxes, social security, payrolls and the like.

Rough on Banks

Holders of overstuffed safe deposit boxes may take comfort in the fact that banks themselves have storage problems. Banking groups, such as the Pennsylvania Bankers Assn., and the New York State Bankers Assn., have published guides for their members on retention of various documents. Permanent records are kept, though often on microfilm, of paid-off mortgage accounts, and of charged - off consumer credit loans.

The American Society of Corporate Secretaries has a retention schedule covering accumulation of canceled stock certificates and bonds, board meeting minutes, securities and exchange commission reports, stock transfer journals, stockholder lists and proxies.

The press has a guide put out by the Institute of Newspaper Controllers and Finance Officers. Retention periods range from one year for pressroom reports and stockroom requisitions to 25 years for bad debt and product purchase records.

A business group, the Advisory Council on Federal Reports, is working with the U. S. Bureau of the Budget in urging government agencies to specify with each new regulation requiring records just how long the data must be retained. It recommends a six-year maximum. The council has got the number of regulations without time specifications reduced from 462 to 221.

A business group, the Advisory Council on Federal Reports, is working with the U. S. Bureau of the Budget in urging government agencies to specify with each new regulation requiring records just how long the data must be retained. It recommends a six-year maximum. The council has got the number of regulations without time specifications reduced from 462 to 221.

Museum Delighted Boa Found Among Banann

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Frank May found a boa among the bananas and the Museum of Science is delighted.

May, who unloads bananas from freight cars, Thursday came face to face with two little beady eyes peering over a stalk. Behind the eyes was three feet of snake.

After May fled a man from the museum, which had no boa constrictor, took the snake off to its new home.

May said he was used to seeing spiders and small snakes among the stalks but nothing like this.

Boas are not poisonous but they can give a nasty squeeze.

Fire Police Set First Banquet on April 18th Date

The February meeting of the Ulster County Volunteer Fire Police Association was held Wednesday night at Ulster Hose Company No. 5, Town of Ulster.

President Arthur Rice called the meeting to order at 8:30 o'clock and in spite of the bad weather there were 30 members in attendance. Gerald Woodvine, representing Ulster Hose Company, welcomed the visitors and Joseph Conroy, local travel bureau representative, gave a talk on Tahiti.

Fales to Talk

It was announced the first annual banquet would be held April 18 at the Flamingo Restaurant at 7 p. m. Members and their families will attend. Invited guests to the banquet will include Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hurley of Albany. Hurley is conducting the Fire Police school session here. Others will be Charles Fales, secretary of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, who has been invited as the speaker; Mr. and Mrs. Ward Griffin of Monroe, president of the Fire Police Association of the State of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draudt of Valley Cottage. Draudt is one of the organizers of the Fire Police Association of the State of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bodie, West Hurley, who have been of great assistance to the local organization.

President Arthur Rice and Director Alvin Beatty spoke on the Fire Police School which is now being conducted in Ulster County.

Inclement weather has held down the attendance at the Fire Police School and it was said that those who missed the first couple of sessions were invited to attend the balance of the sessions even though they might not be able to take the test at the conclusion of the sessions.

There were eight applications for membership in the Fire Police Association.

Asks H-C Participation

Charles Fales, secretary of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association made a request that the Fire Police Association take part in the Hudson - Champlain celebration this year and asked all local companies to attend the annual HVVA convention at Catskill in June and assist in the celebration.

President Rice asked those attending the police school's fourth session at Port Ewen to make an effort to get out on February 18 when the session will be held in Port Ewen. If the class cannot be held in the town hall, other arrangements as to place will be made but members will report to the town hall

The April meeting of the Association will be held at Esopus, guests of the Esopus Fire Department.

U.S. Composer Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — George Antheil, modern American composer and self-styled "Bad Boy of Music," died at his home Thursday night.

Antheil, 58, created a sensation here and in Paris in the mid-1920s with his avant-garde "Ballet Mecanique."

The cause of death was not announced.

Antheil's early works depicted the jazz age and the age of steel. In "Ballet Mecanique" he made use of xylophones, electric bells, a player piano and airplane propellers.

Stands to Collect $10 For Abstaining

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Donald T. Young, 23, stands to collect $10 from the town of Wakefield for abstaining from liquor and tobacco.

The money comes from the Jonathan Nichols Temperance and Tobacco Fund administered by the town.

Nichols set up the fund in 1883 to pay young men $10 for abstaining between the ages of 16 and 21.

Young applied Thursday, the first to do so in five years. The fund was popular in the Victorian era but only 10 have applied in the past 44 years.

Dutchess Driver Dies at Wheel

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP)—Ernest Parker, about 60, of nearby Pleasant Valley, died of a heart attack early today as he and his wife were making an automobile trip into Poughkeepsie.

The heart attack was believed induced by driving difficulties created by a freezing rain which glazed highways in the area. About a mile from Poughkeepsie, Parker pulled to the side of the road and slumped over the wheel.

our homes, but why do we have to make someone else's pocket fat when living costs are high enough today. Mark me. It won't stop here, it will be more next year.

"It will not hurt only us, but business too. What about the sales of automatic washers? You, who sell them. I have one now, but I wouldn't buy one, if I didn't have one. Why? Because they use between four and six feet per full load of washer. Figure it out at 7½ gallons per cubic foot. If you wash for a family every day, look what you use just to wash clothes, and see what it costs. Mothers, are we to have dirty children running the streets of Kingston?"

Can't Blame Aldermen

"If 500 or 1,000 of you had appeared in revolt against this one seemingly little item, we would have showed our interest in city government. Will it stop here? No. We soon will be tax poor like some other countries across the waters. Look even what your state government is doing. But we must get control of our city first. You as a public cannot blame your aldermen. You let them down last night. We all know our taxes have increased triple since 1947.

"Why, hasn't our water board, in recent years, opened other resources for water. Why don't they have an emergency fund? We could ask many questions and get no concrete answers, unless we all attend public hearings when asked."

$74 Million Tax

grumbling from Republicans in the GOP - controlled Legislature, Rockefeller insists the tax must be raised to help balance his record $2,041,000,000 budget.

Hurd and Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy told reporters that the major changes Rockefeller proposed could boost the income tax yield this year by 222 million dollars. However, various negative factors in the plan would cut the net gain to 150 million.

For example, they expected to gain 20 million from tax dodgers by shifting the tax from a direct payment to a withholding plan. But they also figured to lose 32 million in the first year because of difficulties in getting the plan started—mistakes by employers.

Would Add Three Brackets

The big gains will come from internal changes in the tax structure. One would add three brackets at the top of the tax scale. The other would cut exemptions to $600 a person. Now they are $1,000 for a single taxpayer, $2,500 for a married couple and $400 per dependent.

Hurd and Murphy gave this breakdown on gains and losses:

Gains — Rate and exemption changes, 150 million; levy the tax on 1959 incomes, instead of 1958, 52 million; catching tax dodgers, 20 million. Total: 222 million.

Losses—Complications in starting the withholding plan, 32 million; refunds to people who have paid 1958 taxes (which would be cancelled), 15 million; raising the maximum flat deduction from $500 to $1,000, eight million; taxpayers whose income drops or stops before withholding is begun, 13 million; delay in collecting taxes from New Yorkers who work in other states, four million. Total: 72 million.

Hurd said he expected the withholding system eventually would return 30 million a year from tax dodgers, compared with 20 the first year. This would raise the total gain to 232 million.

The only loss that would carry over from year to year would be the eight million decrease from raising the flat maximum deduction.

Thus, the net gain when the plan was in full effect would be 224 million.

West Maps Plans

review of their German policies which is now under way.

Their primary aim is to test to the limit — without sacrificing vital Western interests — the possibility that the Soviet government may be ready for serious negotiations and compromises on the unity issue.

Their other concern is to demonstrate to the world a Western readiness to negotiate with initiative and flexibility.

Several Western concessions already have become known as a result of exchanges among the governments in Washington, London, Paris and Bonn. These concessions include:

Some Concessions

1. A decision to propose in a forthcoming note to the Soviet government that German advisers participate in a prospective East-West foreign ministers conference.

2. A declared readiness—recently stated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles—to have a foreign ministers conference with the Soviet Union without advance agreement on a detailed program of discussion.

3. A decision that the reunification of Germany through free election — the formula to which the Western powers have clung for many years — is not the only possible way to obtain German unity.

Authorities said today that any merger plan acceptable to the West would require at some point all-German elections to choose a new unity government but that the elections would not have to be a first step by any means.

Heiselman Contradicts Wicks . . .

our office, was he?".

The witness said he replied, "Of course he was. You know Barieka brought in contributions, you gave them to me to put in the fund. You must tell the truth."

Heiselman Upset

"Senator Gittelson said something that upset me," Heiselman said. He was not permitted to tell what Gittelson had said.

Frank Buckley's name was mentioned and Heiselman said Wicks "wanted to know if he were called as a witness, whether he could testify that no calls were received from Troy."

"He asked if I had received any calls from Buckley," the witness said.

"I told him I had not," Heiselman said.

"Will you swear to it?" Wicks asked. "Did you ever hear me talk to Buckley?".

Never Heard Talks

Heiselman said he never had heard Wicks talk to Buckley.

Asked if he had seen Senator Gittelson in court on Wednesday and Heiselman said he had, Senator Gittelsorf had spoken to him "and also to Senator Tompkins."

Heiselman described the offices at 41 Pearl Street and said there were double doors between the outer office where his desk was and the inner office where Senator Wicks had his desk. He said there was no outside door and anyone who entered Wicks' office would be required to pass through the outer office of Attorney Haver.

Several times while on the stand Heiselman offered statements which were objected to.

"May I make a statement?" Heiselman frequently inquired.

At one point when Senator Gittelson's name came up, Heiselman said Senator Gittleson had become Senator Wicks' attorney "after you were fired Mr. Haver."

Heiselman said he had advised Wicks that he must tell the truth "if you don't tell the truth you know what will happen," the witness said he had stated.

Not Running Away

"I am not running for anything," Heiselman said.

In opening his cross examination Special Assistant Attorney General Tompkins inquired of the witness:

"You are not running for anything, isn't it fair to say that you are not running away from anything?"

"I hope not," Heiselman replied.

Heiselman was asked if Wicks could make a call directly outside the office or whether it had to pass through the outer office. Heiselman said he could make direct outside calls, that he usually did make calls directly.

The connecting door with Haver's office was described but Heiselman said "most people came through my office but they could go through Haver's."

Heiselman Was Banker

On cross-examination he again stated he saw Barieka come in the office and on three occasions that he recalled that he had gone into "the boss's office," and that later he had been given the money.

"I was the banker," Heiselman said. After entering the contribution in the book the money was placed in the safe where it was kept "to a certain point." He said he had been surprised once when the safe combination did not work and Harry Van Aken, a local locksmith was called in.

Not Hard to Open

"He astounded me, he opened it with a screwdriver in about a minute," Heiselman said. When the cash had accumulated in the safe "to a certain point" it was deposited in Haver's safe deposit box. Some was given to the Ulster County Republican Committee treasurer. When Wicks was of the opinion that a deposit should be made it was deposited in the National Ulster County Bank, Heiselman said.

Inquiry into the safe deposit box of Haver brought out the information that the box was in the name of the "41 Pearl Street Corporation" of which Haver is president. Heiselman said he had authority to open the Haver box but he did not know who else. Later a record of the visitations to the safe deposit box as well as the record of power of attorney to the box was offered in evidence. It was held from January 1951 to August 11, 1958.

Heiselman said in the case of a corporation possessing a safe deposit box, certain officials and persons were authorized to have access to the box.

"Did Mr. Haver disburse this cash?" Special Prosecutor Tompkins inquired.

"Oh no." Heiselman replied.

Heiselman said the money was used for political campaign purposes. He said some was given to County Chairman Kenneth L. Wilson and some was given to Mr. Haver when he was city chairman for campaign purposes.

Note to Destroy Letter

Heiselman was asked about a letter he had received from Haver in January. Prosecution asked if that letter had not requested him to talk to Senator Wicks and try and prevent him from coming up for the trial. The witness said he had received such a letter and on it was a memorandum. The memorandum requested the witness to destroy it.

Elaborating on the letter, Heiselman said there was a reference in the latter to an item in The Freeman which stated Senator Wicks had volunteered to come to Ulster County to "clear his name."

Heiselman said the letter stated that it would "help the whole matter" if Senator Wicks did not come up and if there were no further publicity in regard to the appearance of Senator Wicks at the trial. The letter stated that the item in the paper had stated that Attorney S. James Matthews of Kingston had been responsible for the statement in the paper.

The witness said the letter in effect stated that if Senator Wicks did not come up it was hoped that might bring the whole proceedings "to an end."

Heiselman said he had not been told that if Senator Wicks does not come up "the whole thing would blow over."

Blames Haver

Heiselman said that Wicks had said that Haver was responsible "for getting me in trouble before" when Wicks had taken the advice of Haver in the Joe Fay case. Haver had told him to tell the truth and "he got me in trouble."

This reference was to the time several years ago when Senator Wicks visited Fay, a labor leader, in Sing Sing prison. That visit caused a split between former Governor Dewey and Senator Wicks.

Heiselman testified Wicks said he had "fixed it up with Bernie Tompkins" that he was to go before the grand jury in the "kickback" probe and that if he said he said he had no knowledge of the Buckley checks "that would be all there was to it" but Haver would not let Wicks go before the grand jury. Haver had said if Wicks went before the probe grand jury it would be "over his dead body."

The defendant rested its case.

Senator Bernard Tompkins, special assistant attorney general, was called in rebuttal by the prosecution. He was examined by Assistant Leonard Reisman.

In Error, He Says

Tompkins testified that much of the testimony in regard to meetings between Defense Counsel Paul Rosen and Tompkins was in error. He denied he had ever promised immunity to Ashby if he appeared before the grand jury. He said only the grand jury could do that. He said he had told Rosen on October 3 that Ashby need not appear that afternoon before the grand jury since Rosen had not yet had an opportunity to discuss the case fully with Ashby. Later on October 7, in New York, he met Rosen. He told Rosen he did not believe Ashby's story.

Tompkins said the Ashby case was still open before the grand jury.

On one of the occasions Ashby was in the office of Tompkins and said it was "well known" that Barieka was paying "kickbacks" to Ulster County town superintendents.

Quotes Ashby

Tompkins quoted Ashby as saying:

"Barieka gets drunk and goes around the county boasting of it."

It was agreed that Ashby return before the grand jury on October 27. He denied immunity had been offered, as testified by Rosen. A "general waiver" had been offered Ashby on October 2, but he signed only a "limited waiver."

Tompkins told of investigations made in Troy on October 9 after Ashby had testified before the grand jury.

Senator Wicks had also been in his office and on one occasion had offered to appear before the grand jury.

Tompkins made a statement that he could not subpoena Barieka because "every one of John Egan's clients" declined to testify, taking advantage of constitutional rights.

Haver moved for a mistrial. Egan is associated with Haver in the Ashby trial. The motion for a mistrial was denied.

A recess was taken to 10 a. m. today with Tompkins still on the stand.

ing a temporary dike along Sugar Creek, a Wabash River tributary, instead of trying to patch a 300-foot break in the permanent levee. Some 150 homes were evacuated. The town of 3,300 was declared a state of emergency by town officials.

Meanwhile, evacuated families in Logansport and Wabash prepared to return to their homes. The Wabash also dropped rapidly at Peru, one of the communities hardest hit by the midwinter floods.

Some Return to Homes

In Ohio, the Maumee River, after overflowing in several places along a 20-mile stretch southwest of Toledo, dropped back to normal after a huge ice jam moved into Lake Erie.

Residents were returning to their homes in other northern Ohio communities. Hardest hit cities were Fremont, Findlay, Warren, Van Wert, Paulding and Ottawa, but the overflows did not cause as extensive damage as the floods in January.

Fairly mild winter weather prevailed in wide areas from Texas to the Great Lakes region and eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

Southerly winds pushed warm air from the Gulf and with it came widespread precipitation and considerable cloudiness. Light rains or drizzle sprinkled most areas except in western Texas and from Pennsylvania northward.

Responsible Role Vital; Rockefeller

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller says elected officials have a "moral responsibility" to conduct government according to highest principles.

"And the people have a moral duty to respond and support the government with courage and vision. . ." he said Thursday night at a Lincoln Day dinner of the Albany County Republican Committee.

900 Hear Message

"Here in New York," he said, "we are faced with problems of tremendous magnitude, to which Lincoln's counsel and concepts have great relevance."

Rockefeller told nearly 900 Republicans that Lincoln "stood inflexibly for responsible government as opposed to expedient government." He added:

"Lincoln would have been the first to tell us to face up to our responsibilities."

The governor, whose first budget and tax program have drawn statewide opposition, did not specify what he considered the state's "problems of tremendous magnitude."

He has said, however, that the need for fiscal stability was a chief problem. To overcome the problem, he has proposed a record tax increase.

Because the hotel where the dinner was held could not accommodate the crowd, many persons dined in smaller rooms.

Rockefeller visited one of these groups before delivering his speech, referred to his two million dollar budget and tax program, and commented: "It can't be done with mirrors anymore."

Wouldn't Deny Aid

He told another group he was opposed to a proposal to deny welfare aid to anyone who has not lived in the state for one year.

"The state and New York City always have represented freedom of opportunity for a new life," he said.

The February meeting of the Ulster County Volunteer Fire Police Association was held Wednesday night at Ulster Hose Company No. 5, Town of Ulster.

President Arthur Rice called the meeting to order at 8:30 o'clock and in spite of the bad weather there were 30 members in attendance. Gerald Woodvine, representing Ulster Hose Company, welcomed the visitors and Joseph Conroy, local travel bureau representative, gave a talk on Tahiti.

Fales to Talk

It was announced the first annual banquet would be held April 18 at the Flamingo Restaurant at 7 p. m. Members and their families will attend. Invited guests to the banquet will include Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Hurley of Albany. Hurley is conducting the Fire Police school session here. Others will be Charles Fales, secretary of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association, who has been invited as the speaker; Mr. and Mrs. Ward Griffin of Monroe, president of the Fire Police Association of the State of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Draudt of Valley Cottage. Draudt is one of the organizers of the Fire Police Association of the State of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Bodie, West Hurley, who have been of great assistance to the local organization.

President Arthur Rice and Director Alvin Beatty spoke on the Fire Police School which is now being conducted in Ulster County.

Inclement weather has held down the attendance at the Fire Police School and it was said that those who missed the first couple of sessions were invited to attend the balance of the sessions even though they might not be able to take the test at the conclusion of the sessions.

There were eight applications for membership in the Fire Police Association.

Asks H-C Participation

Charles Fales, secretary of the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association made a request that the Fire Police Association take part in the Hudson - Champlain celebration this year and asked all local companies to attend the annual HVVA convention at Catskill in June and assist in the celebration.

President Rice asked those attending the police school's fourth session at Port Ewen to make an effort to get out on February 18 when the session will be held in Port Ewen. If the class cannot be held in the town hall, other arrangements as to place will be made but members will report to the town hall

The April meeting of the Association will be held at Esopus, guests of the Esopus Fire Department.

NEW YORK (AP) — George Antheil, modern American composer and self-styled "Bad Boy of Music," died at his home Thursday night.

Antheil, 58, created a sensation here and in Paris in the mid-1920s with his avant-garde "Ballet Mecanique."

The cause of death was not announced.

Antheil's early works depicted the jazz age and the age of steel. In "Ballet Mecanique" he made use of xylophones, electric bells, a player piano and airplane propellers.

Stands to Collect $10 For Abstaining

WAKEFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Donald T. Young, 23, stands to collect $10 from the town of Wakefield for abstaining from liquor and tobacco.

The money comes from the Jonathan Nichols Temperance and Tobacco Fund administered by the town.

Nichols set up the fund in 1883 to pay young men $10 for abstaining between the ages of 16 and 21.

Young applied Thursday, the first to do so in five years. The fund was popular in the Victorian era but only 10 have applied in the past 44 years.

Dutchess Driver Dies at Wheel

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP)—Ernest Parker, about 60, of nearby Pleasant Valley, died of a heart attack early today as he and his wife were making an automobile trip into Poughkeepsie.

The heart attack was believed induced by driving difficulties created by a freezing rain which glazed highways in the area. About a mile from Poughkeepsie, Parker pulled to the side of the road and slumped over the wheel.

our homes, but why do we have to make someone else's pocket fat when living costs are high enough today. Mark me. It won't stop here, it will be more next year.

"It will not hurt only us, but business too. What about the sales of automatic washers? You, who sell them. I have one now, but I wouldn't buy one, if I didn't have one. Why? Because they use between four and six feet per full load of washer. Figure it out at 7½ gallons per cubic foot. If you wash for a family every day, look what you use just to wash clothes, and see what it costs. Mothers, are we to have dirty children running the streets of Kingston?"

Can't Blame Aldermen

"If 500 or 1,000 of you had appeared in revolt against this one seemingly little item, we would have showed our interest in city government. Will it stop here? No. We soon will be tax poor like some other countries across the waters. Look even what your state government is doing. But we must get control of our city first. You as a public cannot blame your aldermen. You let them down last night. We all know our taxes have increased triple since 1947.

"Why, hasn't our water board, in recent years, opened other resources for water. Why don't they have an emergency fund? We could ask many questions and get no concrete answers, unless we all attend public hearings when asked."

$74 Million Tax

grumbling from Republicans in the GOP - controlled Legislature, Rockefeller insists the tax must be raised to help balance his record $2,041,000,000 budget.

Hurd and Tax Commissioner Joseph H. Murphy told reporters that the major changes Rockefeller proposed could boost the income tax yield this year by 222 million dollars. However, various negative factors in the plan would cut the net gain to 150 million.

For example, they expected to gain 20 million from tax dodgers by shifting the tax from a direct payment to a withholding plan. But they also figured to lose 32 million in the first year because of difficulties in getting the plan started—mistakes by employers.

Would Add Three Brackets

The big gains will come from internal changes in the tax structure. One would add three brackets at the top of the tax scale. The other would cut exemptions to $600 a person. Now they are $1,000 for a single taxpayer, $2,500 for a married couple and $400 per dependent.

Hurd and Murphy gave this breakdown on gains and losses:

Gains — Rate and exemption changes, 150 million; levy the tax on 1959 incomes, instead of 1958, 52 million; catching tax dodgers, 20 million. Total: 222 million.

Losses—Complications in starting the withholding plan, 32 million; refunds to people who have paid 1958 taxes (which would be cancelled), 15 million; raising the maximum flat deduction from $500 to $1,000, eight million; taxpayers whose income drops or stops before withholding is begun, 13 million; delay in collecting taxes from New Yorkers who work in other states, four million. Total: 72 million.

Hurd said he expected the withholding system eventually would return 30 million a year from tax dodgers, compared with 20 the first year. This would raise the total gain to 232 million.

The only loss that would carry over from year to year would be the eight million decrease from raising the flat maximum deduction.

Thus, the net gain when the plan was in full effect would be 224 million.

West Maps Plans

review of their German policies which is now under way.

Their primary aim is to test to the limit — without sacrificing vital Western interests — the possibility that the Soviet government may be ready for serious negotiations and compromises on the unity issue.

Their other concern is to demonstrate to the world a Western readiness to negotiate with initiative and flexibility.

Several Western concessions already have become known as a result of exchanges among the governments in Washington, London, Paris and Bonn. These concessions include:

Some Concessions

1. A decision to propose in a forthcoming note to the Soviet government that German advisers participate in a prospective East-West foreign ministers conference.

2. A declared readiness—recently stated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles—to have a foreign ministers conference with the Soviet Union without advance agreement on a detailed program of discussion.

3. A decision that the reunification of Germany through free election — the formula to which the Western powers have clung for many years — is not the only possible way to obtain German unity.

Authorities said today that any merger plan acceptable to the West would require at some point all-German elections to choose a new unity government but that the elections would not have to be a first step by any means.

Heiselman Contradicts Wicks . . .

our office, was he?".

The witness said he replied, "Of course he was. You know Barieka brought in contributions, you gave them to me to put in the fund. You must tell the truth."

Heiselman Upset

"Senator Gittelson said something that upset me," Heiselman said. He was not permitted to tell what Gittelson had said.

Frank Buckley's name was mentioned and Heiselman said Wicks "wanted to know if he were called as a witness, whether he could testify that no calls were received from Troy."

"He asked if I had received any calls from Buckley," the witness said.

"I told him I had not," Heiselman said.

"Will you swear to it?" Wicks asked. "Did you ever hear me talk to Buckley?".

Never Heard Talks

Heiselman said he never had heard Wicks talk to Buckley.

Asked if he had seen Senator Gittelson in court on Wednesday and Heiselman said he had, Senator Gittelson had spoken to him "and also to Senator Tompkins."

Heiselman described the offices at 41 Pearl Street and said there were double doors between the outer office where his desk was and the inner office where Senator Wicks had his desk. He said there was no outside door and anyone who entered Wicks' office would be required to pass through the outer office of Attorney Haver.

Several times while on the stand Heiselman offered statements which were objected to.

"May I make a statement?" Heiselman frequently inquired.

At one point when Senator Gittelson's name came up, Heiselman said Senator Gittleson had become Senator Wicks' attorney "after you were fired Mr. Haver."

Heiselman said he had advised Wicks that he must tell the truth "if you don't tell the truth you know what will happen," the witness said he had stated.

Not Running Away

"I am not running for anything," Heiselman said.

In opening his cross examination Special Assistant Attorney General Tompkins inquired of the witness:

"You are not running for anything, isn't it fair to say that you are not running away from anything?"

"I hope not," Heiselman replied.

Heiselman was asked if Wicks could make a call directly outside the office or whether it had to pass through the outer office. Heiselman said he could make direct outside calls, that he usually did make calls directly.

The connecting door with Haver's office was described but Heiselman said "most people came through my office but they could go through Haver's."

Heiselman Was Banker

On cross-examination he again stated he saw Barieka come in the office and on three occasions that he recalled that he had gone into "the boss's office," and that later he had been given the money.

"I was the banker," Heiselman said. After entering the contribution in the book the money was placed in the safe where it was kept "to a certain point." He said he had been surprised once when the safe combination did not work and Harry Van Aken, a local locksmith was called in.

Not Hard to Open

"He astounded me, he opened it with a screwdriver in about a minute," Heiselman said. When the cash had accumulated in the safe "to a certain point" it was deposited in Haver's safe deposit box. Some was given to the Ulster County Republican Committee treasurer. When Wicks was of the opinion that a deposit should be made it was deposited in the National Ulster County Bank, Heiselman said.

Inquiry into the safe deposit box of Haver brought out the information that the box was in the name of the "41 Pearl Street Corporation" of which Haver is president. Heiselman said he had authority to open the Haver box but he did not know who else. Later a record of the visitations to the safe deposit box as well as the record of power of attorney to the box was offered in evidence. It was held from January 1951 to August 11, 1958.

Heiselman said in the case of a corporation possessing a safe deposit box, certain officials and persons were authorized to have access to the box.

"Did Mr. Haver disburse this cash?" Special Prosecutor Tompkins inquired.

"Oh no." Heiselman replied.

Heiselman said the money was used for political campaign purposes. He said some was given to County Chairman Kenneth L. Wilson and some was given to Mr. Haver when he was city chairman for campaign purposes.

Note to Destroy Letter

Heiselman was asked about a letter he had received from Haver in January. Prosecution asked if that letter had not requested him to talk to Senator Wicks and try and prevent him from coming up for the trial. The witness said he had received such a letter and on it was a memorandum. The memorandum requested the witness to destroy it.

Elaborating on the letter, Heiselman said there was a reference in the latter to an item in The Freeman which stated Senator Wicks had volunteered to come to Ulster County to "clear his name."

Heiselman said the letter stated that it would "help the whole matter" if Senator Wicks did not come up and if there were no further publicity in regard to the appearance of Senator Wicks at the trial. The letter stated that the item in the paper had stated that Attorney S. James Matthews of Kingston had been responsible for the statement in the paper.

The witness said the letter in effect stated that if Senator Wicks did not come up it was hoped that might bring the whole proceedings "to an end."

Heiselman said he had not been told that if Senator Wicks does not come up "the whole thing would blow over."

Blames Haver

Heiselman said that Wicks had said that Haver was responsible "for getting me in trouble before" when Wicks had taken the advice of Haver in the Joe Fay case. Haver had told him to tell the truth and "he got me in trouble."

This reference was to the time several years ago when Senator Wicks visited Fay, a labor leader, in Sing Sing prison. That visit caused a split between former Governor Dewey and Senator Wicks.

Heiselman testified Wicks said he had "fixed it up with Bernie Tompkins" that he was to go before the grand jury in the "kickback" probe and that if he said he said he had no knowledge of the Buckley checks "that would be all there was to it" but Haver would not let Wicks go before the grand jury. Haver had said if Wicks went before the probe grand jury it would be "over his dead body."

The defendant rested its case.

Senator Bernard Tompkins, special assistant attorney general, was called in rebuttal by the prosecution. He was examined by Assistant Leonard Reisman.

In Error, He Says

Tompkins testified that much of the testimony in regard to meetings between Defense Counsel Paul Rosen and Tompkins was in error. He denied he had ever promised immunity to Ashby if he appeared before the grand jury. He said only the grand jury could do that. He said he had told Rosen on October 3 that Ashby need not appear that afternoon before the grand jury since Rosen had not yet had an opportunity to discuss the case fully with Ashby. Later on October 7, in New York, he met Rosen. He told Rosen he did not believe Ashby's story.

Tompkins said the Ashby case was still open before the grand jury.

On one of the occasions Ashby was in the office of Tompkins and said it was "well known" that Barieka was paying "kickbacks" to Ulster County town superintendents.

Quotes Ashby

Tompkins quoted Ashby as saying:

"Barieka gets drunk and goes around the county boasting of it."

It was agreed that Ashby return before the grand jury on October 27. He denied immunity had been offered, as testified by Rosen. A "general waiver" had been offered Ashby on October 2, but he signed only a "limited waiver."

Tompkins told of investigations made in Troy on October 9 after Ashby had testified before the grand jury.

Senator Wicks had also been in his office and on one occasion had offered to appear before the grand jury.

Tompkins made a statement that he could not subpoena Barieka because "every one of John Egan's clients" declined to testify, taking advantage of constitutional rights.

Haver moved for a mistrial. Egan is associated with Haver in the Ashby trial. The motion for a mistrial was denied.

A recess was taken to 10 a. m. today with Tompkins still on the stand.

Meanwhile, evacuated families in Logansport and Wabash prepared to return to their homes. The Wabash also dropped rapidly at Peru, one of the communities hardest hit by the midwinter floods.

Some Return to Homes

In Ohio, the Maumee River, after overflowing in several places along a 20-mile stretch southwest of Toledo, dropped back to normal after a huge ice jam moved into Lake Erie.

Residents were returning to their homes in other northern Ohio communities. Hardest hit cities were Fremont, Findlay, Warren, Van Wert, Paulding and Ottawa, but the overflows did not cause as extensive damage as the floods in January.

Fairly mild winter weather prevailed in wide areas from Texas to the Great Lakes region and eastward to the Atlantic Coast.

Southerly winds pushed warm air from the Gulf and with it came widespread precipitation and considerable cloudiness. Light rains or drizzle sprinkled most areas except in western Texas and from Pennsylvania northward.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, MASS, Feb. 13—Our tourist business started in a very small way some 50 or more years ago. It grew steadily but slowly, until the automobile revolutionized it.

The automobile has actually done harm to the summer hotel business of the north. Because of lack of business, the great summer hotels of New England are gradually being torn down. The majority of people who travel in the north by auto during the summer stop at motels as transients. They no longer stay for a month, or for the entire summer, as they used to do.

On the other hand, the auto has helped southern business, especially that of Florida, New Mexico, and Arizona,—and also the Pacific Coast. Moreover, many who go South as tourists remain to take up residence. This does not apply, however, to tourists who travel north in the summer.

Cost of Living

Tourists also find that the cost of living is less in the south. This fact is encouraging more people to retire on their social security money. Furthermore, in the north it is more difficult for a person to get a part-time position in order to secure the permitted extra income up to $1,200 above social security which he needs in order to live reasonably comfortably.

In several southern and southwestern states, new industrial concerns are locating which make a specialty of employing these part-time workers. The new low-priced cars which can be bought today enable families to have two small economical cars, and this is a great help to part-time workers.

How and Where to Buy?

After deciding where you would like to live—in Florida, for instance—write to the Chamber of Commerce of that city and inquire as to the opportunities for securing part-time work. Tell the Chamber your trade and your age, and add the information that you have an auto. Of course, you will not buy any property in any southern state without first seeing it.

When buying a house or lot in any tourist section, buy at the end of the tourist season. This means in September (after Labor Day) or in October in the north. Or in May or June in the south.

Motels As an Investment

Motels, as business investments, as subject to several disadvantages. For one thing, the owner must pay taxes, interest charges, insurance, and maintenance costs for twelve months each year, while his profits are usually limited to six months or less. Even so, it was possible to make ends meet when there were very few motels; but now they are so thick that the competition is terrible.

In addition to the above economic difficulty, one's investment may be wiped out by a change of routes. When one buys a motel, it may be on a heavily traveled road; but then the state, or the federal government, may decide to build a new toll road or freeway which will leave the motel on a deserted highway.

The Investors League

This is a non-profit, nonpartisan organization of investors united for action in defense both of present legitimate investments and of free enterprise unhampered by unfair government competition. It was established in 1942 with headquarters at 234 Fifth Avenue, New York City. I especially commend the work of the Florida Division, of which Dr. Thomas H. Odeneal of 3115 South Peninsula Drive, Daytona Beach, Florida, is the able president.

All present owners of motels or of Turnpike Revenue Bonds whose livelihoods or investments are threatened by the new freeways, for which the federal government has appropriated $37,000,000,000, should join this Investors League and ask it to urge the government to make sure that their investments are fairly protected.

ON VALENTINE'S DAY —

Hearts Trump the Table

For St. Valentine's Day party, serve a beautiful heart-shaped cream cheese pie aglow with crushed strawberry sauce.

By GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Food and Markets Editor

February 14th, according to pagan tradition, was the day when the birds chose their mates. But since Christian times, this day has been the feast of St. Valentine, the holiday of lovers. So naturally, hearts are trumps on February 14th.

To celebrate this feast of lovers, let's choose a heart-shaped dessert aglow with crushed strawberries. Our recipe is an American version of a favorite French dessert, Coeur de la Creme. It is made with cottage cheese and evaporated milk with a hint of lemon. Plus, of course, the hearts-aflame sauce of strawberries.

Coeur de la Creme (Makes 8 servings)

One tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin; 1 2/3 cups (large can) undiluted evaporated milk; 2 pounds cottage cheese; ¼ cup lemon juice; ¼ cup sugar; 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind; 1 10-ounce package frozen sliced strawberries, thawed.

Combine gelatin and evaporated milk. Cook over low heat 5 minutes, or until gelatin is dissolved, stirring occasionally. Chill until slightly thickened. Meanwhile, press cottage cheese through sieve or food mill. Beat evaporated milk mixture until light and fluffy. Add lemon juice, sugar and lemon rind and beat thoroughly. Add cottage cheese and blend.

Turn into buttered 1½-quart heart-shaped mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Serve with strawberries. Garnish mold with fresh or frozen strawberries, as desired.

Bill Introduced For State Control Of Pawnbrokers

State-wide regulation of pawnbrokers to provide greater protection for the public is provided in a bill recommended to the Legislature Thursday by Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz and Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

The bill is also designed to provide closer supervision of pawnbrokers so that the interest of the state in surplus money from the pledges will be protected.

The bi-partisan measure was introduced by Senator Harry Gittleson, (D), of Kings County, and Assemblyman William J. Butler, (R), of Erie County.

According to Attorney General Lefkowitz and Comptroller Levitt, an intensive inquiry conducted throughout the state by the two departments disclosed numerous abuses by pawnbrokers with respect to abandoned property and the proceeds of the sale of such property.

Signal Wastes Spade Stopper

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The habit of playing unilateral defense or "singles bridge" is a common one. In the hands of a great expert this type defense will frequently be most effective. In the hands of the average player it is likely to be just the opposite.

West made his normal opening lead of the fourth best diamond. Dummy's queen held the trick and the six of diamonds was led. This gave East the chance to make a discard and he signaled with the nine of spades.

This overenthusiastic signal produced the desired spade lead but it also made the hand a cinch for declarer since it gave him three spade tricks to add to his four diamonds, one heart and one club.

East's defense for his play was that he felt that only a spade shift could beat the hand, that his partner should have opened a spade originally and that declarer could make the hand anyway.

He was right about the last. Assuming passive defense such as a diamond continuation South could lead the three of clubs to dummy's king, run out his two top spades and diamonds and throw West in with the ace of clubs to force him to lead from his king of hearts.

All this was possible, but not probable. The waste of the nine of spades made the hand a cinch.

John Burroughs, Naturalist, Is Topic Before Meeting of Women's Club at YW Thursday

By DOROTHY A. NAREL
Freeman Society Editor

Mrs. Elizabeth Burroughs Kelley, of West Park, gave an inspiring talk about her grandfather, the late John Burroughs, world famous naturalist, before a meeting of the Women's Club at the YWCA Thursday.

"It is fitting to honor John Burroughs today, as part of our Year of History," Mrs. Kelley said, "because he is truly a Hudson River writer. Twenty-five of his books were written right here in Ulster County at his home in West Park. Much of the material in the books was gathered in this part of the country—the study of bird life, flowers—all this comes from this region."

Mrs. Kelley, spoke on the struggles John Burroughs faced in his youth and later in life.

Born at Roxbury

John Burroughs, American naturalist and author, was born in Roxbury in 1837. The son of a farmer, he became in turn a journalist, a treasury clerk in Washington, D. C., and a bank examiner.

In 1874, he settled on a farm near Esopus where he devoted his time to fruit culture and literature. His first book paid tribute to Walt Whitman, entitled, "Poet and Person."

His best known books include "Wake, Robin;" "Locusts and Wild Honey;" "Fresh Fields;" a travel book; "Signs and Seasons;" and one volume of poems, "Bird and Bough."

John Burroughs' growing interest in science and philosophy is evident in his publications, "Time and Change," "Summit of the Years," "The Breath of Life," "Accepting the Universe" and many others.

Though attached to his home, he traveled to the Pacific Coast, the South, West Indies, Europe and Alaska, observing natural phenomena everywhere and recording them in simple, expressive prose.

Educated in local schools, Mrs. Kelley told the group, John Burroughs managed to get himself a teaching job at the age of 17 in an Ulster County School. To get his first book published, he had to contact persons abroad since the study of nature was not overly emphasized in America at the time. He was basically a self-educated man, she stated.

"My grandfather did more to foster the study of his choice than any other man," Mrs. Kelley said. "No other nature writer has ever been so acclaimed—achieved so much solely through his own efforts."

Slides Are Shown

Mrs. Kelley illustrated her talk with slides showing the young Burroughs at his residence in West Park, scenes of his childhood and favorite "thinking" places.

An author, herself, having just released for publication a book about her grandfather entitled, "John Burroughs, Naturalist," Mrs. Kelley is a graduate of Kingston High School and Bryn Mawr College. She has taught in a number of girls' private schools and been adviser for school publications. During the past few years she has been giving both lectures and informal talks on her famous grandfather.

Observe History Year

In paying tribute to Burroughs, members of the Women's Club also contributed another interesting segment in our Year of History.

Hostesses for the social hour and tea which followed the meeting were the Mmes. Robert Pixley, Hans Decker, William Jackson and Benjamin Charchian.

The guest speaker was introduced to the group by Mrs. Frank Thompson Sr.

Women Journalists Gather in Missouri For Weekend of Conferences, Programs

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—This is one of those times when I'm proud of women.

Assembled here this weekend are America's leading ladies in the field communications. They arriving by land and by air from all over the country to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the nation's first school of journalism.

The school was founded at the University of Missouri because of the dream of a working newspaperman, the late Dean Walter Williams, who never graduated from college but acquired a long list of honorary degrees.

These are working women, many of them graduates of the school, who have beaten their way to the top in the fields of newspapers, magazines, advertising, television and radio.

Most of them lead not only double but multiple lives—as career women, wives and mothers. All of them had to sit up nights getting their work ahead so they could be here.

There's Margot Sherman, vice president of one of New York's biggest advertising agencies, named Advertising Woman of the Year for 1958, married to a lawyer, mother of two children, who manages home, business and extra-curricular community work with practiced ease, pleased as a debutante at the student ovation after her speech.

There's Inez Robb, columnist, wit, lifelong newspaperwoman and doting wife, who says: "It's more important to be a successful woman than to have the world's most important job."

Many of the women here for this program are competitors but if there is rivalry, it doesn't show.

At a similar meeting of men, I'm inclined to think there would be a number of oblique verbal knife thrusts.

But women who have to run jobs, homes and families all at once don't have time to be petty. They're all pleased at each other's success.

And that's what I like about women—busy women, that is.

Former State AAUW President to Speak Before Group Here

The next meeting of the Kingston Branch of the American Association of University Women, Tuesday, Feb. 17, at 8:30 p. m., at the George Washington School, will be devoted to the subject of International Relations.

The guest speaker from the American Association for the United Nations is Mrs. Barbara D. Evans, 1946-50 president of the New York State Division, since 1953, observer for the AAUW at the UN, and in 1956-57 consultant at the UN for the International Federation of University Women.

Mrs. Evans' subject is "The UN in the World Community." The AAUW cordially invites the public to attend this meeting and join in the question and discussion period to follow.

From her long experience at the UN, Mrs. Evans is in an excellent position to provide stimulating insight into the role of the UN and its impact on the world.

Sisterhood Hears Review of 'Exodus' At Meeting Held

Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel held its regular monthly meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 11, at the home of Mrs. Arthur London, 300 Pearl Street.

After a short but constructive business meeting, Dan Balsam, executive director of the Jewish Community Center, gave a concise talk on the importance of the Jewish Community Council. He also stressed the importance of supporting the United Jewish Welfare Fund and the necessity of active participation by the Ladies of the Sisterhood in the forthcoming drive and in all other Council and Center matters.

Mrs. Herbert Greenwald, one of the vice presidents of Sisterhood, gave a very inspiring and beautiful review of the recent best-seller, "Exodus," by Uris.

She pointed out the magnificent work that has been done by the early settlers in what is now the State of Israel and how during Hitler's persecution of the Jews and the pogroms in Poland and Russia, many Europeans sought to enter Israel. Special mention was made of the suffering and accomplishments of the young children, who were shipped from one detention camp to another and their activities after they reached their destination. Mrs. Greenwald, through her review impressed upon the Sisterhood members the important place of American Jewry in helping their less fortunate fellow Jews.

Refreshments were served.

There's News Afoot

Pursuing the Easter wardrobe in yesterday's column, there's good news afoot for women this year — non-cracking patent leather—almost unbelievable.

How many times did you have to discard the children's patent leather shoes because the patent leather was all cracked leaving only bare spots.

The new finish, long a goal of tanners, is now a reality. Leather tanners say it outwears conventional patents; withstands extreme temperature changes without cracking; retains original brilliance.

The new patent leather shoes have been flex tested thousands of times without cracking. Although the new non-cracking patent leather will not answer all past patent leather problems, say tanners, it will greatly minimize them, and further refinements could well make patent leather an all year round material.

It must be remembered, though, that all patent shoes now on retailers shelves are not necessarily made of these new finishes. But it is something to watch for in the coming months.

Talk Too Much?

Let's take a minute to consider the subject of "talking." Shakespeare said, "Talkers are no good doers." French philosopher and writer, Jean Rousseau, said, "People who know little are usually great talkers, while men who know much say little."

We can, of course, omit those who talk because of their profession, i. e., announcers.

Speaking non-professionally, however, there are some people who literally talk too much for their own good—for the sake of their health, that is. While conversation can be stimulating and entertaining, excessive chatter can be mentally and physically fatiguing.

The inveterate talker, as you may have observed, is often a highly nervous individual. This is only natural, because she is constantly taxing her mind and straining her emotions. As long as there's somebody willing to listen, she is under ceaseless tension. I say "she," because the gift of gab, unfairly perhaps, is so often attributed to women instead of men.

The object should be to strike a happy medium between talkativeness and silence. Rest periods in speaking, believe it or not, are just as necessary to good health as rest periods in work or exercise.

We can, of course, omit those who talk because of their profession, i. e., announcers.

Speaking non-professionally, however, there are some people who literally talk too much for their own good—for the sake of their health, that is. While conversation can be stimulating and entertaining, excessive chatter can be mentally and physically fatiguing.

The inveterate talker, as you may have observed, is often a highly nervous individual. This is only natural, because she is constantly taxing her mind and straining her emotions. As long as there's somebody willing to listen, she is under ceaseless tension. I say "she," because the gift of gab, unfairly perhaps, is so often attributed to women instead of men.

The object should be to strike a happy medium between talkativeness and silence. Rest periods in speaking, believe it or not, are just as necessary to good health as rest periods in work or exercise.

Ridge Pastor's Wife Feted at Reception

Mrs. Lester Finley, wife of the new pastor of the Stone Ridge Methodist Charge, was honored at a tea and reception held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ernest Howard, Stone Ridge.

Representatives of the Stone Ridge Reformed Church, St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and Accord and Stone Ridge Methodist Churches attended to honor Mrs. Finley.

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Finley moved to the Stone Ridge parsonage from New Haven, Conn., in January when the Rev. Mr. Finley assumed the pastorate of the Stone Ridge, Accord and Kripplebush Methodist Churches.

Mrs. Oliver Bogart and Mrs. Ethel Mack poured at the tea.

Beaux Arts Ball On February 21

NEW PALTZ, Feb. 13—Larry Argiro, association professor of art education at the State University Teachers College, and chairman of the Beaux Arts Ball, announces that the art students have scheduled this annual event for Saturday evening, February 21, in the College Union Building.

Mr. Argiro says that the dance originally began as a social function but has now become a very important source of benefit to many art students. The receipts from this dance help make up the Ruth Bennett Memorial Scholarship, and last year two students received financial help from this source. Part of the money raised is assigned to the Art Committee for the college exhibition program and for purchasing more art work for the permanent collection of the College.

As part of the ball festivities, numerous persons are contributing art objects and paintings which will be auctioned to the highest bidders.

The theme of this year's ball is "Fugitives From a Museum," and costumes will be worn by many persons who attend. Art students are designing large murals of famous paintings to carry out the theme and to provide the decorations. A professional band and vocalist will supply the music for the evening.

Anyone interested in becoming a patron and attending the ball may write to Larry Argiro, chairman, Beaux Arts Ball Committee, State University Teachers College, New Paltz.

Mr. Argiro has also been named a member of a jury of artists and art educators which will meet in Syracuse on Saturday, February, 14, to select outstanding art work done by high school students in Central New York State. Selections of the best of these works will be hung in the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts and the students whose work is so honored will receive art achievement gold keys.

While in Syracuse, Mr. Argiro plans to visit current art exhibits at the Syracuse Museum of Art, the Syracuse University Gallery and the School of Art at Syracuse University.

B'nai B'rith Names Judges for Poster Contest on Monday

Final arrangements have been made for the judging of the B'nai B'rith Women Brotherhood Poster Contest at the Jewish Community Center on Monday at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Harry Gold, chairman of the committee in charge of the contest, announced the names of the judges. The judges are Mrs. Milton Wagenfohr of Kyserike, John McClellan of Woodstock and County Judge Louis G. Bruhn. Mrs. Wagenfohr formerly taught art at the Onteora school and Mr. McClellan is a renowned painter and illustrator, and Judge Bruhn is county judge of Ulster County. All of these distinguished people have graciously volunteered their time to this effort.

A second function of the Citizenship and Civic Affairs Committee of B'nai B'rith Women has just been completed. Mrs. Stanley Kohnberg, chairman of the March of Dimes for B'nai B'rith Women, has announced the successful completion of her committee's two day drive for the March of Dimes. Her committee, including Mmes. Leonard Kronick, William Helmrich, Irwin Gellen, Ross Ellis, Irving Alcon, Sam Gally, Yale Zuckerman, Abraham Greenbaum, Max Markowitz, and Irwin Lessik, spent the evenings of Wednesday, February 4 and Thursday, February 5, at eight Kingston super markets with March of Dimes canisters soliciting money for the worthy cause. In this way, the B'nai B'rith Women have assisted the local March of Dimes chapter in collecting money for further research.

Since the discovery of the Salk vaccine, the March of Dimes has broadened its research work to include work in the areas of birth defects and arthritis and plans to continue its work in the field of polio.

Meyer Kaplan, chairman of the March of Dimes for the Kingston area, accepted the canisters from Mrs. Kohnberg. He said that he was pleased by the results and thanked B'nai B'rith Women for their cooperation.

The B'nai B'rith Women have actively participated in the March of Dimes campaign for many years.

According to Noah Webster, The fourteenth of February is a day sacred to St. Valentine!

There is a tradition, many centuries old that February fourteenth was the date of the marryrdom of good "saynt Valenyn," and Georffrey Chaucer (about 1390) immortalized this story in The Birds' Rondel.

Now welcome, summer, with thy sunshine soft,
This wintry weather thou wilt overtake,
And drive away the night so long and black!
Saint Valentine, thou who art crowned aloft,
The little birds are singing for thy sake;
They have good reason to be glad, and oft,
Since each has found his mate in bush and brake,
O blissfully they sing when they awake.

The greatest stories of all literature from Virgil, Shakespeare or Dorothy Dix have been woven around the love-theme, and there are as many facets to these tales as there are heroes and heroines to tell the story.

From many years observation, we have found that the successful love story is a duet, both doing their best; as Sandberg says, Poetry is the synthesis of hyacinths and biscuits.

An Arabian Sheik's entourage was minus one horse for a trip. The sheik ordered that one be requisitioned from one of the villagers. Two horses were brought before him for his inspection but both owners were very reluctant to part with their steeds. They put up terrific howls, protesting that their horses were spavined, aged, and generally unsuitable for the sheik's purpose.

Sheik—There is but one way to settle this, you will race your horses and whichever horse wins the race will be the one I take.

Adviser—But, Your Highness, how will that settle it? Neither will put his horse to the supreme test.

Sheik—They will if each man rides the other's horse.

According to Noah Webster, The fourteenth of February is a day sacred to St. Valentine!

There is a tradition, many centuries old that February fourteenth was the date of the marryrdom of good "saynt Valentyn," and Geoffrey Chaucer (about 1390) immortalized this story in The Birds' Rondel.

Now welcome, summer, with thy sunshine soft,
This wintry weather thou wilt overtake,
And drive away the night so long and black!
Saint Valentine, thou who art crowned aloft,
The little birds are singing for thy sake;
They have good reason to be glad, and oft,
Since each has found his mate in bush and brake,
O blissfully they sing when they awake.

The greatest stories of all literature from Virgil, Shakespeare or Dorothy Dix have been woven around the love-theme, and there are as many facets to these tales as there are heroes and heroines to tell the story.

From many years observation, we have found that the successful love story is a duet, both doing their best; as Sandberg says, Poetry is the synthesis of hyacinths and biscuits.

Lock of Lincoln's Hair on Display

NEW YORK (AP)—A lock of Abraham Lincoln's hair, taken from his head after he was assassinated, is now on display at the New York Historical Society.

Peter Anderson, 28, society librarian, not only found the lock of hair but a letter written by Robert Todd Lincoln, the Civil War President's son.

Anderson found the hair and letter last week while cataloging papers turned over by the Naval History Society.

The hair, dark brown with a few strands of gray, was sent to Gustavus V. Fox, then assistant Navy secretary, at the latter's request.

Economy Constant Theme Of Lincoln Day Orators

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — As 1959 unfolds, the big issues between Democrats and Republicans seem to be spending, the quality of American defense, and foreign policy.

And at this point the water in which all three issues are swimming is a little murky, or roiled, as fishermen say.

The anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth is one of the best times of the year for seeing what kind of ammunition the Republicans think they have for firing at the Democrats.

Following Ike's Lead

This year one Republican speaker after another hit at spending or, to put it another way, called for action to avoid inflation by spending no more than President Eisenhower asked in his budget message last January.

Economy was the constant theme of the speeches. In hitting this the speakers were following the lead of Eisenhower who has been banging away at the "big spenders" in the Democratic-run Congress.

The Republican attempt to picture the Democrats as spenders already had gotten under the Democratic skin, with Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas setting the pace in firing back.

Johnson, leader of the Senate Democrats, has cracked back with phrases like these: "To set up the present administration as the guardian of the balanced budget is in the same class as hiring a coyote for a watchdog over sheep."

Other Themes Minor

This year's Republican speakers hit on other themes — like protecting civil rights — but economy was the main one.

The Democrats already have been assailing the Eisenhower administration by questioning the quality of the defense program sponsored by the President. They ask: IS defense being jeopardized by Eisenhower economy?

This is indeed a murky field since the experts are wrangling among themselves and the public is hardly in a position to know who's right.

Democrats have been critical of the administration's conduct of foreign affairs but when these differences are examined they are not really basic differences but rather differences in details.

Again the public — which can't know what the insiders know — can only guess as to who is right.

Nevertheless, spending, defense and foreign policy disputes will probably dominate Democratic and Republican statements for the rest of the year.

In an evolving society like this the political issues seldom seem to change suddenly or be abandoned. Rather they change little by little until, as the years go by, one finally isn't heard of any more and something else takes its place.

Yet, a check back on the issues Republicans raised at Lincoln Day dinners in past years shows that at least one thing which was an issue in 1950 is still being hammered on.

It was spending. In 1950 President Truman and his Democratic administration had the job of running the country now held by Eisenhower and his administration and what he called the "reckless spending" and "socialistic programs of the New Deal."

That was also the year when Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin began his crusade against Communists in government. It was a theme which served the Republicans well for a while but in four years, or after McCarthy was brushed aside by his fellow senators, it faded away and no one this year was talking about it.

Lehigh Hearings End, Next Move Up to Washington

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — A four-day hearing on the petition of the Lehigh Valley Railroad to end passenger service is over. The next move is up to Washington.

At the conclusion of the four-day hearing Thursday, Robert M. Davis, counsel for the Lehigh Valley Passengers and Shippers Assn., claimed the railroad's petition should be dismissed. He said it was not properly brought under the Railroad Act of 1958 because the act only applies to partial discontinuance.

The Lehigh Valley wants to halt all passenger traffic in May because of continuing deficits.

Interstate Commerce Commission Hearing Officer John L. Bradford said he was unable to move on the motion but that he would forward it to Washington for decision.

Locals Need Win To Set Showdown With Newburgh

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

While Kingston High School cagers hope to survive tonight's contest with Port Jervis and then pin their pennant hopes in the DUSO circuit on their big meeting with Newburgh Tuesday at the Kate Walton field house, Onteora and Arlington can just about clinch crowns in UCAL and DCSL action.

Onteora plays at Wallkill in the big one in the Ulster county league. Ed Witko's club handled the home side easily in their first meeting and will be favored to repeat tonight. A win for Onteora will clinch a tie for first place with two easy foes left. Arlington has to get by a pesky Wappingers Falls quintet to wrap up the Dutchess County circuit. Fritz Jordan's cagers have only Roosevelt to play after the one tonight.

In addition to the Kingston-Port Jervis battle, other action on the far flung DUSO front is Middletown at Liberty, Ellenville at Newburgh and Falsburgh at Monticello.

The top games in a nutshell:

DUSO

KINGSTON at PORT JERVIS—A "crucial" battle. Both clubs have three losses. Port Pervis is no the upswing after a mediocre start and the locals have been playing so-so basketball. Port has the height in Bill Pepper, Wayne Ranich and Harry Boyd. The club is tough at home and figures as slight favorites tonight. If Kingston doesn't come home with a victory, the Newburgh contest won't mean a thing. The KHS five may be fired up now that Coach John Gilligan has laid down the law.

ELLENVILLE at NEWBURGH—The Goldbacks should win this one as they please. LeRoy Riley and Jack Coonan form the best one-two punch in the circuit and can handle Ben Davis and company.

UCAL

ONTEORA at WALLKILL—The last obstacle between Coach Ed Witco's team and a second straight league crown. Wallkill was soundly trounced in the first meeting between the clubs. This will be much closer because Wallkill is home and also because the club has improved, especially in the backcourt. However, the Indians still figure to be a few points stronger.

DCSL

SAUGERTIES at ROOSEVELT—The Sawyers are fighting for either a share of the title or for second place. If Glenn Santmire is unable to play, Saugerties should romp. However, if Santmire is his usual self, it will be a close one. Roosevelt is tied for the cellar but is always tough on its home court.

WAPPINGERS at ARLINGTON—A major obstacle for Fritz Jordan's cagers to hurdle. The Falls won the first meeting this season and should prove to be just as tough. Arlington needs this one to clinch no worse than a tie for the championship. The team is home and rates the favorite's role. The Falls is an in and out combination.

Franklin, N. H., is the birthplace of Daniel Webster and his home is maintained there as a museum. There also is an orphans' home on the Webster farm.

Red Wings Press For Cup Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Red Wings, playoff participants in each of the last 17 seasons, appear ready, willing and able to make a strong stretch run for another Stanley Cup berth in the National Hockey League.

The Red Wings blanked the New York Rangers 1-0 Thursday night and moved out of the league's dungeon. Detroit thus snapped a five-game losing streak.

In the only other game, the Boston Bruins won their fourth in a row by defeating the Chicago Black Hawks 5-4 on Bronco Horvath's goal with three minutes left. The Bruins now are one point behind runner-up Chicago.

Jack McIntyre scored for the Wings, who moved within six points of the fourth-place Rangers. Detroit has played one less game than New York.

Breaks His Heart When the Kiddies Play Rough Stuff

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—"It breaks my heart to see something like that happen," a melancholy Wake Forest Coach Bones McKinney said Thursday night after a tense North Carolina-Deacon basketball game errupted into a free-swinging melee. The Tar Heels won 75-66.

Coach Frank McGuire of the second-ranked Tar Heels would only say, "it's a dangerous thing."

Until the final 30 seconds, it was a hard-fought contest between two old Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

Leading 33-32 at the half, North Carolina pulled away as Harvey Salz, York Larese and Lee Sahffer built the margin to 75-64 in the final seconds.

Shaffer and Deacon Charlie Forte scuffled for a loose ball, Deacon Dave Budd joining in. Both benches emptied and a flurry of fists followed.

Wake fans joined the scrap, slapping at Tar Heel players.

Larese and Dick Kepley bore the brunt as they tried to reach the Carolina bench.

Police restored order and officials ejected Shaffer and Budd. Athletic directors of both schools and the coaches conferred with officials and complete new lineups came in.

Wake's Jerry Steele added the final field goal after play resumed.

"I got a good whack in the head," McKinney said later. "It's a shame it had to happen. It wasn't a particularly rough game."

It was North Carolina's 10th win against no ACC defeats. They are 15-1 over-all.

Locals Need Win To Set Showdown With Newburgh

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

While Kingston High School cagers hope to survive tonight's contest with Port Jervis and then pin their pennant hopes in the DUSO circuit on their big meeting with Newburgh Tuesday at the Kate Walton field house, Onteora and Arlington can just about clinch crowns in UCAL and DCSL action.

Onteora plays at Wallkill in the big one in the Ulster county league. Ed Witko's club handled the home side easily in their first meeting and will be favored to repeat tonight. A win for Onteora will clinch a tie for first place with two easy foes left. Arlington has to get by a pesky Wappingers Falls quintet to wrap up the Dutchess County circuit. Fritz Jordan's cagers have only Roosevelt to play after the one tonight.

In addition to the Kingston-Port Jervis battle, other action on the far flung DUSO front is Middletown at Liberty, Ellenville at Newburgh and Falsburgh at Monticello.

The top games in a nutshell:

DUSO

KINGSTON at PORT JERVIS—A "crucial" battle. Both clubs have three losses. Port Pervis is no the upswing after a mediocre start and the locals have been playing so-so basketball. Port has the height in Bill Pepper, Wayne Ranich and Harry Boyd. The club is tough at home and figures as slight favorites tonight. If Kingston doesn't come home with a victory, the Newburgh contest won't mean a thing. The KHS five may be fired up now that Coach John Gilligan has laid down the law.

ELLENVILLE at NEWBURGH—The Goldbacks should win this one as they please. LeRoy Riley and Jack Coonan form the best one-two punch in the circuit and can handle Ben Davis and company.

UCAL

ONTEORA at WALLKILL—The last obstacle between Coach Ed Witco's team and a second straight league crown. Wallkill was soundly trounced in the first meeting between the clubs. This will be much closer because Wallkill is home and also because the club has improved, especially in the backcourt. However, the Indians still figure to be a few points stronger.

DCSL

SAUGERTIES at ROOSEVELT—The Sawyers are fighting for either a share of the title or for second place. If Glenn Santmire is unable to play, Saugerties should romp. However, if Santmire is his usual self, it will be a close one. Roosevelt is tied for the cellar but is always tough on its home court.

WAPPINGERS at ARLINGTON—A major obstacle for Fritz Jordan's cagers to hurdle. The Falls won the first meeting this season and should prove to be just as tough. Arlington needs this one to clinch no worse than a tie for the championship. The team is home and rates the favorite's role. The Falls is an in and out combination.

Franklin, N. H., is the birthplace of Daniel Webster and his home is maintained there as a museum. There also is an orphans' home on the Webster farm.

MJM Junior Cagers Top Saugerties Five, 54-38

Myron J. Michael School Juniors overwhelmed Saugerties Junior High, 54-38, in a basketball game at the MJM gym Thursday.

Ahead from the opening tap, Coach Ronnie Cole basketeers winged to a 32-18 halftime lead.

The MJM cagers play at Red Hook Saturday morning.

Red Wings Press For Cup Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Detroit Red Wings, playoff participants in each of the last 17 seasons, appear ready, willing and able to make a strong stretch run for another Stanley Cup berth in the National Hockey League.

The Red Wings blanked the New York Rangers 1-0 Thursday night and moved out of the league's dungeon. Detroit thus snapped a five-game losing streak.

Jack McIntyre scored for the Wings, who moved within six points of the fourth-place Rangers. Detroit has played one less game than New York.

Breaks His Heart When the Kiddies Play Rough Stuff

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—"It breaks my heart to see something like that happen," a melancholy Wake Forest Coach Bones McKinney said Thursday night after a tense North Carolina-Deacon basketball game errupted into a free-swinging melee. The Tar Heels won 75-66.

Coach Frank McGuire of the second-ranked Tar Heels would only say, "it's a dangerous thing."

Until the final 30 seconds, it was a hard-fought contest between two old Atlantic Coast Conference rivals.

Leading 33-32 at the half, North Carolina pulled away as Harvey Salz, York Larese and Lee Sahfer built the margin to 75-64 in the final seconds.

Shaffer and Deacon Charlie Forte scuffled for a loose ball, Deacon Dave Budd joining in. Both benches emptied and a flurry of fists followed.

Wake fans joined the scrap, slapping at Tar Heel players.

Larese and Dick Kepley bore the brunt as they tried to reach the Carolina bench.

Police restored order and officials ejected Shaffer and Budd. Athletic directors of both schools and the coaches conferred with officials and complete new lineups came in.

Wake's Jerry Steele added the final field goal after play resumed.

"I got a good whack in the head," McKinney said later. "It's a shame it had to happen. It wasn't a particularly rough game."

It was North Carolina's 10th win against no ACC defeats. They are 15-1 over-all.

Marty Furgol, who has been playing golf 31 of his 41 years, sank eight putts of from 5 to 15 feet for birdies and an 8 under par 31-31–62.

That was his finest score in 18 years of pro play and sent him into today's second round with a three-stroke lead.

Will Miss Old Red

Fred Haney Confident Braves Will Stand Up

By FRED HANEY
Milwaukee Braves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is no question the Milwaukee Braves will miss Red Schoendienst. We only hope and pray that the Redhead will be able to be with us before the season is over and be his old self again.

What Red's loss would mean to the club is important, of course, but more important than the club is Red's own welfare. The important thing is for him to get well. That's everybody's prime consideration.

With Red out, the battle for second base will be among Mel Roach, Felix Mantilla and Casey Wyse. The doctors have advised me that Mel will be healed completely from his knee operation.

The rest of the infield is set. Both Frank Torre and Joe Adcock did outstanding jobs while playing first base.

On the left side of the infield, I honestly believe that Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews will have banner years this season. Johnny just had one of those years in 1958 that every ballplayer experiences during his career. He's a solid shortstop.

Mathews has yet to reach his peak and this could be the year he does. There isn't a more valuable third baseman in the league.

We have a few ifs in the outfield . . . Wes Covington's leg, and Billy Bruton's leg. If these fellows respond to treatment and a winter's rest I think we'll be in good shape.

High on Aaron

Of course, there is only one Henry Aaron and I think, before he quits, this youngster is going to establish many hitting records. He is one of the greatest wrist hitters I have seen.

Andy Pafko is the same fighting Andy, and we have good reports on Jim Pisoni, the fast outfielder we drafted from the Yankee system. We also expect fine things from Eddie Haas, Al Spangler, Lee Maye and others.

Our pitching staff, which was tops in the league last year, should be strong again in 1959. Youngsters like Carl Willey, Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro picked up valuable experience in 1958.

We have the old reliables like Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette and relief artist Don McMahon.

In Del Crandall and Del Rice, we are well protected behind the plate. Crandall had his best year in the majors last year. Rice is the best No. 2 catcher in the league.

Mangrum Blasts Tour Amateurs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It's time professional golfers stopped letting amateurs play in their tournaments, Lloyd Mangrum said in an interview today.

Mangrum of Apple Valley, Calif. said he plans to drop off the pro golf tour after the Tucson Open because the courses are too cluttered with players.

"It's ridiculous to have amateurs competing in the tournaments," he said.

"There is too much traffic on the golf courses without amateurs chopping up the greens."

He said the first day of a tournament the course is fine but after that "they are all chopped up."

Moore-Robinson Fight in Works

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two presidents of the once-dominant International Boxing Club are teaming up to translate the oft-discussed Moore-Robinson fight into reality.

Gibson said after the conference that "It looks now like a matter of arithmetic."

Part of the arithmetic would entail Moore's reaction to terms discussed but not agreed on — 30 per cent for each fighter. The conferees said they couldn't reach Moore at his San Diego home by telephone.

Hawk Rally Kills Knicks, 106-105

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don't scoff at any of these National Basketball Assn. teams which happen to fall behind a few points during a game — say 26 or 27.

At least don't scoff at the St. Louis Hawks if they do. They have a ready answer. It is Bob Pettit. His jump shot in the last 26 seconds Thursday night gave the Hawks a 106-105 victory over the New York Knicks after St. Louis trailed by 27 points with 16 minutes gone.

It was a similar situation, but on a smaller scale, at Portland, Ore., where Cincinnati trailed the Minneapolis Lakers by eight points in the first quarter. But a second period splurge put them in the va for good, as they beat the Lakers 119-114.

These were Thursday's only NBA games. The Hawks victory coupled with Minneapolis' loss reduced St. Louis' magic number to one — a St. Louis win or Laker loos — to give the defending champs their third consecutive Western Division title.

Pettit scored 25 of his 34 points in the second half to bring the Hawks home. Frank Selvy led the Knicks with 27 points.

The Lakers' Elgin Baylor finished with 28 points, as did teammate Ed Fleming. Jack Twyman's 33 points led the Royals.

North Carolina-Wake Forest in Brawl

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's probably no logical reason for it, but in the last 18 years West Virginia's basketball teams and New York's Madison Square Garden have gone together like ice cream and catsup.

If that strikes you as less than tasty, so it is for the Mountaineers in their dribble digging in the Garden.

Since sweeping through three upset victories to nail the National Invitation Tournament in 1942, West Virginia has made 28 Garden appearances including tournaments and regular season games.

The Garden record is 10-18, including Thursday night's stomach-growling 72-70 loss in overtime to New York University. During the same stretch, West Virginia teams have won 76 per cent of their games on other courts.

NYU came from 11 points behind to apply the Garden jinx, finally clinching the upset when 6-4 Cal Ramsey sank three pressure free throws in the last 80 seconds of overtime.

Tar Heels Rolling

North Carolina won its 10th straight Atlantic Coast Conference game for a 15-1 record, 75-66 over Wake Forest in a duel climaxed by a fist-swinging brawl; 6-7 Herb Busch had a big night in Virginia's 85-66 victory over VMI; Manhattan improved its tournament chances 71-53 over Syracuse; and Western Kentucky mauled Tampa 89-57 in other major pairings.

North Carolina's winning streak went to nine against Wake Forest in an ACC tussle which broke out into a brawl when the Tar Heels' Lee Shaffer and the Deacons' Charlie Forte collided in a scramble for a loose ball with 30 seconds left and Carolina 11 points ahead.

Benches Emptied

Both benches emptied to join the free-for-all and some of the 8,220 spectators joined in before police and college officials could break it up. Four Tar Heels hit in double figures with Joe Kepley getting 17, Shaffer and Doug Moe 16 apiece and York Larese 14.

Busch scored 26 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for Virginia, and reserves Darrell Bicknell (28) and Jude Talbott (18) combined for 46 points in Western Kentucky's romp.

Hot Putters Tops at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Veterans wielding hot putters were the big show in Thursday's first round of the $15,000 Tucson Open Golf Tournament.

Marty Furgol, who has been playing golf 31 of his 41 years, sank eight putts of from 5 to 15 feet for birdies and an 8 under par 31-31—62.

That was his finest score in 18 years of pro play and sent him into today's second round with a three-stroke lead.

Fifty-four pros made the most of the El Rio Club's good greens to better par 35-35—70 for the 6,434-yard layout. Another 13 had par.

Sharp play on the greens netted 5 under par 65s for Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif., Henry Williams Jr., Fleetwood, Pa. and Joe Campbell, Knoxville, Tenn., the only youngster among the leaders.

Art Wall Jr., the big money winner of the year from Pocono Manor, Pa., was one of five who started the second round four strokes off the pace with 66s.

Will Miss Old Red

Fred Haney Confident Braves Will Stand Up

By FRED HANEY
Milwaukee Braves

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There is no question the Milwaukee Braves will miss Red Schoendienst. We only hope and pray that the Redhead will be able to be with us before the season is over and be his old self again.

What Red's loss would mean to the club is important, of course, but more important than the club is Red's own welfare. The important thing is for him to get well. That's everybody's prime consideration.

With Red out, the battle for second base will be among Mel Roach, Felix Mantilla and Casey Wyse. The doctors have advised me that Mel will be healed completely from his knee operation.

The rest of the infield is set. Both Frank Torre and Joe Adcock did outstanding jobs while playing first base.

On the left side of the infield, I honestly believe that Johnny Logan and Eddie Mathews will have banner years this season. Johnny just had one of those years in 1958 that every ballplayer experiences during his career. He's a solid shortstop.

Mathews has yet to reach his peak and this could be the year he does. There isn't a more valuable third baseman in the league.

We have a few ifs in the outfield . . . Wes Covington's leg, and Billy Bruton's leg. If these fellows respond to treatment and a winter's rest I think we'll be in good shape.

High on Aaron

Of course, there is only one Henry Aaron and I think, before he quits, this youngster is going to establish many hitting records. He is one of the greatest wrist hitters I have seen.

Andy Pafko is the same fighting Andy, and we have good reports on Jim Pisoni, the fast outfielder we drafted from the Yankee system. We also expect fine things from Eddie Haas, Al Spangler, Lee Maye and others.

Our pitching staff, which was tops in the league last year, should be strong again in 1959. Youngsters like Carl Willey, Joey Jay and Juan Pizarro picked up valuable experience in 1958.

We have the old reliables like Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette and relief artist Don McMahon.

In Del Crandall and Del Rice, we are well protected behind the plate. Crandall had his best year in the majors last year. Rice is the best No. 2 catcher in the league.

Next — Mike Higgins, Boston Red Sox

Mangrum Blasts Tour Amateurs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It's time professional golfers stopped letting amateurs play in their tournaments, Lloyd Mangrum said in an interview today.

Mangrum of Apple Valley, Calif. said he plans to drop off the pro golf tour after the Tucson Open because the courses are too cluttered with players.

"It's ridiculous to have amateurs competing in the tournaments," he said.

"There is too much traffic on the golf courses without amateurs chopping up the greens."

He said the first day of a tournament the course is fine but after that "they are all chopped up."

Moore-Robinson Fight in Works

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Two presidents of the once-dominant International Boxing Club are teaming up to translate the oft-discussed Moore-Robinson fight into reality.

Gibson said after the conference that "It looks now like a matter of arithmetic."

Part of the arithmetic would entail Moore's reaction to terms discussed but not agreed on — 30 per cent for each fighter. The conferees said they couldn't reach Moore at his San Diego home by telephone.

Hawk Rally Kills Knicks, 106-105

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don't scoff at any of these National Basketball Assn. teams which happen to fall behind a few points during a game — say 26 or 27.

At least don't scoff at the St. Louis Hawks if they do. They have a ready answer. It is Bob Pettit. His jump shot in the last 26 seconds Thursday night gave the Hawks a 106-105 victory over the New York Knicks after St. Louis trailed by 27 points with 16 minutes gone.

It was a similar situation, but on a smaller scale, at Portland, Ore., where Cincinnati trailed the Minneapolis Lakers by eight points in the first quarter. But a second period splurge put them in the va for good, as they beat the Lakers 119-114.

These were Thursday's only NBA games. The Hawks victory coupled with Minneapolis' loss reduced St. Louis' magic number to one — a St. Louis win or Laker loos — to give the defending champs their third consecutive Western Division title.

Pettit scored 25 of his 34 points in the second half to bring the Hawks home. Frank Selvy led the Knicks with 27 points.

The Lakers' Elgin Baylor finished with 28 points, as did teammate Ed Fleming. Jack Twyman's 33 points led the Royals.

North Carolina-Wake Forest in Brawl

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

There's probably no logical reason for it, but in the last 18 years West Virginia's basketball teams and New York's Madison Square Garden have gone together like ice cream and catsup.

If that strikes you as less than tasty, so it is for the Mountaineers in their dribble digging in the Garden.

Since sweeping through three upset victories to nail the National Invitation Tournament in 1942, West Virginia has made 28 Garden appearances including tournaments and regular season games.

The Garden record is 10-18, including Thursday night's stomach-growling 72-70 loss in overtime to New York University. During the same stretch, West Virginia teams have won 76 per cent of their games on other courts.

NYU came from 11 points behind to apply the Garden jinx, finally clinching the upset when 6-4 Cal Ramsey sank three pressure free throws in the last 80 seconds of overtime.

Tar Heels Rolling

North Carolina won its 10th straight Atlantic Coast Conference game for a 15-1 record, 75-66 over Wake Forest in a duel climaxed by a fist-swinging brawl; 6-7 Herb Busch had a big night in Virginia's 85-66 victory over VMI; Manhattan improved its tournament chances 71-53 over Syracuse; and Western Kentucky mauled Tampa 89-57 in other major pairings.

North Carolina's winning streak went to nine against Wake Forest in an ACC tussle which broke out into a brawl when the Tar Heels' Lee Shaffer and the Deacons' Charlie Forte collided in a scramble for a loose ball with 30 seconds left and Carolina 11 points ahead.

Benches Emptied

Both benches emptied to join the free-for-all and some of the 8,220 spectators joined in before police and college officials could break it up. Four Tar Heels hit in double figures with Joe Kepley getting 17, Shaffer and Doug Moe 16 apiece and York Larese 14.

Busch scored 26 points and grabbed 18 rebounds for Virginia, and reserves Darrell Bicknell (28) and Jude Talbott (18) combined for 46 points in Western Kentucky's romp.

George Krajack scored 20 of his 22 points and Doug Hoffman 14 of his 18 tallies in the second half as Clemson beat Furman 73-64. Jack Whelan's 20 points led Holy Cross over American International 81-63, and Gary Phillips' 26 were tops as Houston spilled Loyola of New Orleans 71-54.

Manhattan Jolts Orange For Ninth Cage Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse ran into an inspired little man Thursday night and the Orangemen absorbed their ninth basketball defeat of the season, a 71-53 shellacking at the hands of Manhattan.

The Jaspers' Frank Quarto, a 5-10 dynamo, scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds — the same number as Syracuse's 6-9 center Jon Cincebox—in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader.

New York University snapped West Virginia's 11-game winning streak 72-70 in overtime in the second game.

In other Upstate basketball games, Ithaca swamped Wilkes 91-73, Utica defeated Hamilton 89 - 70 and Brockport trimmed Potsdam State 83-55.

Quarto's fiery play was coupled with Syracuse's inept shooting in the first half, which saw them make only six of 29 field goal attempts.

Cincebox was held to nine points. Syracuse has won seven.

Ithaca rolled to its sixth straight victory on the scoring of 16 players, led by George Strickland with 23, at Ithaca. George Gacha had 17 for Wilkes, which has won five of 15. Ithaca has won 11 of 16.

At Utica, a seven point spurt carried Utica to its fourth victory in 13 starts. Hamilton, led by Dick Aloff with 23 points, has won two and lost eight. Clary Forness and Darr Mucica scored 19 each for Utica.

The Brockport Teachers won their fourth game on superior accuracy. They hit on 46 per cent of their final goal attempts, while Potsdam shot at a 29 per cent clip in the game at Brockport. Dick Kraft had 22 points for Brockport, five more than Jack Sharlow of Potsdam.

Webb May Quit Yanks to Join Dodger Office

NEW YORK (AP)—Del Webb, part owner of the New York Yankees, is considering severing connection with that club to join Walter O'Malley in ownership of the Los Angeles Dodgers, the New York Journal American said today.

Frank Graham, columnist for the paper, said in his column: "Relations between Webb and O'Malley have grown closer in the past two or three years. The belief is that O'Malley didn't dream up a potential gold mine in Los Angeles but that Webb pointed it out to him."

Comment from the principals involved was not immediately available.

Graham said Webb is considering the move because his other business interests lie mainly in Arizona, California and Nevada and it would be "a reasonable move on Webb's part to consolidate his financial empire by shifting his baseball holdings closer to home."

The writer said also that Webb is reported interested in later luring an American League club to Los Angeles and sharing the Dodgers' Ravine on a rental basis.

BERT BURR shot 174-195-191-560 in the Central Hudson Mixed Bowling league. His score paced the men keglers. Nancy Hussey topped the ladies with 117-168-150-435.

Results: Hot Sticks 2, Hep Cats 1; Minnie Singers 3, Pole Cats 0; Persian Cats 3, Alley Cats 0.

Lager May Lure Phils to Jersey

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12 (AP)—Mayor Richardson Dilworth gloomily predicts that beer on Sunday may lure the Philadelphia Phillies across the Delaware River to near-by Delaware Township, N. J.

Pennsylvania law does not permit beer sales on Sunday; New Jersey does.

"Beer might defeat us even though it would cost more to finance a stadium in New Jersey than here," Dilworth said at a news conference yesterday.

Comeback Kids Fight at Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Friday the 13th, the first of three on the 1959 calendar, is an appropriate date for tonight's "battle of the comebacks" at Madison Square Garden.

In one corner, Cisco Andrade, on the way back after an elbow operation and a fight in which he broke both hands in 1957.

In the other corner, Frankie Ryff, the thin-skinned boxer who underwent surgery for the removal of scar tissue around the eyes in 1958.

Both lightweights claim they are hale and hearty now, ready for their 10-round match that will be carried on NBC radio and television at 10 p.m. EST.

Andrade has given his hands a thorough test. He stopped Jorge Mascia, Bobby Bell and Lauro Salas before he lost a decision to clever Johnny Gonsalves. His record for 44 starts is 39-4-1.

O'Connell New Coach at Drake

DES MOINES (AP) — Tommy O'Connell, one-time star quarterback at Illinois, is taking over the head football coaching job at Drake with the job of pulling the Bulldogs out of their recent doldrums.

An assistant to Ray Eliot at Illinois, O'Connell was picked Thursday by the executive committee of the Drake trustees to replace Warren Gaer who resigned last November.

O'Connell, inherits a young Missouri Valley Conference team that won 2 and lost 7 last season. He said he intends to install some type of flanking T offense.

Delaney Sees 28th Straight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Well, sir, it's Friday the 13th, but that doesn't bother Ireland's fabulous Ron Delany.

He figures his Irish luck will carry him to his 28th straight mile victory and a new meet record in the 15th Inquirer Indoor Track Games at Convention Hall tonight.

"I figure we should break the meet record," he said Thursday. Delany, now a graduate student at Villanova, holds the record of 4:08.1.

A sellout crowd of 10,600 is expected to watch the games in which many of the world's finest athletes, including 10 champions of foreign countries, will compete.

An international field hopes to break Delany's streak. It includes England's Brian Hewson, Sweden's Dan Waern, Hungary's Lazlo Tabori and American's Jim Grelle and Phil Coleman.

Tigers and Bunning Agree on '59 Terms

DETROIT, Feb. 12 (AP) — Pitcher Jim Bunning has agreed to 1959 contract terms with the Detroit Tigers.

The righthander who won 20 games two seasons ago and pitched a no-hitter against Boston on July 20 last year came to terms today in a telephone conversation with acting general manager Rick Farrell. Bunning, 27, won 14 and lost 12 last season.

Minors Map Promotion Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio. (AP)—Minor league baseball today launched the most intensive and widespread promotional plan in its history.

The National Assn of Professional Baseball Leagues spearheaded the campaign, built around the theme of "it's fun to be a fan."

All 156 clubs in the 22-league minor league setup, and all 16 major loop teams, were sent "do-it-yourself kits" aimed at bolstering a drive to lure fans into the parks.

George M. Trautman, boss of the minors, said the kits contain all the tools a club needs to carry out an intensified program.

At least two dozen sample items were offered the clubs. They include newspaper advertising mats, radio and television scrips, outdoor billboard sheets, window posters, windshield stickers, wallet schedule cards, drink coasters, bus and street car display cards, night posters, and a 100-page handbook on "70 nights in a ball park."

Advertisement proofs also were sent to every newspaper in every minor league city, ranging up to full-page size.

The association, buying all the promotional matter in large quantities, believes it can save money for the individual clubs. Local printing firms will be used to complete the local data.

Radio and TV scripts, many featuring taped interviews with major league stars, will be furnished free to stations desiring them.

Hockey Pensions Getting Closer

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans for the adoption of a pension and retirement fund for American Hockey League players are nearing completion, President Richard F. Canning announced today.

Canning, a Providence lawyer, said all players who were in a minimum of 50 games starting with the 1954-55 season will be eligible to receive pension benefits five years after they have retired from professional hockey.

Money for the fund will be allocated through an increase of twenty-five cents for each ticket for Calder Cup playoff games.

Canning met yesterday with executives of each of the circuit's six teams. He said final details of the pension plan will be ironed out at another meeting before the end of the regular season.

Evaskevski All-Round Click

IOWA CITY, Iowa. (AP) — Forest Evashevski is a highly successful football coach. He apparently is equally as successful as a businessman.

His name showed up Thursday in two unrelated news stories.

Evashevski, the football coach, appeared on the sports pages when the Iowa Board of Regents approved a $2,500 salary increase, making him the highest paid coach in the Big Ten Conference at $20,000 a year.

At the same time, Evashevski, the businessman, made news on the financial pages as a founder of a company known as Life Investors of Iowa.

As a football coach, Evy has directed the University of Iowa to two Big Ten titles in six years and to two post-season Rose Bowl triumphs.

On the financial side he keeps his affairs pretty much to himself.

Evy's business venture apparently will deal in insurance and was founded by 23 persons, most of them prominent Iowans.

Manhattan Jolts Orange For Ninth Cage Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syracuse ran into an inspired little man Thursday night and the Orangemen absorbed their ninth basketball defeat of the season, a 71-53 shellacking at the hands of Manhattan.

The Jaspers' Frank Quarto, a 5-10 dynamo, scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds — the same number as Syracuse's 6-9 center Jon Cincebox—in the first game of a Madison Square Garden doubleheader.

New York University snapped West Virginia's 11-game winning streak 72-70 in overtime in the second game.

In other Upstate basketball games, Ithaca swamped Wilkes 91-73, Utica defeated Hamilton 79 - 70 and Brockport trimmed Potsdam State 83-55.

Quarto's fiery play was coupled with Syracuse's inept shooting in the first half, which saw them make only six of 29 field goal attempts.

Cincebox was held to nine points. Syracuse has won seven.

Ithaca rolled to its sixth straight victory on the scoring of 16 players, led by George Strickland with 23, at Ithaca. George Gacha had 17 for Wilkes, which has won five of 15. Ithaca has won 11 of 16.

At Utica, a seven point spurt carried Utica to its fourth victory in 13 starts. Hamilton, led by Dick Aloff with 23 points, has won two and lost eight. Clary Forness and Darr Mucica scored 19 each for Utica.

The Brockport Teachers won their fourth game on superior accuracy. They hit on 46 per cent of their final goal attempts, while Potsdam shot at a 29 per cent clip in the game at Brockport. Dick Kraft had 22 points for Brockport, five more than Jack Sharlow of Potsdam.

White Sox Sign Pair

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox today signed outfielders Joe Hicks and Lou Skizas. The club has 11 players still unsigned. Hicks, who batted .381 for Colorado Springs last season, just concluded winter play in Nicaragua where he batted .310, Skizas hit .320 in Venezuela's Occidental League.

Webb May Quit Yanks to Join Dodger Office

NEW YORK (AP)—Del Webb, part owner of the New York Yankees, is considering severing connection with that club to join Walter O'Malley in ownership of the Los Angeles Dodgers, the New York Journal American said today.

Frank Graham, columnist for the paper, said in his column: "Relations between Webb and O'Malley have grown closer in the past two or three years. The belief is that O'Malley didn't dream up a potential gold mine in Los Angeles but that Webb pointed it out to him."

Comment from the principals involved was not immediately available.

Graham said Webb is considering the move because his other business interests lie mainly in Arizona, California and Nevada and it would be "a reasonable move on Webb's part to consolidate his financial empire by shifting his baseball holdings closer to home."

The writer said also that Webb is reported interested in later luring an American League club to Los Angeles and sharing the Dodgers' Ravine on a rental basis.

Lager May Lure Phils to Jersey

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12 (AP)—Mayor Richardson Dilworth gloomily predicts that beer on Sunday may lure the Philadelphia Phillies across the Delaware River to near-by Delaware Township, N. J.

Pennsylvania law does not permit beer sales on Sunday; New Jersey does.

"Beer might defeat us even though it would cost more to finance a stadium in New Jersey than here." Dilworth said at a news conference yesterday.

Comeback Kids Fight at Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Friday the 13th, the first of three on the 1959 calendar, is an appropriate date for tonight's "battle of the comebacks" at Madison Square Garden.

In one corner, Cisco Andrade, on the way back after an elbow operation and a fight in which he broke both hands in 1957.

In the other corner, Frankie Ryff, the thin-skinned boxer who underwent surgery for the removal of scar tissue around the eyes in 1958.

Both lightweights claim they are hale and hearty now, ready for their 10-round match that will be carried on NBC radio and television at 10 p.m. EST.

Andrade has given his hands a thorough test. He stopped Jorge Mascia, Bobby Bell and Lauro Salas before he lost a decision to clever Johnny Gonsalves. His record for 44 starts is 39-4-1.

O'Connell New Coach at Drake

DES MOINES (AP) — Tommy O'Connell, one-time star quarterback at Illinois, is taking over the head football coaching job at Drake with the job of pulling the Bulldogs out of their recent doldrums.

An assistant to Ray Eliot at Illinois, O'Connell was picked Thursday by the executive committee of the Drake trustees to replace Warren Gaer who resigned last November.

O'Connell, inherits a young Missouri Valley Conference team that won 2 and lost 7 last season. He said he intends to install some type of flanking T offense.

Delaney Sees 28th Straight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Well, sir, it's Friday the 13th, but that doesn't bother Ireland's fabulous Ron Delany.

He figures his Irish luck will carry him to his 28th straight mile victory and a new meet record in the 15th Inquirer Indoor Track Games at Convention Hall tonight.

"I figure we should break the meet record," he said Thursday. Delany, now a graduate student at Villanova, holds the record of 4:08.1.

A sellout crowd of 10,600 is expected to watch the games in which many of the world's finest athletes, including 10 champions of foreign countries, will compete.

An international field hopes to break Delany's streak. It includes England's Brian Hewson, Sweden's Dan Waern, Hungary's Lazlo Tabori and American's Jim Grelle and Phil Coleman.

Tigers and Bunning Agree on '59 Terms

DETROIT, Feb. 12 (AP) — Pitcher Jim Bunning has agreed to 1959 contract terms with the Detroit Tigers.

The righthander who won 20 games two seasons ago and pitched a no-hitter against Boston on July 20 last year came to terms today in a telephone conversation with acting general manager Rick Farrell. Bunning, 27, won 14 and lost 12 last season.

Minors Map Promotion Drive

COLUMBUS, Ohio. (AP)—Minor league baseball today launched the most intensive and widespread promotional plan in its history.

The National Assn of Professional Baseball Leagues spearheaded the campaign, built around the theme of "it's fun to be a fan."

All 156 clubs in the 22-league minor league setup, and all 16 major loop teams, were sent "do-it-yourself kits" aimed at bolstering a drive to lure fans into the parks.

George M. Trautman, boss of the minors, said the kits contain all the tools a club needs to carry out an intensified program.

At least two dozen sample items were offered the clubs. They include newspaper advertising mats, radio and television scrips, outdoor billboard sheets, window posters, windshield stickers, wallet schedule cards, drink coasters, bus and street car display cards, night posters, and a 100-page handbook on "70 nights in a ball park."

Advertisement proofs also were sent to every newspaper in every minor league city, ranging up to full-page size.

The association, buying all the promotional matter in large quantities, believes it can save money for the individual clubs. Local printing firms will be used to complete the local data.

Radio and TV scripts, many featuring taped interviews with major league stars, will be furnished free to stations desiring them.

Hockey Pensions Getting Closer

NEW YORK (AP) — Plans for the adoption of a pension and retirement fund for American Hockey League players are nearing completion, President Richard F. Canning announced today.

Canning, a Providence lawyer, said all players who were in a minimum of 50 games starting with the 1954-55 season will be eligible to receive pension benefits five years after they have retired from professional hockey.

Money for the fund will be allocated through an increase of twenty-five cents for each ticket for Calder Cup playoff games.

Canning met yesterday with executives of each of the circuit's six teams. He said final details of the pension plan will be ironed out at another meeting before the end of the regular season.

Evaskevski All-Round Click

IOWA CITY, Iowa. (AP) — Forest Evashevski is a highly successful football coach. He apparently is equally as successful as a businessman.

His name showed up Thursday in two unrelated news stories.

Evashevski, the football coach, appeared on the sports pages when the Iowa Board of Regents approved a $2,500 salary increase, making him the highest paid coach in the Big Ten Conference at $20,000 a year.

At the same time, Evashevski, the businessman, made news on the financial pages as a founder of a company known as Life Investors of Iowa.

As a football coach, Evy has directed the University of Iowa to two Big Ten titles in six years and to two post-season Rose Bowl triumphs.

On the financial side he keeps his affairs pretty much to himself. Evy's business venture apparently will deal in insurance and was founded by 23 persons, most of them prominent Iowans.

Three Men Held On Charges of Mail Fraud Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal authorities have arrested three men connected with a Buffalo, firm accused of operating a million-dollar mail fraud.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Elliott Kahaner said the firm, Strick-Matador Corp. mailed pamphlets to housewives throughout the country offering for $400 knitting machines which had been purchased for $35 each from a manufacturer in Germany.

Kahaner said Strick - Matador promised to purchase the knitted goods turned out by the housewives on the machines. He said the firm broke its promise.

Kahaner called the knitting machines "junk" and "almost impossible" to operate. He said Strick-Matador had been operating since 1955.

Arrested Thursday were Morris Baren, 32, of Amherst, near Buffalo, and his father, John Baren, 56, of Buffalo.

The Barens were arraigned on mail fraud charges before U. S. Commissioner Robert Miller in Rochester, who set a preliminary hearing for March 5. The pair were released in $10,000 property bail each.

Samuel C. Stein, 32, was seized Thursday at his home in Queens, and charged with mail fraud.

Stein waived a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Salvatore Abruzzo and was released in $3,000 bail to await grand jury action.

Mrs. William R. Mulligan of Queens, complained last October that the Strick-Matador firm had promised her she could make from $15 to $25 a week by selling her knitted goods to the company. But later, she said, the firm refused to buy her products.

CulturalExchange Is Successful for U. S. and Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have successfully carried out two-thirds of their big cultural exchange agreement without a major hitch.

This historic agreement, signed about a year ago, is working so well that both sides are seriously considering extending it when it expires next January.

A summary shows that more than 1,500 Soviet citizens and Americans have visited each other's country as part of 151 official delegations during the first 12 months.

The swap of delegates has started a flow of private tourists. About 5,000 Americans visited the Soviet Union in the first year after the agreement. In return, 66 Soviet tourists, the first to visit this country since World War II, arrived late last year.

More Americans than Soviets have been involved in exchanges thus far, but this is due primarily to a Soviet delay in arranging reciprocal tours of the United States.

Stage Experiment

NEW YORK (AP) — A new kind of show case for experimental work by dramatists, directors and actors is being tried at the off-Broadway Cricket theater. The idea was devised by Rhett Cone, operator of the house. Called "theater for the connoisseur," admission is by invitation only.

GOP in Control

Governor Names Brooklyn Man to Liquor Authority

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Republicans took control of the State Liquor Authority today when GOP Gov. Rockefeller appointed Martin C. Epstein of Brooklyn to the five-member agency.

Rockefeller said he would designate Epstein as chairman "at the earliest opportunity," presumably after Senate confirmation.

The chairman receives $18,500 a year. Members are paid $16,500.

Epstein, a 66-year-old Manhattan lawyer, was appointed to succeed Morris Rosen, an interim appointee of Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman, for a term expiring April 12, 1963.

At the 1958 session, the Republican-dominated Senate did not confirm Rosen, a Queens Democrat and union leader.

The term of the present SLA chairman, Thomas E. Rohan of New York, runs until April 12, 1962.

The other Democrat on the authority, besides Rohan, is John C. Stiglmeier of Buffalo. The other Republicans are Grant F. Daniels of suburban Loudonville and Samuel M. Birnbaum of New York.

Epstein was appointed U. S. commissioner for New York's eastern district in 1927 and has been reappointed every four years since. His last appointment was April 1, 1955.

He also has served as extradition commissioner in the district.

Broadway Exhibited

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway's theater zone has been on the move for two centuries. Its periodic shifts are the theme of a new exhibit at the Museum of the City of New York. The show discloses that the favorite name for theaters through the years has been Lyceum, and that two have been named after the Booth acting family. The display continues until October.

The first public power supply system began in England in 1901.

Three Men Held On Charges of Mail Fraud Deal

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal authorities have arrested three men connected with a Buffalo, firm accused of operating a million-dollar mail fraud.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Elliott Kahaner said the firm, Strick-Matador Corp. mailed pamphlets to housewives throughout the country offering for $400 knitting machines which had been purchased for $35 each from a manufacturer in Germany.

Kahaner said Strick - Matador promised to purchase the knitted goods turned out by the housewives on the machines. He said the firm broke its promise.

Kahaner called the knitting machines "junk" and "almost impossible" to operate. He said Strick-Matador had been operating since 1955.

Arrested Thursday were Morris Baren, 32, of Amherst, near Buffalo, and his father, John Baren, 56, of Buffalo.

The Barens were arraigned on mail fraud charges before U. S. Commissioner Robert Miller in Rochester, who set a preliminary hearing for March 5. The pair were released in $10,000 property bail each.

Samuel C. Stein, 32, was seized Thursday at his home in Queens, and charged with mail fraud.

Stein waived a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Salvatore Abruzzo and was released in $3,000 bail to await grand jury action.

Mrs. William R. Mulligan of Queens, complained last October that the Strick-Matador firm had promised her she could make from $15 to $25 a week by selling her knitted goods to the company. But later, she said, the firm refused to buy her products.

CulturalExchange Is Successful for U. S. and Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union have successfully carried out two-thirds of their big cultural exchange agreement without a major hitch.

This historic agreement, signed about a year ago, is working so well that both sides are seriously considering extending it when it expires next January.

A summary shows that more than 1,500 Soviet citizens and Americans have visited each other's country as part of 151 official delegations during the first 12 months.

The swap of delegates has started a flow of private tourists. About 5,000 Americans visited the Soviet Union in the first year after the agreement. In return, 66 Soviet tourists, the first to visit this country since World War II, arrived late last year.

More Americans than Soviets have been involved in exchanges thus far, but this is due primarily to a Soviet delay in arranging reciprocal tours of the United States.

Stage Experiment

NEW YORK (AP) — A new kind of show case for experimental work by dramatists, directors and actors is being tried at the off-Broadway Cricket theater. The idea was devised by Rhett Cone, operator of the house. Called "theater for the connoisseur," admission is by invitation only.

GOP in Control

Governor Names Brooklyn Man to Liquor Authority

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Republicans took control of the State Liquor Authority today when GOP Gov. Rockefeller appointed Martin C. Epstein of Brooklyn to the five-member agency.

Rockefeller said he would designate Epstein as chairman "at the earliest opportunity," presumably after Senate confirmation.

The chairman receives $18,500 a year. Members are paid $16,500.

Epstein, a 66-year-old Manhattan lawyer, was appointed to succeed Morris Rosen, an interim appointee of Democratic Gov. Averell Harriman, for a term expiring April 12, 1963.

At the 1958 session, the Republican-dominated Senate did not confirm Rosen, a Queens Democrat and union leader.

The term of the present SLA chairman, Thomas E. Rohan of New York, runs until April 12, 1962.

The other Democrat on the authority, besides Rohan, is John C. Stiglmeier of Buffalo. The other Republicans are Grant F. Daniels of suburban Loudonville and Samuel M. Birnbaum of New York.

Epstein was appointed U. S. commissioner for New York's eastern district in 1927 and has been reappointed every four years since. His last appointment was April 1, 1955.

He also has served as extradition commissioner in the district.

Think It Through

E. F. HUTTON
WIRK

John Hartford, of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, hung a sign on the wall of his office. It read: "Ache and Pain Dept. Wirk."

He said, "I spell 'work' with an 'i' because I'm the only one round here who wirks."

Of course, he was sorta joking, because the A. & P. gives jobs to 100,000 folks, and it just couldn't become the greatest food store in the world unless they wirked.

MR. HUTTON

It couldn't have lasted and grown for 100 years without a lot of aches and pains. But they all get cured by wirk.

If Mr. Hartford had lived in Ben Franklin's time, the old philosopher would have put him in POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. He'd have told young folks: "If you'd get ahead in the world, put 'i' in your wirk."

A young man, applying for his first job, who doesn't ask when his pension will begin; or how many paid holidays he'll have, etc., etc., is sure to get and hold a good job.

A golden age is opening up for that kind of young men and women. For they will have less competition than ever before!

The idea today is that you can have wealth without wirk. Just vote yourself rich!

That's what the politicians tell us.

But unless Ben Franklin and John Hartford were completely wrong, we'll find that the out-put of society can't be greater than the in-put of wirkers

Think It Through

E. F. HUTTON
WIRK

John Hartford, of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, hung a sign on the wall of his office. It read: "Ache and Pain Dept. Wirk."

He said, "I spell 'work' with an 'i' because I'm the only one round here who wirks."

Of course, he was sorta joking, because the A. & P. gives jobs to 100,000 folks, and it just couldn't become the greatest food store in the world unless they wirked.

MR. HUTTON

It couldn't have lasted and grown for 100 years without a lot of aches and pains. But they all get cured by wirk.

If Mr. Hartford had lived in Ben Franklin's time, the old philosopher would have put him in POOR RICHARD'S ALMANAC. He'd have told young folks: "If you'd get ahead in the world, put 'i' in your wirk."

A young man, applying for his first job, who doesn't ask when his pension will begin; or how many paid holidays he'll have, etc., etc., is sure to get and hold a good job.

A golden age is opening up for that kind of young men and women. For they will have less competition than ever before!

The idea today is that you can have wealth without wirk. Just vote yourself rich!

That's what the politicians tell us.

But unless Ben Franklin and John Hartford were completely wrong, we'll find that the out-put of society can't be greater than the in-put of wirkers

Four Demoted, Patrolman Fired in Bookie Scandal

NEW YORK (AP) — Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy has demoted four top officers of his department, which has been hit by a new gambling scandal.

A deputy chief inspector, two inspectors and a deputy inspector were broken Thursday to the rank of captain — the lowest rank Kennedy could give then under civil service rules. A patrolman was fired from the force hours before his scheduled retirement at midnight.

Three demotions and the firing were in Manhattan. They came a few hours after a deputy inspector and two plainclothes patrolmen — members of the Brooklyn morals squald — were arrested in a cops-and-bookmakers scandal in Brooklyn.

Demands Hard Treatment

After disclosure of the alleged bookie shakedown in Brooklyn, Kennedy summoned 150 top police officials to his office for a lecture.

Kennedy, visibly angry, ordered his commanders to "root out corruption in any manner, shape or form." He told them to be severe with gamblers.

The three officers demoted in Manhattan had been attached to the 10th police division in Harlem last March when the commissioner's confidential squad smashed a big numbers racket ring there. They were transferred to noncommand duties at police headquarters.

Those demoted in Manhattan were Deputy Chief Inspector William J. McGowan and inspectors Herbert Koehler and Edward Hayes. They had been under investigation for almost a year.

Kennedy declined to explain why he demoted the three men, and said he did not want to reflect on their integrity.

The commissioner added, however: "The administration of the police department has left something to be desired."

Use Wiretaps

The deputy inspector demoted is Dominick Masella, who was arrested Thursday with two plainclothes patrolmen on several charges.

Those arrested allegedly wiretapped a bookmaking joint, raided it, and arranged for an arrest on the street so the bookie would not be put out of business.

The police arrests were engineered by the Brooklyn district attorney's rackets squad.

Aaron Koota, assistant district attorney in charge of the rackets bureau, said:

"It seems clear from all factors and inferences that this was an attempt to shake down bookmakers."

The three policemen arrested denied any wrongdoing.

Hours From Pension

The patrolman fired from the force is Cecil H. Bush, 52, Negro, who has a wife and two children and had been on the force 28 years.

He was dismissed hours before he could have picked up a lifetime pension of $3,000 a year.

The police commissioner said he fired Bush after he admitted taking no action against big-time numbers racket operators in his sector of Harlem.

The commissioner said the police department had photographic evidence showing Bush lax in Bush, who had pleaded guilty in a departmental trial proceeding earlier this year, had been awaiting the commissioner's decision. Not taking any chances, he filed his application for retirement 30 days ago.

Russian Claiming Columbus Possess Maps of New Land

LONDON (AP)—A Soviet historian says Christopher Columbus didn't discover America — but he doesn't claim a Russian did.

Moscow radio said the historian's study of ancient documents showed that Columbus already had maps giving the position of some lands of the New World when he set out aboard the Santa Maria on his famous voyage in 1492.

Somebody, the Soviet concluded must have visited those places to put them on the map.

The research was carried out by a lecturer at the Alma Alta Pedagogical Institute identified only as Superny.

Superny made a detailed study of publications and documents in Portugugese, Spanish and Italian archives, the broadcast said.

The theory he advanced before the U.S.S.R. Geographical Society was that "European navigators had visited the New World (before Columbus) but the names of these navigators remained unknown."

Russian Claiming Columbus Possess Maps of New Land

LONDON (AP)—A Soviet historian says Christopher Columbus didn't discover America — but he doesn't claim a Russian did.

Moscow radio said the historian's study of ancient documents showed that Columbus already had maps giving the position of some lands of the New World when he set out aboard the Santa Maria on his famous voyage in 1492.

Somebody, the Soviet concluded must have visited those places to put them on the map.

The research was carried out by a lecturer at the Alma Alta Pedagogical Institute identified only as Superny.

Superny made a detailed study of publications and documents in Portugugese, Spanish and Italian archives, the broadcast said.

The theory he advanced before the U.S.S.R. Geographical Society was that "European navigators had visited the New World (before Columbus) but the names of these navigators remained unknown."

Lion Claws Beatty

DETROIT (AP)—A lion clawed Clyde Beatty's arms Thursday night but the animal trainer completed his Shrine circus act before going to a hospital for treatment.

Six stitches were taken in Beatty's right arm. He suffered several scratches on his left arm.
